Khrushchev Says A-Test Ban Is In Sight

MOSCOW (UPI)—Premier Nikita Khrushchev said tonight "agreement is in sight" on a partial nuclear test ban. Negotiators were reported to have begun working on the actual treaty draft.

Khrushchev, at his jovial best at a reception and farewell party for visiting Hungarian Communist leader Janos Kadar, told newsmen, "The talks are going well. No obstacles have been encountered so far. If they continue as they have so far, agreement is in sight."

Khrushchev joked and quipped with W. Averell Harriman, chief American negotiator, and with Lord Hailsham, Britain's minister of science.

Harriman declined to comment on progress of the talks, which resume Monday, but quipped, "I hope to be home in time for the World Series."

Hailsham, asked by a correspondent whether the general impression the talks were going well was correct, replied:

"The general impression is right."

One more optimistic comment came from Alexei Adzhubei, editor of the newspaper Izvestia and son-in-law of Khrushchev. He told reporters, "The talks are going well."

Earlier, high diplomatic sources had reported "continued progress" in the talks which began last Monday and a brief communique indicated the treaty-drafting stage had been reached. Observers believed the agreement would be ready for initialling early next week.

The communique said:

"Andrei Gromyko (the Soviet foreign minister), Averell Harriman and Lord Hailsham discussed on July 20 a draft nuclear test ban treaty covering tests in the atmosphere, outer space and under water. Discussions also continued on other matters of mutual interest."

Khrushchev also hinted today that the Sino-Soviet ideological talks might have reached the end. That came when Harriman asked him if he planned to attend the Soviet-American track meet that began here today.

The premier said he could not go to the track meet because "we are giving a dinner for the Chinese delegates tonight." There was immediate speculation the talks had ended and that this was the farewell dinner.

Asked specifically by Canadian Ambassador Arnold Smith whether he was optimistic about a three-power nuclear agreement, Khrushchev replied, "Yes, I think so."

GOVERNORS' MEET

Rockefeller Rights Proposal 'Doomed'

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's effort to put the 55th annual Governors' Conference on record for strong civil rights action appeared marked for defeat today.

The best the New York governor seemed likely to salvage from an effort that appeared to be designed to revive his nose-diving campaign for the 1964 GOP presidential nomination might be a non-conference resolution signed by some Republican and Democratic state executives.

At a news conference in New York yesterday, Rockefeller renewed his charge that Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona could become a "captive candidate" for the nomination unless he rid himself of support by the John Birch Society and others of what he called the radical right.

Rockefeller said the basic issue in the party is not between conservatives and liberals but whether "the extreme right wing is going to infiltrate the party."

Out of a possible conference attendance of about 50 governors—including those of the territories—19 said they intended to vote for, and eight to oppose, in Monday's first business session a change in the conference rules which would require unanimous approval—instead of the present two-thirds majority—for the adoption of any resolution. The rules can be changed by a majority vote of those present.

Rockefeller has proposed a series of resolutions. One of these calls for cooperation by the state executives with President Kennedy in "achieving equal rights and opportunities regardless of race, creed or color." It also would set up a continuing conference committee to police civil rights.

With recognition that the proposed change in the rules would prevent conference action on the Rockefeller proposals, 14 Democratic and five Republican governors said they would support the amendment for unanimity.

They included the Democratic governors of Alabama, California, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Maryland, Missouri, Nebraska, New Jersey, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia and Washington.

The five Republicans included the governors of Arizona, Kansas, Oklahoma, Utah and Wyoming.

Last-Ditch Talks On Rail Strike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz today summoned both sides in the railroad work rules dispute to intensive last-ditch talks in an effort to settle stalemated negotiations and avert legislative action to prevent a nationwide strike.

He announced his move a few hours before the White House made public a report from a special fact-finding committee to President John F. Kennedy who will ask Congress for emergency legislation Monday if there is no settlement.

Wirtz scheduled three conferences late in the day—the first with leaders of the engineers, firemen and enginemen; the second with union spokesmen for the trainmen, conductors and brakemen, and switchmen; and finally with representatives of railroad management.

The cabinet official said the talks could run past midnight and also that a new round of bargaining sessions probably would be held Sunday if there were any signs of a breakthrough.

NWP Files Suit Seeking To Kill Order On Tunnel

New Maneuver Could Cause Building Delay

Northwestern Pacific Railroad has gone to court to try to kill an order to rebuild the Puerto Suello Tunnel and restore rail service to San Rafael and southern Marin County.

On May 22, the Interstate Commerce Commission, Division 3, ordered the company, owned by Southern Pacific Railroad Co., to rebuild the tunnel, and the full ICC refused to rehear the decision.

The tunnel was destroyed by a fire set by two Santa Venetia boys July 20, 1961.

The suit filed yesterday in federal court in San Francisco, will delay a start on rebuilding of the tunnel for at least two months, assuming the U. S. Government wins its case, attorney Boris H. Lakusta said today.

The railroad asked that a special three-judge court be set up to hear the case. Lakusta, who represented the city of San Rafael in the ICC battle to force the railroad to rebuild the tunnel, said the first hearing could come in a month, if the government is quick in filing an answer to the complaint.

A decision might be expected in another month, if there are no delays.

The railroad's only next step, he said, would be a direct appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court, and that no filing with the U. S. Court of Appeals

MARINITE ALMOST STRUCK BY BOMB

Navy Plane Accidentally Drops Bomb On Market Street At Noon

Ralph Simer of Mill Valley was almost smashed by a bomb dropped accidentally on Market Street in San Francisco at 11:50 a.m. yesterday by the United States Navy.

Simer, 31, was standing on the 300 block of Market Street when the 25 pound practice smoke bomb landed 14 feet from him, dug a five inch deep hole in the pavement, ricocheted up to shatter a hole in a seventh floor window of the IBM building and soared three blocks to land harmlessly at the corner of Pine and Liedesdorff streets.

The 14-inch bomb, loaded with sand and gunpowder which did not explode, fell from an attack bomber piloted by Lt. Ralph A. Kiner of Anaheim as the plane returned to Alameda Naval Air Station after a practice raid. The reservist pilot was apparently unaware of his accidental raid, for he landed his plane and boarded a train for Southern California, his two week summer training program finished.

The jet squadron was at 25,000 feet when the bomb dropped, an air station spokesman said.

Robert Cuyler, manager of IBM's Education Center, was gone from his seventh floor office when the bomb shattered his window, spraying glass into the company's THINK sign.

One of the fins of the bomb flew off and struck a Pacific Gas and Electric Co. truck parked near where the bomb made its second landing. PG&E workers eating lunch in the truck were not hurt.

Police and a demolition team from the Presidio removed the bomb to the headquarters of the 87th Ordnance Detachment. The gunpowder, said ordnance technicians, makes a smoke flash to mark the nearness to target.

Rate Hike Is Asked By PT&T

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. made a surprise move yesterday in a hearing before the Public Utilities Commission. The company announced it will ask for a rate increase of at least 23 million dollars a year.

Francis N. Marshall, PT&T attorney, made the announcement at the 37th hearing in the current investigation of the firms rates and practices. He said the increase would reflect wage boosts which may result from labor negotiations now in progress as well as other factors.

In the current hearings, the PUC staff and the company disagree on the PT&T rate of return.

The commission has maintained that the company actually is making a 7.5 per cent rate of return which amounts to 32 million dollars a year. But PT&T has asserted that it is only deriving a 6.38 per cent return.

Novatan Is Suing Tobacco Firm 'For Causing Cancer'

A Novato butcher and his wife sued the American Tobacco Co. for $2,050,000 in federal court in San Francisco yesterday, claiming the man's throat cancer was caused by smoking Lucky Strike cigarettes for 30 years.

Norman Buchanan, 48, of 751 Calle de la Mesa, and his wife, Erna, used two grounds for the action, negligence and breach of warranty.

They said the company was negligent by knowingly putting "unwholesome, deleterious, harmful, irritating and carcinogenic ingredients" in the cigarettes.

The breach of warranty charge states the company "spent millions of dollars advertising Lucky Strike as being non-irritating . . . and, in fact, beneficial to the human body." Buchanan said he bought the cigarettes because of the advertising.

The suit asks one million dollars exemplary and one million dollars punitive damages along with $50,000 for Mrs. Buchanan for "lost services, companionship and consortium."

Attorney Robert W. Plath, San Francisco, who filed the suit, said the case will be the first of its kind based on a breach of warranty charge, if it is allowed to go to trial.

WATER DISTRICT OPEN HOUSE SET

Marin Municipal Water District will host open house at its San Geronimo water treatment plant at 3 p.m. tomorrow (see story in Marin Magazine).

Expecting many visitors to the plant, Capt. Theodore F. Parnow of the California Highway Patrol today cautioned motorists that parking will not be permitted on Sir Francis Drake Highway. Those visiting the plant must park on the water district property or on side roads, he said.

Stassen Might Enter Wisconsin Primary

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Harold Stassen, who tried twice for the Republican nomination for president, has told the Milwaukee Journal he may enter the Wisconsin presidential primary next April.

Stassen, 56, a Philadelphia attorney, wants to test his view that disarmament should be given top priority by the U. S. government.

$7.5-Million Randolph Collier Tunnel Opened

CRESCENT CITY (UPI)—The 7.5-million-dollar Randolph Collier tunnel was to be opened about 35 miles east of here in formal ceremonies today.

California and Oregon State leaders such as Sen. Clair Engle (D-Calif.) and Rep. Donald H. Clausen (R-Crescent City) planned to attend along with a large delegation of the California legislature.

The California Division of Highways said that the 1,835-foot tube eliminates 128 curves, five hairpin switchbacks and a steep grade that climbs 950 feet in four miles on Highway 199 between Crescent City and Grants Pass, Ore. The division of highways said the tunnel would save motorists about 30 minutes driving time.

Construction of the tunnel has been continuing since 1960. It was named after Senator Collier in honor of his lengthy fight for the project in the State Legislature.

Nuclear Plant Study Is Asked

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—A legislative study of proposals to build a number of atomic energy power plants along the California coast was asked yesterday by Assemblyman Alfred E. Alquist (D-San Jose).

Alquist said failure of the State Public Utilities Commission to permit a rehearing on Pacific Gas and Electric Co. proposed Bodega Bay plant "points out the failure to properly consider highest land use and value in the construction of the plants."

Marinites Watch Partial Sun Eclipse

Marinites gathered near telescopes and made pinhole cameras today to watch the partial eclipse of the sun which took place from 12:30 to about 3 p.m.

There was a crowd at the Project 17 recreation site in Mill Valley, where the Marin Astronomical Society set up an eight-inch telescope for safe viewing by the public. The moon covered about a third of the disc of the sun as seen from Marin County.

Ship 'Sinks Like A Stone' —23 Crew Members Lost

QUEBEC CITY, Que. (UPI)—A British ore carrier sank "like a stone" in the St. Lawrence River early today after colliding in a fog with a smaller British freighter, with an apparent loss of 23 of the 40 men aboard.

Provincial police said 17 survivors were rescued from the waters of the St. Lawrence 40 miles east of here after the sinking of the 527-foot Tritonica. Seven of the crew, which was predominantly Chinese, were brought to a hospital here.

Rescue craft and a British freighter reported recovering 16 bodies by mid-day, leaving seven crewmen unaccounted for.

The 12,863-ton Tritonica collided with the 454-foot, 6,153-ton Roonagh head-on at 3 a.m. Police said the British-officered Tritonica "sank like a stone" within minutes, giving few of the sleeping crewmen a chance to escape.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Glenn Says No Politics Now

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lt. Col. John H. Glenn Jr. says he is not about to toss his astronaut's helmet into the political ring—at least not now.

Said Glenn: "I am . . . unwilling to categorically state that I will not do anything in the future, and that includes business, the Marine Corps, NASA, politics, or any other kind of endeavor that might be a possibility."

Glenn called a news conference yesterday seeking to put at rest rumors he might run for the Senate in his native Ohio next year, perhaps against Sen. Stephen M. Young, a Democrat.

"That I was being considered as a candidate for the Senate by persons unknown was as much news to me as it was to anyone," Glenn said.

"I have no political party affiliation and have always considered myself an independent," he said.

West Given Red Spies' Named

BERLIN (UPI) — An East German secret police sergeant major has fled to West Berlin and given American officials the names of Communist agents operating here, it was disclosed today.

The "state security service" soldier, identified as Herbert Rockstroh, 31, made his escape June 28. It was announced by West Berlin police today.

Informed sources said he brought with him a list of names of Red spies working in West Berlin. They said information given by Rockstroh may lead to the arrest of 40 to 50 Communist agents.

Confessed Killer Gets Death

RENO (UPI) — Lester E. Morford III, confessed killer who based his defense partly on the fact he was under the effects of glue-sniffing, today faced death in the Nevada gas chamber.

A three-judge panel deliberated three hours yesterday before bringing in the verdict of first degree murder and death against the itinerant 19-year-old ranch hand from Santa Rosa.

During the five-day trial, the judges had heard a confession in which Morford admitted fatally shooting Jack Foster, 23, of Medford, Ore., and then twice raping Foster's bride of two days.

Christopher Christened

HYANNIS, Mass. (UPI)—President John F. Kennedy flew to Cape Cod from Washington late yesterday with Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, whose eighth child, Christopher George, was christened at St. Francis Xavier Roman Catholic Church here.

They watched the christening with a multitude of relatives and friends, including the president's daughter, Caroline, and more than a dozen other children. Richard Cardinal Cushing presided.

Bowles In India

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Chester Bowles yesterday presented his credentials as U.S. ambassador to Indian President Dr. S. Radhakrishnan.

Bowles is returning to the post he held under the Truman administration, replacing John Kenneth Galbraith, who served here two years on leave from Harvard.

Tragic Viet Mistake

SAIGON (UPI)—One U.S. airman was killed and another was wounded in an exchange of fire between two groups of Americans during an alert at Vinh Long air base Thursday night, it was announced today. Each group of airmen apparently mistook the others for Communist raiders.

Ezra Pound Sick

RAPALLO, Italy (AP) — Ezra Pound, expatriate American poet, is convalescing at Rapallo, Italy, after two operations. Pound, 77, recently moved into a villa in the Riviera resort after two months in a clinic. Neither the nature of his illness nor the kind of surgery were disclosed.

Pound has suffered a number of heart attacks in recent years. He once was in a U.S. prison for wartime defense of fascism.

'People-To-People'

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon arrived from Budapest and recommended more people-to-people contacts between Americans and East Europeans.

Nixon, who is on a private tour of Europe with his family that included a three-day visit to Hungary, said people in Eastern European countries are eager for such contact.

The Nixons will leave Tuesday for Berlin.

'Miss Universe' Fete

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Fifteen of the world's most beautiful girls parade before the watchful eyes of judges and a national television audience tonight in the finals of the 1963 "Miss Universe" contest.

The finals, beginning at 9 p.m. (EST) with a promenade of all 91 girls who participated in the "Miss U.S.A." contest and Miss Universe preliminaries, will be carried on nationwide (CBS) TV from 10 to 1:30 p.m.

Buddhists Freed

SAIGON (UPI) — The government of South Viet Nam removed barricades and police cordons from around pagodas here today and freed 267 Buddhist demonstrators arrested this week in a prelude to possible new negotiations for settling the nation's 10-week religious crisis.

Buddhist leaders, however, still refused to meet with the government as it has requested.

More Italy Quakes

PISA, Italy (UPI)—New quakes shook the French and Italian rivieras today, unnerving tourists and causing further worry for experts checking the tilt on the leaning tower of Pisa.

Cigarette Smoking Blast Challenged

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Recent proposals by the California Department of Public Health to reduce cigarette smoking were challenged yesterday by the president of the Tobacco Institute Inc.

George Allen, in a statement prepared in Washington, D.C., and released here, indicated proposals by Dr. Lester Breslow, chief of the Preventive Medical Services Division for the Public Health Department were based on bias rather than scientific fact. The proposals are to set up stop-smoking clinics and raise taxes and restrictions on cigarettes.

"The tobacco institute and others who work with tobacco share with millions who use tobacco products a concern about questions relating to tobacco use and certain health problems," he said.

"There is a wide dispute among scientists as to the cause of lung cancer and heart disease," he continued. "The proposals by Dr. Breslow, who has been opposed to tobacco for some years, are not justified by current scientific knowledge."

Dr. Breslow's report had stated that "it is clear that cigarette smoking exerts a profoundly harmful effect on health."

Warrant In Fight

A warrant of arrest was issued yesterday for a Novato husband, who beat his wife in a San Rafael restaurant during a domestic flareup early Tuesday morning.

He is Kenneth Dale Kennedy of 2036 Mill Road, who failed to appear in court yesterday on a battery charge. Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Municipal Court issued the arrest warrant and set bail at $250.

San Rafael police were called to the Griddle Restaurant at 801 Fourth Street about 2 a.m. Tuesday. They found Virginia Kennedy shouting and hitting her husband on the head.

When officers grabbed Mrs. Kennedy, her husband walked up to her and hit her in the face, Officer Gerald Souza reported.

Investigators said the couple had left their four small children at home while they toured the bars from 10 p.m. to after 2 a.m.

Mrs. Kennedy pleaded guilty to disturbing the peace, was sentenced to time served, and was freed Tuesday afternoon. Kennedy was ordered to appear in court yesterday but failed to show up.

Iliad, Odyssey

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The first printed edition of Homer's Iliad and Odyssey has been acquired by the library of the University of California at Los Angeles.

Bishops Released

VIENNA (UPI) — Communist Czechoslovakia today announced the release of three Roman Catholic bishops from prison.

The Czech news agency C.T.K. identified the prelates as Msgr. Josef Hlouch, 61-year-old bishop of Ceske Budejovice (Budweis); Stepan Trochta, 58-year-old bishop of Litomerice; and Msgr. Karel Otcenasek, 43-year-old administrator of Hradec Kralove and titular archbishop of Chersoneso Di Creta.

BROWN SAYS HE SUPPORTS NON-SMOKING

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Gov. Edmund G. Brown, who smokes only an occasional cigar, congratulated yesterday the State Department of Public Health's statement on the dangers of smoking.

Brown told Dr. Lester Breslow and the department its report was "the most forthright statement of the hazards of cigarette smoking."

The report, released yesterday, stated that cigarette smoking was "a severe hazard to health" and announced a program to discourage smoking.

"I will appoint a technical advisory committee to help me plan a long-range program," Brown said. "I intend to lend my support to the department's attempts to warn Californians of the adverse effects of smoking."

Governor Is For Repeal Of Liquor Price Controls

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Gov. Edmund G. Brown says he's for repeal of all liquor price control laws.

"One day the people will ask to throw the whole thing out and I hope I am governor so I can sign the bill," Brown said in an off-hand comment yesterday at a hearing on an unrelated liquor bill.

Under California law, the State Alcoholic Beverage Control Department enforces fair trade prices on liquor, set by the industry. The law also prohibits sale of liquor at less than the wholesale cost plus the retailer's overhead.

A bill to require the retailer to set prices at a fixed percentage over wholesale cost was vetoed by Brown in 1961, and defeated by the legislature this year.

Brown signed a bill by Sen. Hugh M. Burns (D-Fresno) requiring wholesalers to charge interest of 1 per cent of the unpaid balance on beer or liquor not paid for by the 42nd day after delivery to retailers.

Retailers who didn't pay in full by 30 days after delivery, or who don't pay the 1 per cent interest by 30 days after it is levied, would be required to pay cash on future deliveries.

Deputy Coroner's Son Injured In Auto Crash

John Harold Keaton, 16, of 482 Fairway Drive, Novato, son of Deputy Coroner Harold J. Keaton, suffered serious head wounds early today when his car wrapped itself around a utility pole near McNear's Brickyard in East San Rafael.

He was found at 5:45 a.m. by Arthur F. Burr and William W. Brannon, two early morning sportsmen from San Rafael and taken immediately to San Rafael General Hospital. He was reported in satisfactory condition this morning.

San Rafael Police Officer Gerald Souza said young Keaton apparently dozed at the wheel, and his car hit the shoulder of San Pedro Road and went out of control.

The car, a total wreck, left skid marks 138 feet long. Keaton had been going home from a friend's house in China Camp, after getting off the swing shift in a Richmond restaurant where he works.

Knife Lands Two Men In County Jail

A 13-inch bowie knife, a camping hatchet and an argument over a double parked car put Harvey Elliot Groudive of Belvedere and Avery Verne Deaves of Colma in jail at 3:06 a.m. today, suspected of using a weapon in a rude and threatening manner and disturbing the peace.

Groudive, 26, double parked his car at 633 Bridgeway in front of The Kettle cafe in Sausalito around 2 a.m. today, Sausalito police officer Herbert Smith said. On patrol, the policeman found Groudive waving his bowie knife as Joseph E. Foley, 47 Buckley Avenue, Sausalito, attempted to stop an argument between Groudive and Deaves.

Groudive, 55 Bellevue Avenue, Belvedere, told police Deaves, 46, drove up behind him and an argument began because Groudive was double parked, holding up traffic on the narrow street. Someone came at him with a hatchet, Groudive told police.

Smith and reserve officer Paul Stansky found a hatchet in Deaves' car and arrested the two men. Foley, a patron at The Kettle, said he saw Groudive with the knife and went outside to stop him.

Rod, Gun Club Won't Oppose Rocket Tests

Members of the Marin Rod and Gun Club agreed last night not to oppose the start of a rocket launcher testing in the bay near Sisters islands off San Pedro Point, but said the operation "must be watched closely."

If there is any damage to fish resources, the testing should be stopped immediately, said Paul Ware, club secretary.

He explained that the club's decision follows the recommendation of the Fish and Game Commission.

Aerojet-General proposed the tests at the Sisters islands after their plans for testing near Angel Island brought widespread protests.

Mill Valley Boy Hurt As Bicycle Hits Auto

Mark Bradley Simmonds, 11, of 378 Sunset Way, Mill Valley, suffered minor injuries at 7:20 p.m. yesterday when his bicycle collided with a car at Pine Hill and Highway 1, Tamalpais Valley.

The California Highway Patrol reported that Mark suffered a cut left arm and was treated at home.

More than 75,000 specimens of money are on display at the Chase-Manhattan Museum of Monies of the World in New York City.

Terra Linda Pool Deep End Shut—Murky Water

The deep end of the Terra Linda High School pool was shut down for a day this week by the Marin County Sanitation Department because of water so murky the bottom couldn't be seen.

"I asked them to close down the deep end Wednesday," said Low Chan, county sanitary inspector. "By Thursday they had fixed the chlorinator and the heater and washed the filters. The murky condition was gone, and I opened that end of the pool gain."

Chan said the murky condition is usually caused by a heavy growth of algae but that he had not taken slides to determine if algae did cause this murkiness.

In February Charles L. Condrotte, business manager of San Rafael schools, told the San Rafael School Board of Education the pool, despite $3,000 to correct original work done on it, "is far from operating in a satisfactory manner."

Recirculation of water is not uniform, he said, and gauges indicate a back pressure exists in the lines. "This results in poor filtering, cleaning and appearance of the water."

The much disputed pool was the subject of an arbitration panel in 1961 after the original contractor, Max D. Schenk, said bad design caused faults in the pool. Architect Carl F. Gromme said Schenk's faulty construction work caused the flaws.

Condrotte has recommended that legal steps be taken against Schenk to recover some $3,000 in additional expenses.

Petaluman Faces Attack Charges

A Petaluma bartender-landscape gardener, accused of raping a 20-year-old San Rafael woman on July 1, is scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court Monday afternoon.

He is James Alfred Tellez, 26, who was arrested by San Rafael police on a complaint by the woman. He appeared yesterday before Judge Joseph Wilson and asked for the public defender to defend him.

The woman is separated from her husband. She told police she had dated Tellez several times. On the morning of July 1, she said she invited him in for a cup of coffee after a

Teen Boys Walk Away From Blast

Two teen-age boys blew the front off a telephone in a booth in front of the Ross Police Department Thursday and nonchalantly walked off without being stopped, a witness to the explosion said today.

A Ross housewife, who said she feared retaliation from the boys if her name was used, said she was reading in her car near the police station around 6:25 p.m., waiting for her commuter husband.

She saw the boys walk past, she said, and moments later heard the slam of the phone booth's door. She turned to see one of the boys running off. As the explosion sounded, she said, he turned around and smiled, then "nonchalantly" joined his friend and strolled off up Lagunitas Road.

Although the boys kept glancing back at the police station, no one followed them, said the woman. At the Ross School, she said, a dark blue car stopped and picked them up.

The witness didn't follow them, she said, because she was alone. She notified the fireman, who called Police Officer Alexander Mendoza, on patrol. By the time he arrived, the car was gone.

Police Chief Joseph Regoni said today the boys evidently put a "cherry bomb, like a firecracker, only stronger," in the coin release. The front of the telephone was blown off, he said, but no damage was done to the booth.

An all-points police bulletin sent out at 6:43 p.m. did not mention a third occupant in the sedan.

would be needed. If that court refuses to hear the matter, the suit is ended, but otherwise, Lakusta said, the case could drag on for a year or more.

The suit claims the ICC Division 3 finding in effect confiscates rail property by forcing NWP to rebuild the tunnel to maintain a losing proposition. The company says such a decision violated the due process of law provision of the U. S. Constitution.

It also lists 49 specific complaints about the ICC findings, including the findings the shippers would be hurt by having to rely on truck and Atcheson, Topeka and Santa Fe service.

The railroad has estimated the cost of rebuilding the tunnel at $851,000, and says the prospects of future rail service would not warrant the expense. The railroad now diverts traffic for other California and interstate points at Schellville in Sonoma County.

The ICC decision stated that revenue figures from before the fire indicated the need for the service was not decreasing in the area, and that the company could expect to make a profit.

Fairfax Family Injured In Crash

Three members of the Phillip Marnell family of Fairfax were treated at Marin General Hospital yesterday for cuts and bruises they received when their car rolled over on Pine Drive in Fairfax.

Fairfax police, who said the accident occurred at 7:10 p.m. yesterday, were investigating how it happened.

Marnell, 28, was released from the hospital after treatment for a bruised chest. His wife, Sandra, 26, was released after treatment for multiple cuts, and a son, Timothy, eight months, was treated for a cut left cheek, then released. Also in the car but not injured were two other sons, Phillip Jr., 4, and Eric, 3. The family lives at 141 Domingo Avenue, Fairfax.

Junior Horsemen Win Prizes

Junior horsemen from Marin captured several top prizes last night at the Blue Ribbon horse show at Sonoma County Fair in Santa Rosa.

The horse show will continue today and tomorrow, and the fair itself will be open for another week at the Sonoma County fairgrounds.

Big winner last night was Jo Annie Shaw of San Anselmo. She took a first in the junior jumpers 17 and under, and also copped two seconds and a third in other events.

Other Marin winners included:

Marlene Christie of Novato, first in Western pleasure event for 17 and under, and a second in Western equitation; Steve Garretson of San Anselmo, first in Western equitation; Diana Lopes of Mill Valley, second; Cynthia Stuart of Mill Valley, second; Kirby Bobo of Novato, third; and Richard Villa of Novato, third.

3 Passengers Hurt In Crash In Waldo Tunnel

Three passengers suffered minor injuries when the car in which they were riding struck the rear of a stopped car in the Waldo Tunnel at 5:20 p.m. yesterday.

The driver, Estel A. Bay, 60, of Ashland, Ore., told California Highway Patrol Officers, he didn't expect traffic to be stopped in the tunnel.

Treated at Marin General Hospital and released were Foes Bay, 63, of Ashland, who suffered a nose bleed and lip injury; Maggie Bay, 70, of Garnett, Kan., pain in leg, neck and shoulder, and Jack Bay, 72, cut lower lip and scraped leg.

Bay's car struck the rear of a car driven by John Day of 11 South Knoll, Mill Valley, who had stopped for traffic.

Kent Woodlands Couple To Be Welcomed At Dinner

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

Honoring the Sam Lesters Mr. and Mrs. George Schirmer are giving an al fresco dinner party tomorrow in the cabana beside the pool in their Kent Woodlands home. The Lesters have just returned from Europe, this was part of an around the world tour presented to Sam by the Southern California Cadillac dealers on his retirement in 1961.

Last year the Lesters went to the Far East. Sam was general manager for General Motors first in San Francisco and then in Southern California. When he was in San Francisco, he and his wife had a home in Kent Woodlands, which they sold. They are now in the new house they have built in Kent Woodlands.

The Lesters sailed to Copenhagen on the Bergenfjord. Most of the continent they toured in a car with a chauffeur driving. They traveled through Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Luxemburg, Germany, France, England and Ireland. They returned to Paris. They had been in Italy, Spain and Portugal before and went back to England to board the Queen Elizabeth at Southampton to cross the Atlantic. Covers will be laid for 18 at the dinner tomorrow.

On Wednesday Lorraine Schirmer is giving a luncheon and bridge party on the deck of her home.

MRS. THOMAS E. WELSH is giving a tea Monday at her Tiburon home honoring her sister, Mrs. Warren S. Figg of Richland, Wash. Mrs. Figg with her children, Mike and Janet, will be the houseguests of Mr. and Mrs. Welsh for a week.

Mr. and Mrs. Welsh, who formerly lived near Atwater in the San Joaquin Valley, recently moved to Tiburon. Mrs. Welsh is a descendant of early Californians. Her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Atkins (of the firm of Roos-Atkins) lived in San Francisco. San Rafael was the home of her great grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George White.

A BOHEMIAN GROVE WIDOW, Mrs. Walter Baird of San Rafael and her two daughters, Judy, a senior at San Rafael High School, and Kathleen, who will be a junior at SRHS, leave Monday. They are driving to Santa Barbara and then south to Disneyland. Walter is spending all of the weekends at Bohemian Grove encampment.

Madame Amelia Faustini, on the staff of the music department at Dominican College, and her granddaughter, Donelle Rathbone, whose mother Mrs. John Nysven recently moved from San Francisco to San Anselmo, leave tomorrow by train for New York. Madame Faustini wants to see the new Lincoln Center in New York, a center for the performing arts, and the Eastman School of Music in Rochester. She and Donelle will also visit many places of historical interest after sightseeing in New York. They'll go to Washington, D. C., and Virginia, returning to New York to board the train so they will be home in plenty of time for the opening of the fall term at Dominican Sept. 11.

JUDGE JORDAN L. MARTINELLI of San Rafael and his wife have returned from Europe. They went first to Portugal and were delighted with Estoril, the Portuguese Riviera. They were also a long time in Madrid, went to Majorca and saw the birthplace of Father Junipero Serra in Palma. The Martinellis flew to Copenhagen, toured Denmark and then went to Oslo, Norway and then to Bergen where they boarded the SS Meteor for a two weeks cruise through the fjords to North Cape in the Arctic Circle. On return to Bergen Judge and Mrs. Martinelli boarded a plane for England and made the polar flight from London to San Francisco.

THE GARRETT BROTHERS, Larry, 20, Jim, 19 and Dan, 17, write their parents, Dr. and Mrs. Lawrence Garrett of San Rafael they are having a marvelous time on their European trip. They will be home about Sept. 4 and all of the trio will attend the University of California at Davis.

The young Garretts are now in Madrid. They are going to Majorca and on to Italy, Switzerland, Austria, Germany and Holland. They have already been in England and France and will sail from Holland to New York and fly back to California from there.

BRUCE EASOM of San Rafael, who was a member of the crew of the Orient, winner of the Class A Crown in the Transpacific Yacht Race, was greeted by his wife when the Orient berthed at Ala Moana Yacht Harbor Tuesday where families and guests were allowed aboard. Many of the wives, including Mrs. Timothy Moseley, whose husband piloted the yacht to Hawaii, flew over to greet the captain and his crew when the Orient came into port. Another member of the Orient crew was Eugene Vigno of Tiburon. He was greeted in Hawaii by his wife and daughters, Connie and Sylvia. The wives are remaining in Hawaii until the middle of next week and will attend the trophy presentation dinner at the Royal Hawaiian Hotel in Honolulu Monday.

ITALIAN INSPIRATION

Sally Victor showed the influence of her recent Italian trip in this design from her fall collection. She says it was inspired by the heroes of the Italian novel, The Leopard. The bright mustard suede hat is modeled by Ann Margaret and features a contrast of wide buckled band done in dark burgundy suede. (UPI photo)

Engagement News For Sandra Corsen

Engagement of Sandra Corsen and William Daniels has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Corsen of Mill Valley. The news was revealed at a recent informal gathering of relatives and friends in the Corsen home.

William's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Daniels of Mill Valley.

The bride-elect was graduated from Tamalpais High School and is attending the College of Marin. She is the sister of Frederic Corsen of Mill Valley and the granddaughter of Mrs. Henry Coorssen and the late Mr. Coorssen of San Francisco and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Pasquale Gelardi of San Francisco.

A graduate of Tamalpais High School in 1961, the future bridegroom is serving in the U.S. Air Force and is stationed in Okinawa. He is the brother of Stephen and Richard Daniels of Mill Valley and the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. John Daniels of Washington and William Miller and the late Mrs. Miller of Placerville.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Clanking Beads Spell Finale To Italian Fashion Showings

FLORENCE, Italy (UPI)—The Italian fall-winter high fashion shows ended here to the tinkling of beads the size of lemon drops.

Schuberth beaded his evening dresses until they made ladylike tinkling and clanking noises as the models paraded them through the Pitti Palace. A short yellow and white fitted sheath was hung from neck to hem with beads the size of lemon drops.

HE SHOWED ANOTHER figure-conscious outfit in jet embroidered black lace. It was shown with a matching stole, fringed and beaded. When the model slipped the stole off her shoulders the fringe hit the carpeted runway with an audible thud.

Schuberth's evening clothes had a Spanish accent. Black was the predominant color, stoles were worn mantilla style over the head and little matador capes furled from the backs of cocktail dresses.

SCHUBERTH SHOWED a double pyramid coat dress of Pharoah proportions. The top pyramid fell to wrist length in black broadtail, the lower one was in white silk. Both were topped by a small, round collar.

The Mingolini-Guggenheim collection showed a marked preference for gem colors like topaz, amethyst and ruby. Asymetrical details were a trademark.

A long jacketed champagne brocade theater suit had a neat pair of lapels—only one of them was tucked over on the left shoulder.

THE SAME DESIGNER presented a velvet ball gown in glowing ruby velvet. The blue, ruby and white bead encrusted bands that decorated the bodice were set at angles for an off-center effect.

CHIC IN BULK

Chic lines fit the feminine figure in bulk form with this three-piece ensemble from the fall 1963 collection by Monte-Sano and Puzan of New York. The heavy ginger and white tweed Anglo fabric, of orlon acrylic and wool, is fashioned with simplicity in a jacket, matching overblouse and slender skirt. (UPI photo)

Shorts Go To Any Length, So Choose Most Becoming

By EUNICE FARMER

"There are so many different lengths of shorts that when they are advertised or sketched on patterns, I'm never sure which length they will turn out to be. Can you give us some idea of the correct length of the various types of shorts?"—Mrs. V.M.

Dear Mrs. V.M.:

There probably are more acceptable lengths than you ever dreamed. How wonderful that we can all choose the length most becoming to our legs.

Summer is a great time for sewing—especially if you have some Summer Fun Sewing ideas. I will suggest some ideas for you, starting with this popular one-piece skirt-shorts combination.

This is a pair of shorts with a skirt attached at the waistband but slashed almost to the waist for freedom of action with a "covered up look."

1. Make shorts to fit. However do not insert a slide fastener. They should be left open seven inches below the waistband at the center back seam.

2. Make a slim skirt, preferably with darts at front and back. See cutting notes before cutting your skirt.

3. Sew side seams together about five inches below waistline. Fold back extensions on side seams and hem by hand.

4. Insert the slide fastener at the center back of your skirt.

5. Pin the skirt over the shorts, matching the waistline, and baste together. The raw edges of the shorts opening at the center back may be hand whipped to the fastener tape of the skirt.

6. Apply a waistband (remember, the two have been basted together first). Presto, you're finished and you have one of the neatest and most practical sports wear ensembles yet devised.

"When sewing with plastics or any slick, smooth material, the teeth on the machine bunch up the plastic. You can prevent this if you will dampen a piece of cloth with machine oil and rub it on the smooth surface as you stitch, and presto, your material will move along like magic."

This tip by Mrs. Albert Gilbert, North Miami Beach, Fla., wins for her this week's tailor trix pressing board award.

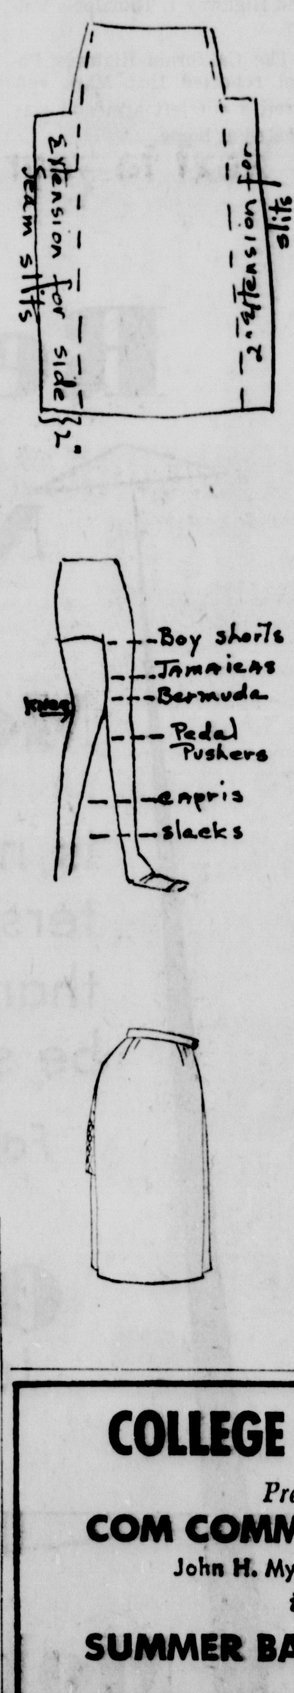
"Can you tell me what angle you cut the sleeve of a man's shirt when you make it into short sleeves? Mine usually seem to be cut on the bias and won't lay flat."—Mrs. V.T.

Dear Mrs. V.T.:

I think you will find that all patterns for men's and boy's sleeves, both short and long, are cut with the lower end of the sleeve perfectly straight. Since the sleeve is cut on the lengthwise grain of the fabric, the lower edge would be the cross-grain. To cut your sleeves straight, pull threads as you do when straightening your fabric.

Mrs. M.A.J. says: A cute and practical idea for a mending basket. Decorate an old wicker doll buggy by painting, then pasting on designs in felt, etc. Keep all your mending and sewing supplies in it and it's so easy to move about wherever you will have a few minutes time while watching television, on the patio, or even in the kitchen while keeping an eye on cooking. You'll find yourself actually getting caught up.

Your sewing glossary: Saddle stitching. This is a decorative finish to the outer edges of a garment. It is a running stitch and can be made with embroidery floss in a contrasting color. Stitches can vary in size depending on the effect you wish.



Remove Stain

Soak or sponge a milk stain with cold water before trying to remove it from a washable fabric. Then, using your fingers, rub a liquid detergent into the fabric. Wash the garment in the usual way.

Leaders Meet For Crusade Drive Plans

Marin City leaders gathered Tuesday to discuss the United Bay Area Crusade residential division with the Marin City chairman, Mrs. Leon Johnson of Marin City; Mrs. Robert Kettenbach, UBAC residential division chairman, and Mrs. Arthur Collbran, co-chairman, both of Belvedere.

The Council of Community Services sponsored the gathering at the Marin City Lounge. Those attending included Mesdames Theodore Barron, Art Brown, Samuel Banks, Jacqueline Smith, Hunter Sterne and Milton Hendrix and Miss Florence Scott and Mr. Frederic Kerr.

Novato Church Planning Visit

Margaret Johnstone Bride In Inverness

Margaret Leale Johnstone and Larry Lee Kreutzkampf, both of Santa Barbara, were married Saturday at St. Columba's Church in Inverness.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alan Bruce Johnstone of Inverness and Rochester, N. Y. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kreutzkampf of Santa Barbara.

The Rev. Edward Ray of Santa Barbara officiated at the double ring rite performed at 2 p.m. with the bride given in marriage by her father.

She recited her vows wearing a traditional floor length gown of antique taffeta. Her attendants were Mary Ann Woodland of Washington, D. C., maid of honor; Susan and Judith Johnstone of Rochester, the bride's twin sisters, and Judith Kreutzkamp of Santa Barbara, the bridegroom's sister, bridesmaids. They wore nile green taffeta sheaths with organza overskirts.

Fred Fields of Santa Barbara was best man, and ushering were David Kreutzkampf of Santa Barbara, the bridegroom's brother; Kenneth Johnstone of Sitka, Alaska, the bride's brother; and Timothy Arnold of San Jose, the bridegroom's brother-in-law.

After a reception at Inverness Lodge following the ceremony the couple left for a week's honeymoon at Yosemite. After July 21 they will live in Santa Barbara.

The bride was graduated from the University of California at Santa Barbara in 1962 and is employed in Santa Barbara. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Johnstone of Inverness and Mr. and Mrs. William Beard of Kansas City, Mo. Her aunt is Mrs. Philip A. Crane of Kentfield.

The bridegroom was graduated from high school in Santa Barbara and attended Santa Barbara City College. He is employed with his father in the contracting business in Santa Barbara.

Before the wedding Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Johnstone hosted the rehearsal dinner at Drake's Arms in Inverness.

If We Forgot What Week It Was, Moscow Did Not

Did you know that this has been "Captive Nations Week"?

Most of us weren't even aware of it.

But those of us acquainted with refugees from Albania, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Estonia, Hungary, Latvia, Lithuania, Poland and Romania observe that it means a lot to them.

Refugee leaders of those countries comprise the Assembly of Captive European Nations.

Their native lands all have been ground beneath the Russian communist heel.

By resolution of the United States Senate in 1959, the third week of July each year is observed in our country as Captive Nations Week. And on this occasion the Assembly asks "Western Powers to voice and demonstrate by meaningful political action their vital stake in the freedom of the Eastern half of Europe."

While not many of us are aware here that Captive Nations Week is being observed, it is well and painfully known in Moscow. In fact, some of our State Department people who seek closer accord with Russia feel that our observance of this occasion tends to infuriate the Russians and make agreements harder to achieve.

The Assembly asks that we "raise in all high-level conferences with the rulers of the Soviet Union the issue of the restoration of the right of self-determination to the peoples of" the captive nations.

This right of self-determination is something, of course, that the Communists cannot live with.

We in the U.S.A. know it better as the idea of "the consent of the governed."

Supreme Court Justice Douglas has, on occasion, pointed this out, observing that in the international contest for men's minds which finds the Western Powers competing with the Communists "the consent of the governed" is a powerful ideological weapon on our side.

We use it entirely too little, if at all.

We ought to keep hammering away at it.

And we ought to begin by doing as the Assembly of Captive European Nations suggests — demanding before the U.N. and in all high-level conferences with the Kremlin that the right of self-determination be restored in Eastern Europe and elsewhere, including Cuba.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BETTER THAN ANY BOUQUET—the eternal floral wreath of Marin County's love—to the late Walter R. Castro.

A BRICKBAT to those responsible for inadequately perforated Golden Gate Bridge commute tickets. Just try to obey the fine print and tear out your ticket in readiness for the toll collector — you need both hands, with automatic gyro-steering!

A BOUQUET for supervisors who overruled Marin Planners' technically (but not humanly) justified denial of permission for a Tamalpais Valley woman to continue beauty operations in her home after eight years of earning her living in a way approved by her neighbors.

A BOUQUET to the unidentified person who used mouth-to-mouth breathing to revive a nearly drowned seven-year-old Mill Valley girl pulled out of a Sausalito pool.

A BRICKBAT to the San Rafael doughnut shop operator who ordered three blind men and their guide dogs out after, an I-J employee avers, an alleged "disturbance" consisted of one of the dogs getting his paw stepped on.

A BOUQUET to board and administration of Tamalpais Union High School District for following their 1961 bond issue budget so faithfully. Now coming to the end of construction-expansion, they have $608,195 unspent and still must buy a new school site estimated to cost $604,100. That's close!

THE LIGHTER SIDE

With A Billion Bucks, You Could Buy 500,000 Cars

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It seems like only yesterday, or maybe last Tuesday, that kindly statisticians were trying to help us understand a million dollars.

It was commonly supposed that a million dollars was too large a sum for us to comprehend all by ourselves, so these statisticians would undertake to explain it in terms we could grasp.

I don't recall the exact dimensions of a million dollars, but the analogies they used went something like this:

A MILLION DOLLARS laid end to end would reach from Hominy Falls, W. Va. to Grit, Tex., or if placed one on top of the other would form a stack five miles higher than a giraffe on tiptoes.

I'm sure they meant well, but frankly, these comparisons were never of much help to me in comprehending a million bucks.

Whenever I tried to get a mental picture of dollar bills stretched out from Hominy Falls to Grit, my mind would take a wrong turn on the outskirts of Chili, Wis.

Perhaps if they had used $5 bills, or had placed the dollar bills side by side rather than end to end, I could have grasped it, But I doubt it.

AT ANY RATE, I have gone through life without having a very firm concept of a million dollars. And now I learn that I am hopelessly behind the times.

In a press release issued this week, Rep. Thomas M. Pelly, a Washington Republican and statistician, endeavors to help us understand a billion dollars.

Apparently someone raised the ante while I was trying to find my way back from Hominy Falls.

Pelly wrote that no one "is capable of conveying in ordinary, simple and understandable and graphic words just how immense, how almost unmeasurably vast is a billion dollars."

Nevertheless, this did not deter him from giving it a go.

As one illustration, Pelly noted that "with one billion dollars you could buy 500,000 new automobiles each costing $2,000."

MAYBE SO, but you would need an awfully big garage.

"Placed bumper to bumper these cars would extend 1,562 miles, about the distance from Cleveland, Ohio, to Salt Lake City, Utah," Pelly continued.

On that point, at least, he speaks in my language. I can readily visualize a traffic jam stretching from Ohio to Utah even if I can't envision a million dollars end to end.

"One billion dollars in dollar bills would cover a building lot that is 51 feet wide and 219 feet long — a little more than a quarter acre — to a depth of 3 feet 7 inches," Pelly added.

That might not be a bad idea. We could use it as a parking lot for some of those 500,000 cars.

A TEEN-AGER WHO MADE GOOD

A Serbian shepherd boy, Michael Pupin, became one of America's outstanding physicists and inventors because of his great faith and determination.

His book, "From Immigrant to Inventor," won a Pulitzer Prize in 1924. And his work did much to widen the range of wireless telegraphy, the long-distance telephone, and X-ray photography, before his death in 1935.

When Pupin arrived in the United States in 1874 at the age of 16 with only 5c in his pocket, immigration officers nearly turned him away lest he become a public charge.

But the eager teen-ager claimed that he was not really poor. He told authorities his parents had impressed on him that he was rich in his love of God and people.

When finally admitted into the country, he wasted no time in preparing himself to be a useful citizen. He applied himself diligently to his studies, and strove to help people "see the presence of God in the wonders of nature and science." H was as devout as he was learned.

Strive to help your fellow man share in God's wonders and you, too, will lead a challenging, worthwhile life.

"Wisdom is better than corals, and no choice possessions can compare with her." (Proverbs 8:11)

Let me reflect Your glory in the way I live, O Lord.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Emotion And Communism

EDITOR,
Independent-Journal:

I've been scratching my head this bright sunshiny morn over our wonderful leader Max Rafferty's statements July 12 in Santa Clara in which he announced plans for a "new" high school economics course that will "unemotionally teach how rotten Communism is."

"Emotion," he says, "is not needed to teach how rotten Communism is."

I'm glad we have such a level-headed fellow to head up our great California Education System. And one who, at the same time, watches out for the public morals, too. Look at the way he protects us from that awful Dictionary of American Slang! "It's a dirty book," he says, and "to put such a thing in the hands of children is to prostitute everything we have done."

Besides, as he points out in the same breath, it's a waste of time, and besides, in our unemotional battle against communism, "we cannot waste time on pornography."

And he's not the only one who feels this way. I see here, that on the same day another one of our great leaders, Malinovsky, feels the same way. "Vulgar jargon," he calls it, and this great leader even took time out to answer a poor little private's letter suggesting that a "law be introduced to ban bad language."

"These dirty words are just like a box on the ears," Malinovsky says. And he, personally, would be willing to back "a decisive struggle against this shocking survival of the past."

I guess I'm glad we have such glorious leaders. Hey—wait a second, I see Malinovsky is not one of our leaders after all! No, it says here that this fellow is really Soviet Defense Minister—so he must be living under that rotten Communism. Hmm, I wonder—

Oh, it's all right after all, because Commissar of Education Rafferty says he really deplores a "cold-blooded, analytical approach" to patriotism. He explains it all, now I see: "There is nothing logical or analytical about love and patriotism, whether we like it or not, is nothing but love."

20 YEARS AGO

Conversion of the old Gordon's Opera House in San Rafael into an apartment building was mourned as removal of a link with pioneer days in Marin County. It dated back 70 years to construction by U. M. Gordon, banker, soon after the 1906 quake which caused it to be given heavy buttressed walls.

TRY AND STOP ME

BENNETT CERF

Cassius Marcellus Clay, the most articulate if not yet the most accomplished heavyweight boxer of his time, had the audacity to tell Champion Sonny Liston recently to his face, "You ain't so hot." Liston replied, "I could leave both legs at home and beat you." Time will tell. Meanwhile, Clay writes poetry, plays up to the crowds, and tootles around the country in a tomato-red luxury car. When he becomes champion, he promises, he will resume his real personality, and seek a mate who "just loves me for what I am."

Clay has a genuine sense of humor. He attended one bout where the favorite failed to land one solid punch for eight rounds. Before the ninth round started, Clay shouted to him, "Don't quit now, boy! You've got a no-hitter going!"

Ho For The Idle Life, Aside (Nach) From Fighting Bass And Ivy

THIS YEAR'S VACATION is going to be different.

Today we work as usual; tomorrow morning we get up and find ourselves free as a bird—no plane or train tickets, no road maps, no motel reservations. Just a lazy life of a drifter for three whole weeks.

Just fill up the gas tank and lunch basket and an overnight kit and head for the open road, and let the moment's fancy be the guide.

Who knows where we'll end up.

HERE ARE some possibilities: Try a few casts at Richmond-San Rafael Bridge to see if the bass are nibbling.

If not there, try Strawberry Point near the seminary, or the county's new Paradise Park near Tiburon. Or take a boat out of China Camp or Joe's Landing and try the Hamilton flats.

If the fish aren't nibbling, drop in at McNear's Beach for a swim, snack and suntan instead. Most high school pools are also open for public swimming, if you don't mind a hundred screaming youngsters kicking water in your face.

FOR OCEAN swimming probably the best spot is Tomales Bay State Park. The last time we were there, they had a life guard and an area roped off for safe bathing. The water there is as warm as you can find anywhere in Marin.

Beaches like Stinson, Muir and Drake are good for picnics; so is Camp Taylor State Park. McClure's Beach at the end of Pierce Point Road is a bit out of the way. Besides, you've got to park your car and walk a half mile down a narrow, treeless trail to the beach. And the parking area has been the scene of too much vandalism lately.

MAYBE A TRIP to Angel Island, or get lost in the trails of Mount Tam.

Three weeks as a drifter will probably make us long for the bustle of the courthouse and police beat again.

Like Deputy Dist. Atty. Don Paterson, working in his office one afternoon, suddenly perking up his ears. From the county jail downstairs came sounds of commotion, and shouts of: "Guards! Call the guards! They're breaking out!"

Alarmed, Patersen calls the jailers, who rush into the cells. Inside, the inmates sat in a circle, enjoying a prison-riot film on TV.

A GENTLEMAN from the city moves into retirement in Woodacre, buys a brand new mailbox, stencils his name, and sets it up in front of his house. He waits expectantly for mail—two days, a week, two weeks.

Finally in exasperation, he corners Deputy Sheriff Joe Kendricks: "I cannot understand," says he. "I put up brand new mail box, wait and wait, but no mail. Whatsa matter this town?"

It was heartbreaking to tell the old gent. But Kendricks had to. They don't deliver mail in Woodacre. You have to go to the post office.

A distinguished looking character gets nailed for drunk driving last Thursday. Jailers' eyes pop as they take custody of his possessions — $81,000 in stocks, securities, and checks. The man bailed out immediately.

POINT REYES Constable Bill Christensen rushes in to referee a domestic battle on Nob Hill Road. He gingerly steps into the home, littered with broken dishes and overturned furniture, but the couple is so busy tossing dishes and invectives, they don't even see the officer.

Christensen's laconic report concludes with: "I finally calmed them down, suggesting they use paper plates hereafter as their crockery upkeep must be extremely high."

Interesting county we have here, always something doing. See you in three weeks!

THE ALLEN-SCOTT REPORT

U.S. Students In Cuba Facing Crackdowns

WASHINGTON—A double-barreled crackdown is now definitely in the cards for the 58 U. S. students junketing in Cuba as the all-expenses-paid guests of the Communist-ruled Castro regime.

Both the Justice Department and House Un-American Activities Committees are set to take the following action:

A special grand jury will grill the students on charges they violated the travel control law (Title 8, U. S. Code) and State Department regulations. Subpoenas are ready to be served as they return. The first group is expected around Aug. 3.

The Un-American Activities Committee will conduct a thorough investigation of who organized and financed this trip and why. The House probers have ascertained that a mysterious Canadian, known only as "Jacobs," put up $30,000 in cash to pay the fares of the junketeers. British and Dutch airlines flew them to Czechoslavakia where they transferred to a Cuban plane for the trip to Havana.

The House probers estimate the total cost of this junket at around $200,000.

PURPOSE OF summoning the students before a special grand jury is to procure indictments. But Justice and State Department authorities are split on how drastic such prosecution should be.

The Justice Department's Criminal Division is urging an across-the-board crackdown to discourage other adventures of this kind.

But State Department officials are arguing against indicting all these students on the ground of "possible adverse publicity." Why it should be unfavorable is not known. The department advocates indicting only "the leaders."

Penalty for this offense is a maximum fine of $5,000, imprisonment up to five years, or both.

THE LEADER—Levi Laub, who lists himself as a Columbia University student, apparently is the top leader of these Castro guests.

According to a Havana interview, in the hands of the Un-American Activities Committee, Laub describes himself as the prime mover in organizing this tour. He claims a committee was set up for this purpose in October 1962, "one afternoon when students from Columbia University, New York University, CCNY, and the country college, all located in New York City, met to talk about Cuba and the treatment it was getting from the U. S. press."

A week later it was decided to visit Cuba, and remarkably, almost immediately thereafter, "We received a cablegram containing an invitation from the Cuban University Student Federation"—which House investigators charge is Communist-controlled.

IN HIS INTERVIEW, Laub also disclosed that "they" held meetings with students "on university campuses in the San Francisco Bay area, in Michigan and in Wisconsin." They met and talked with more than 500 students. Laub said they paid the expenses connected with these meetings and trips throughout the country.

Approximately 5/7ths of world's 700 million illiterates are concentrated in Asia, Africa and Latin America.

700 MILLION CAN'T READ, WRITE

Growing World Literacy Problem

By FRANCIS STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

In an age when stunning new scientific achievements are occurring almost daily, it seems hard to believe that approximately one-half the world's adults — more than 700 million people—cannot read or write.

And not only that, but the number promises to increase by many more millions as illiterate children in backward areas reach mature ages in the next few years.

In three places, Ghana, the Sudan and Haiti, adult illiteracy is estimated at 90 per cent or more.

In Afghanistan and Pakistan the percentage is around 85 per cent, in Iran 80 per cent and in India 73 per cent.

An estimated 495 million of the world's illiterates are concentrated in Asia, Africa and Latin America.

These figures on one of the world's great problems are cited in a report just issued by a United Nations agency.

The agency, the U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO), presented the report to Secretary General U Thant for consideration by the U.N. General Assembly and the Economic and Social Council.

The report urged that a fund of nearly two billion dollars be expended in a 10-year program for teaching two-thirds of the illiterate adults in Asia, Africa and Latin America to read and write. This would total about 330 million persons.

The report asserted that mass illiteracy acts as a brake upon the advance both of individual countries and of human society as a whole along the path of economic and social progress."

It also said that "universal literacy will make a vital contribution to peace and understanding between peoples and nations."

As an example of how world illiteracy will continue to mount in a staggering fashion unless something is done, the report pointed to the vast numbers of children not now attending school in Africa, the Arab States, Asia and Latin America.

The estimated school-age population was given as a total of 206 million, and the estimated pupil enrollment as 110 million.

Taking into consideration the fact that many now in school will drop out before becoming functionally literate, it was estimated that 150 million more illiterates will be added to the adult population within the next few years.

The U.N. agency acknowledged that there are many problems, other than adequate funds, to be overcome in carrying out a world-wide literacy campaign.

It said that during its survey "reports from all areas showed that although adults may often express the desire to learn to read and write, and although—especially when literacy campaigns are in progress—there is initially an enthusiastic response, attendance at literacy classes often dwindles."

"One factor affecting the will to learn was expressed in the report from Viet Nam, as follows: 'Very poor people with large families who have to work so painfully hard all day for the daily bowl of rice are not much interested in literacy.'"

Of the world's illiterates, Asia is estimated to have 345 millian, Africa 105 million and Latin America 45 million.

More than half of them are women, according to the report.

Under the proposed 10-year, two billion dollar program, it was estimated that the cost of literacy training per person would range from about $5.25 to $7.35, depending on the geographical location.

In the U.N. survey, several countries reported that illiteracy does not constitute a problem for them because it had been reduced to the barest minimum through extensive educational programs during the past years.

These included Australia, Finland, Luxembourg, The Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Romania and Russia.

Cuba claimed to have reduced its number of illiterates from 979,207 to 271,995 within a year through a massive campaign.

Matter Of Getting Money For Water Is Complicated

By EDWIN S. CAPPS

SACRAMENTO (CNS)—One of the problems of taking money from one pocket and putting it in the other is that one of the pockets sometimes gets cut off.

The administration of Gov. Edmund G. Brown may be finding itself in such a predicament in the near future as far as the state's water project is concerned. Perhaps it may be possible to continue to play the financing of the multi-billion-dollar project by ear, as has been the case this far.

Perhaps the federal government may come along to bail out the state. But there's no assurance either course will be successful.

To understand some of the water financing problems, it's necessary to go back some years. The project, then known as the Feather River project, was authorized by the legislature in 1951, with no solid ideas on where the money would be found.

Not too much later, a U. S. Supreme Court decision held that tidelands belonged to the states and California was about to go into the business of collecting rich royalties from the oil off shore from the state. Then Assemblyman Joseph C. Shell worked out the formula for leasing state tidelands.

Along with the procedures for bidding and collection of royalty, the plan also set up a schedule of what to do with the money. So much was allocated for natural resources and beaches and parks, with the balance to go for water development.

Next came another windfall—this time from the California Supreme Court. It ruled that the millions of dollars the city of Long Beach was taking from oil drilling in its harbor was an unlawful gift of public funds because the legislature had granted the tidelands to Long Beach only for harbor and navigation purposes.

After a battle of two years and more, the state settled for half of the revenues from Long Beach oil. Some 160 million dollars was paid to the state and it since has received half of the income from the oil royalties.

For a time, this money was held in an "investment fun," from which loans were made and some capital outlay construction financed. Then in 1959, it became very important to dedicate this money to water development.

Legislation was approved to create the California water fund, taking over the investment fund, and providing for all revenues from tidelands oil royalties, other than those earmarked in the Shell formula for specific uses.

In 1960 a $1,750,000,000 bond issue was approved by the people.

Several months before that election, a team of consultants hired to make studies of the state water project concluded the bond issue funds would not be sufficient to finance the project. Something would have to be left out or delayed —such as Oroville dam.

This was made public a week before the election but, after the plan was approved by the people, no more was heard from it.

That brought the water plan up to the 1963 session of the legislature. There was a water fund and a commitment that most tideland oil revenues would go for water development. There also were two little known clauses in state law. One, approved by the people in 1933, authorized issuance of revenue bonds for the central valley project, which since was built by the federal government.

The second, contained in the 1960 bond act language, provided that, for every $1 of tidelands oil money spent on the state water project as then constituted (the Feather River project) $1 would have to be spent in developing new water. This referred to development in the northwest, on the Eel River.

With this set of circumstances, Governor Brown then announced to the 1963 legislature that plans would be changed. The tidelands oil money, except for 9 million dollars a year, would be dedicated to another resource—education. This was a means to balance the 1963-64 budget without new taxes and live up to the famous no-new-taxes pledge of 1962 election campaign history.

Next came William E. Warne, director of water resources, with a plan to sell 325 million dollars in revenue bonds under the 1933 authorization to help finance the water project—to make up the gap pointed out by the consultants before the 1960 election.

Then the U.S. supreme court came into the picture again, ruling that California must give up 1 million acre feet of water a year it had expected from the Colorado River.

Warne then proposed enlargement of the state water project aqueduct, at a cost of another $300,000, to carry an additional 1 million acre feet a year and make up for the Colorado River loss.

But this would entail early development of the Eel River. And there are only limited funds for Eel River development because this must depend on funds as an offset to tidelands oil money spent on the main water project. The tidelands money for the state water project has been funnelled into education.

East, West Move Closer To Test Ban

U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Events of this week indicated that the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union were moving closer and closer to some sort of ban on nuclear testing.

Khrushchev got the talks started in Moscow in an atmosphere of joviality. Even Gromyko smiled during an exchange of wisecracks with America's Averell Harriman and Britain's Lord Hailsham.

And the Kremlin, in an unusual departure from form, issued a communique to the Russian people which said "progress" was being made in the negotiations.

The West is seeking a complete test ban but is willing to settle for less than that; for instance, an embargo on testing on the ground, under water and beyond the reaches of the atmosphere.

At his press conference this week President John F. Kennedy expressed hope that an agreement could be reached at least on a partial test ban.

Other East-West differences are being discussed in Moscow but no definitive action can be taken on some of them because the United States and Britain would need approval from their NATO allies.

While Khrushchev was warm in dealing with the West he was colder than a deep freezer in his relations with his estranged ally, Red China.

Khrushchev told the Chinese, who oppose his peaceful coexistence policies and demand his removal as their price for continued comradeship, that they don't have a "Chinaman's chance to unseat him."

He also told the Red Chinese, who advocated thermonuclear war as an ultimate means of destroying capitalism, that a global conflagration would release so much radioactivity that the living "would envy the dead."

Furthermore, Khrushchev insulted Peking by announcing he would visit Yugoslavia next month.

The Chinese intensely hate Tito because of his "revisionist" type of communism and mention Yugoslavia specifically in their endless attacks on Khrushchev and other Kremlin leaders.

This could give the Chinese an excuse to conclude their talks in Moscow on patching up Sino-Soviet differences. There has been no evidence of progress in the talks, which Khrushchev has boycotted, and an end to them was expected at any time.

Around The World Around The Week

Washington — Kennedy asked Congress to put a temporary tax on U. S. purchases of foreign stocks and bonds. More dollars are going out than are coming back and Kennedy wants to slow down the drain on gold reserves.

Edwards Air Force Base—Pilot Joe Walker took the X-15 rocketplane to a record height of 67 miles at a speed of 3,866 miles an hour. The old altitude record was 59.6 miles.

Miami Beach — Governors of the 50 states were assemblying in Florida for their annual conference. Host Gov. Farris Bryant said the conference would not be used as a forum for civil rights debate despite Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's statement that he would bring up the racial issues.

New York — Navy Yeoman 1/c Nelson C. Drummond was found guilty by a federal court jury of conspiracy to transmit defense secrets to the Soviet Union.

Syria — A revolt by apparent pro-Nasser elements was crushed with tanks and jet planes. The government executed 12 civilians and eight soldiers involved in the abortive coup and imposed a curfew in Damascus.

Many Congressmen Believe Moon Race Not Worth Cost

By Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON —Is landing a man on the moon by 1970 worth the sacrifices it seemingly will entail? Many congressmen have their doubts.

President John F. Kennedy, in a 1961 speech, committed this country to a manned lunar landing by 1970.

But Congress, which holds the purse strings, may see things differently.

Nearly everyone agrees that some day this country will land a man on the moon, and almost no one seriously advocates completely abandoning the program.

A statement issued last month by the Senate Republican policy committee summed up the issue. It said, "The question is not then, whether a man will ultimately raech the moon and beyond. The question is rather, how shall it be done, and whether other aspects of human needs should be bypassed or overlooked in the one spasmodic effort to achieve a lunar landing at once."

One overriding concern in Congress this year has been money.

Not all the arguments against the moon race are partisan, but in a year when Republicans are determined to make substantial cuts in the president's record budget, they hit hard at any big spending program.

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower told Republicans June 12 that "Anybody who would spend 40 billion dollars in a race to the moon for national prestige is nuts."

NASA Administrator James E. Webb replied that the manned lunar landing program as planned could be accomplished at a cost "within 20 billion dollars," and said the program during the next 10 years would cost 35 billion dollars.

Although this is less than the defense budget for one year, it represents no insubstantial outlay for the taxpayer. Republican critics say the money might be better spent on education and welfare. Moon shot supporters say Congress would not appropriate equivalent amounts for such programs anyway, and the money is well spent maintaining the U. S. advantage in space.

Apart from costs, the moon project has provoked criticism on military grounds.

Both Kennedy and Eisenhower have repeatedly stressed the need for peaceful uses of outer space, but both have also contended that this country cannot be caught unprepared and cannot allow others to endanger U. S. security through military development of space.

A GOP statement said that "to allow the Soviet Union to dominate the atmosphere 100 miles above the earth's surface while we seek to put a man on the moon could be, in the opinion of many, a fatal error."

It suggested that "intrinsic prudence, according to some, demands that we concentrate on the development of families of missiles operating in the suborbital and orbital areas rather than to devote such a large proportion of our effort to lunar shots."

Imperial Valley Farmers Assert Bracero End Means Lettuce End

By JOHN POWER
U.P. International

EL CENTRO—Imperial Valley-grown iceberg lettuce, once the proud aristocrat of vegetable crops, has seen its last salad.

The swan song of the lettuce and many other table crops that grew in abundance in the highly irrigated Imperial Valley of Southern California has been warbled by the House of Representatives in its decision not to extend the Mexican farm labor program into 1964.

With the scheduled departure of the Mexican worker (bracero) from the scene later this year, valley farmers are already taking steps for the smooth change-over from table to field crops.

Each year since World War II, thousands of Mexican workers have been brought across the international border to perform "stoop labor" in harvesting the many vegetable crops that thrived on the combination of an abundant supply of Colorado River water and the hot desert sun.

It was a chore not relished by the majority of domestic farm workers.

Can American farm labor fill the employment void created in the valley with the death of the bracero program?

Most growers here say "no." They say the end of Public Law 78 will cause complete change in crop production in the rich fertile area bounded by the Colorado River, Mexico and the Coast Range.

Most outspoken of the growers is Ed Hayes, manager of the Imperial Valley Farmers Assn.

"This action will very seriously affect growers of tomatoes, melons, onions and other crops in the Imperial Valley," said Hayes.

"I think we can foresee a drop in our lettuce acreage from the present 40,000 acres to nothing next season unless we can do something about the situation."

Hayes was quick to point out that steps have been taken during the past few years to counteract any serious effects of the termination of the bracero program.

He said in January of 1961, braceros working in the valley totaled 8,200. Last year the total was 5,200 and last January this number dwindled to 3,898.

What will take the place of the valley's vegetable crop that had a cash value of over 50 million dollars last year?

Hayes looks to an increase in field crops which can be harvested by machine. Among those crops slated for acreage increase are sugar beets. Over 51,000 acres were planted last year. Barley, cotton and flax also became more abundant.

Of high priority is the development of the cattle feeding industry in the valley. Under this plan, cattle from as far away as Texas are shipped here to fatten in specially constructed pens until they reach their peak for market.

Last year, over 600,000 head were shipped to the valley for this purpose.

Motor Vehicles Department Probe Gives Agency, Supplier Clean Bill

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — A thorough investigation of charges the State Department of Motor Vehicles was in collusion with an office supply firm on purchases of file cabinets and service counters has resulted in giving the department and the supplier a clean bill of health.

Th investigation was made by Robert B. Bradford, administrator of the highway transportation agency, in which the department of motor vehicles is included.

"Press stories," Bradford reported to Governor Edmund G. Brown, "alleged that specifications for office equipment restricted competition and favored one supplied over others . . ."

Bradford said this charge gives rise to two questions, first as to whether quality as spelled out in the specifications is too high and second as to whether specifications were so restrictive as to limit competition.

"Most recent deliveries of cabinets and counters are of good quality, and the department is not asking for greater quality than is required to do the job," he declared.

Earlier specifications, he said, discouraged competition, but the question has been resolved in favor of open competition.

"From the evidence at hand," he said, "I cannot charge the department of motor vehicles with favoring one supplier for improper reasons."

Bradford also pointed out that if any criticism were attacched to the department, it had to be shared equally by the state division of purchases, as the department does not have authority under law to enter the purchase market separately.

Bradford said that Tom Bright, director of motor vehicles, has taken steps to eliminate "crash" purchasing, and also that the highway transportation agency is putting continuing policies into effect which will require long-time planning of purchases.

It is not infrequent that intimations arise over awarding of contracts for state supplies, that the firm which secures the contract is accused of being "favored."

East of the wall...

The spirit of competition is gone. Government monopoly and fear have taken its place.

But, West of the wall, the spirit of competition reigns strong—creating the hustle and bustle of people scurrying from store to store buying the things they want and need. West of the wall, advertising spurs the competitive spirit and motivates the desires of free men for better things.

ADVERTISING is West of the wall.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Arteriosclerosis Symptoms Vary, But Increase With Old Age

VAN DELLEN

Arteriosclerosis probably is our most prevalent disease. It begins early in life but, like a rusty pipe, seldom causes trouble until the passageway becomes obstructed. When the blood flow is impaired, symptoms stem from the organ that is robbed of circulation and not from the artery itself.

A variety of factors influence the development of arteriosclerosis, ranging from heredity to diet. Those who want to escape the condition should start with a set of long-lived grandparents. It helps also to avoid gluttony and to live moderately and with a minimum of stress and emotional upheavals. Don't be concerned about cholesterol unless a blood test shows a high concentration of this substance in the serum.

MANY PAINS and other discomforts are attributed to arteriosclerosis but there is no standard pattern. An older person with night leg cramps may have poor circulation but when a younger individual complains of the same thing, another cause is more likely. Overstretching or injury to a leg muscle is a good possibility, regardless of age. This is mentioned because it is easy to blame hardening of the arteries for anything adverse that accurs after age 60.

The same applies to headache, impairment of memory, weakness, palpitation, aching, shortness of breath while walking upstairs, indigestion, and a sallow complexion. On the other hand, symptoms are more definite when the circulation to certain organs is impaired. When the leg arteries are affected, the man or woman experiences coldness and pain in one or both feet.

ANGINA PECTORIS or coronary thrombosis occurs if the blood flow to the heart muscle is reduced or shut off. There is a burning, squeezing, or choking pain beneath the breastbone that may or may not radiate into the neck and arms. Little or big strokes may follow hardening of the brain arteries. Disorders in vision and hearing ensue when circulation to the eyes or ears is disturbed.

Arteriosclerosis is not as hopeless as we have been led to believe. We have no chemical to prevent the process or clear out the obstructing material, despite some claims to the contrary. But drugs are available to encourage the growth of new vessels that will take over the work of the old. In addition, plastic arteries can be inserted to bypass an obstructed segment.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

REPLY

No. In the absence of arthritis, infection of a vertebra, or congenital bone disorder, poor posture is the most likely cause of abnormal curvatures. Exercises to strengthen the weak muscles will help. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on good posture.

STAIRCLIMBING

REPLY

Many do so the first week after delivery. But we don't recommend running up and down two flights of stairs several times a day.

Co-Op Lectures Approved On College Campus

Lectures at College of Marin on the philosophy of a co-operative store are not a selling program, a majority of trustees of the Marin Junior College District decided Thursday night.

The board voted 3-1 (one abstention) to allow the Marin Pre-center Council of Berkeley Co-op to use a college classroom without charge for a series of lectures this fall. Mrs. S. I. Hayakawa of Mill Valley told board members the lectures are to explain the history and philosophy of the co-operative movement.

The "no" vote came from trustee Kent O. Seymour, who said last month, when the request was first presented, that he considered it a selling program.

Dr. Stephen E. Epler, college president, said the county counsel had advised him the request qualified under the civic center act. Joseph D. Gargiulo, the new board member, abstained.

Marinites Take Part In Management Class

Thomas F. Burke of Kentfield and Stanley W. Neufeld of San Rafael have taken part in the 1963 Berkeley management program at the University of California at Berkeley.

Burke, senior engineer for the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, lives at 11 Cypress Avenue, Kentfield, and Neufeld, senior investigator for the State Department of Agriculture, lives at 320 Mountain View Avenue, San Rafael.

Retraining Program Starting For Men

Men are finally getting in on the manpower retraining program in Marin County.

Since the program started last September, it has been exclusively for womanpower: training clerical workers and nurses aides.

The male breakthrough came on July 8 when a class was started at the College of Marin for gardeners, and 14 men were assigned.

"We've got one coming up for maintenance men," said Edwin W. Ayer, manager of the State Department of Employment office in San Rafael.

The program is offering classes in skills that are needed in Marin County, he explained. "In this way, there are jobs available for them when they are fnished training."

There is no industrial training course because Marin County is not an industrial community and there is "not enough of a need" for industrial workers, Ayer said.

Since the program started, the San Rafael office has placed 57 persons in jobs, ranking third among 29 offices in the coastal area extending from San Luis Obispo to Crescent City. "Others got jobs on their own," he said. The San Rafael office was fourth in the number of courses completed or in progress—seven.

The program, sanctioned under the Federal Manpower Development and Training Act, started last September with a 20-week, clerical training course for 25 women at the College of Marin.

"The majority of them were hired in the county immediately or shortly thereafter," Ayer said.

A second course in clerical training started in February and was completed June 21 by a class of 25.

"Some of the women from the second class are still available for employment," Ayer said. "They have the skills and attitude necessary for successful employment in office work and especially in smaller offices where the employer needs a versatile employee."

He urged employers seeking clerical work to notify Marjorie Ward, placement interviewer, at the employment office.

Sixty women have completed training as nurses aides at local hospitals and "almost all were employed immediately," he said. "Two more classes for nurses aides will be starting soon."

The men attending the gardening class will be available for employment the first week in September, Ayer said. They are being taught by Albert Wilson of Palo Alto, teacher of gardening and horticulture in the evening division of San Mateo College, an author of three books in the field, and formerly featured on the radio and television show, "How Does Your Garden Grow?"

There are plans for starting a stenography course in the fall, Ayer said.

Boy, Postcards Off To Greece

Two thousand picture post cards of the Golden Gate Bridge signed by 2,000 Bay Area Boy Scouts left for Greece Wednesday in the suitcase of David Mills of Kentfield.

Fourteen - year - old Mills, headed for the Plains of Marathon world-wide Boy Scout Jamboree in Greece, will pass out these postcards to scouts from 75 countries. A message on the cards asks the Scouts to take the cards back to their countries and give them to other Scouts willing to correspond with the Bay Area Scout named on the card.

Mills, who will be a freshman at Redwood High School this fall, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Mills, 154 South Ridgewood Road, Kentfield. He is accompanied by Jay Egger, 14, of Greenbrae, and Gary Jay, 15, of Mill Valley.

Because the Larkspur School District has not yet named this year's trustee member of the Larkspur-Corte Madera Joint Recreation Commission, the commission Thursday night continued its meeting to next Thursday at 8 p.m. in Larkspur-Corte Madera School.

The commission term of John W. Boyd, now Larkspur school board president, has expired. At its next meeting the commission will elect officers, said chairman Albert E. Kogler.

Airman Apprentice

Tom E. Nowell III, Navy airman apprentice, son of Lt. Col. (Ret.) Tom E. Nowell Jr. of 507 Browing Street, Mill Valley, recently completed the four-week aviation mechanical fundamentals school at the Naval Air Technical Training Center, Memphis, Tenn.

Dog Has Weighty Problem

The half-ounce of the Marin County's new dog tag this year could just about be the straw which will break Tammy Lee's back.

Tammy Lee is a 2-year-old Chihuahua. She weighs three pounds and, at present, is a very sad dog.

She walks around with her head hanging low. Around her neck is one of the new county dog licenses, heavier and larger than last year's for easier reading and longer wear.

Her owners, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Pickens of 87 Live Oak Avenue, Fairfax, said when Tammy Lee's new license was put on she wouldn't get up.

Eventually, she took her first steps with the license dangling to her knees. She walked with difficulty, as the license banged against her knees.

The Pickenses declared there should be small dog tags for toy dogs. They plan to have a miniature replica made for Tammy Lee.

'Oliver Twist Asks For More' Set

A skit called "Oliver Twist Asks for More," will be presented by the youngest actors in the Junior Theater Workshop at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Bel Aire School auditorium.

Twelve and 13-year-olds will demonstrate acting techniques they learned in the workshop during the free show. The actors include Linda Treiber, Robert and Janet Figari, Judy Watt, Lynn Daugherty, Martin Schaaf, Lorna Blair, Thomas Estudillo and Abbe O'Mahony.

Those in the youngest group are Donna Cross as Oliver Twist, J. B. Halpern as Mr. Bumble, Susan Napper as Mr. Limbkins, and Linda Hall as Mr. Ganfield.

Others in the skit are Sharon Hall, Cheryle Napper, Carol Blair, Megan Walker, Michael King, Clifford Blair, Francis Brooks, Francine Schwartz and Patricia Shea.

Market Is Going Out Of Business

Bob's Market at 625 Bridgeway, Sausalito, will go out of business Aug. 15.

The owners, Robert H. May of Corte Madera and Robert W. Shine of Bel Aire, have been in business together 16 years in Sausalito. They were first located five years at 633 Bridgeway and for 11 years at their present spot.

May declined to give a reason for closing. He said he and his partner plan to take a month's vacation and then decide what they will do next.

'Red Shoes' Set By Jr. Theater

An adaptation of Hans Christian Andersen's "The Red Shoes" is now in production by the junior theater at Park School, Mill Valley.

The children's play will be given under the City of Mill Valley's summer recreation program at 7 p.m. July 26 and 27.

Alva Henderson of San Luis Obispo, director, said the play is not the musical adaptation. Principals include Patty Mier and Sheilah Maloney, double cast as Karen; Mimi Champlin as grandmother Nissen, and Steve Bajor as the old soldier.

Forging Charges Denied In Court

John J. Akbery, 25, of Santa Venetia, who is accused of burglarizing a Corte Madera home and forging a $2,500 check, denied the charges in Marin Municipal Court yesterday.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson continued the case until next Tuesday afternoon, when a date will be set for preliminary hearing.

Corte Madera police said Akbery is suspected of breaking into the Rowena A. Walter home at 287 Golden Hind Passage on July 3, stealing some checks, and forging one for $2,500. He is accused of forgery and burglary.

Student In Art Show

Sue Lang, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Lang, 110 San Pedro Road, San Rafael, will exhibit her work at the student art show at Scripps College, Claremont, July 31-Aug. 2.

Slump Continues, Giants Skid Toward Sixth Place

CINCINNATI (AP) — A major problem for the San Francisco Giants during their prolonged slump has been the stranding of too many base runners, but the fourth-placers showed Fridays that they have a way to solve it!

Don't put men on base in the first place.

Atcually, the Giants did get five runners aboard in their 5-2 loss to Cincinnati but they left only one stranded. Two scored and the other two were wiped out by double plays.

The net effect was to dump the defending National League champions into a tie with the Reds only two games ahead of sixth-place Pittsburgh. The Giants trail league-leading Los Angeles by nine games.

With the effect of early-week doubleheaders worn off, manager Alvin Dark had any of three pitchers ready to throw at Cincinnati's Joe Nuxhall tonight: Jack Sanford, Billy O'Dell or Juan Marichal.

Parts of yesterday's game were almost like television reruns of earlier innings.

Pete Rose beat out a bouncer to open the Reds' first and Tommy Harper drilled a home run off starter Billy Pierce.

Came the fifth and Rose gained first slightly easier—with a walk. And again Harper homered—only his fifth of the season.

The Giants, meanwhile, scored in the fourth when Harvey Kuenn doubled and came home on two infield outs.

A tinge of a rally against John Tsitouris came in the seventh when Willie McCovey singled but Willie Mays promptly smacked into a double play. The same thing happened in the eighth except that Ed Bailey rapped the hit and Orlando Cepeda killed the threat.

In the ninth another Kuenn double—this one after Matty Alou was hit by a pitch—set up a run that scored on another infield out.

The hit batsman was the only mar on Tsitouris' control record but it nearly precipitated a battle between Marichal and Nuxhall.

Juan, then Joe, charged to the field in a dispute over the play but they were separated and calmed by teammates.

McCovey's single extended about the only good thing the Giants have going—his 24-game hitting streak. That tied the all-time club record set in 1930 by Freddie Lindstrom and equalled in 1955 by Don Mueller. McCovey's bouncer also knocked in the first San Francisco run.

Hart Still Leads PGA By 3 Strokes

DALLAS (AP) — Dick Hart, a steady young man with plenty of heart, takes the same three-stroke lead he had after one round into the third round of the Professionals Golfers Assn. championship today. The question is whether he can hang on for two more days.

The feeling is growing that the answer may be "Yes."

"Don't write off this boy," his playing partners during the first 36 holes, Bob Keller and Dick Turner, said. "He doesn't shake easy. He's quite a player."

This 27-year-old assistant club professional from Hinsdale, Ill., is ahead of par despite the double extreme pressure of a demanding, heat-blistered golf course and the anticipation that his wife, Joyce, back in Illinois could present him with his second child any minute.

"I'm glad it's over," Hart said after firing an unspectacular but impressive 72 yesterday that enabled him to maintain his lead over the world's greatest professionals with a 36-hole total of 138.

"I didn't hit the ball nearly as well as I did when I got my 66 on the first round, but I wasn't trying to do anything else except stay close to par. I really didn't get close enough to try for a birdie until the 13th hole. All I was aiming at was par. I feel just wonderful that I was able to come so close. I felt some pressure, sure, but I didn't lose my senses at any time."

While National Open champion Julius Boros, Masters champion Nicklaus and the likes of Tony Lema, Doug Ford and Bruce Crampton fired and fell back, Hart calmly drummed a one-over-par round at the 7,046-yard, par 36-35-71 Dallas Athletic Club course with 15 pars, one birdie and two bogies.

It was good enough to keep him well in control of the pace—three shots in front of Boros, Lema and club pro Shelley Mayfield, four on Nicklaus, Ford and 42-year-old Manuel de la Torre, five up on a foursome of Gene Littler, Crampton, Bill Johnston and Doug Sanders and a whopping nine shots ahead of golf's glamour boy, Arnold Palmer.

HART HOLDS 3-STROKE LEAD — Dick Hart of Hinsdale, Ill., missed this birdie putt at the 18th hole yesterday, but his one over par 71 enabled him to retain his three-stroke advantage after the second round of the PGA championship at the Dallas Country Club. (AP Wirephoto)

Raiders Scrimmage, Accent On Passing

SANTA ROSA (AP) — A one-hour scrimmage was on tap today for the Oakland Raiders with the accent on passing.

Head Coach Al Davis said yesterday he is amazed at the early-season accuracy of quarterbacks Tom Flores and Cotton Davidson, who were hitting on throws of up to 50 yards.

Flores is back after a year's absence due to a lung infection.

NECK INJURY TOO RISKY FOR SPARROW

Former Novato High School star Jack Sparrow was released by the San Francisco 49ers yesterday after X-rays showed that a neck injury sustained as a collegian would make his pro career a dangerous one.

Sparrow, a lanky quarterback, had suffered a broken neck while playing at University of Pacific a couple of years ago. Team doctors thought it would be too risky for Sparrow to attempt a pro career, so he left camp yesterday.

Sparrow had been signed by the 49ers as a free agent.

M.V. Team Beats Rafael Club In Junior Tennis

Mill Valley Tennis Club topped the Rafael Racquet Club yesterday in both divisions of their Junior Davis Cup competition. The team scores were 4-2 in Division I (18 years and under) and 6-3 in Division II (14 years and under).

Results in Division I, played at the Racquet Club:

Singles — Ron Klyce (MV) d. Peter Youtz (RRC) 10-7; Mark Weise (MV) d. John Strasenburg (RRC) 10-6; Jim Pressley (RRC) d. Mark Stevens (MV) 10-0 and George Lindahl (RRC) d. John Zeigler (MV) 10-5.

Doubles — Ron Klyce - Robbie Robbins (MV) d. Peter Youtz Rich Danse (RRC) 10-3, Tom Sather-Mitch Fink (MV) d. Tom Klyce-Barry Brink (RRC) 10-7.

Results in Division II, played at Mill Valley:

Marin Athlete Wins In England

Timothy Yaryan, 18, son of Reverend John S. Yaryan of 219 Poplar Drive in Ross, has won the discus event at the Canadian - British secondary school track and field meet in Ipswich, England.

A graduate of the University School in Victoria, B. C., Yaryan won the event with a heave of 198 feet, nine inches, in conditions that his coach, Mr. Derek Hyde-Lay, indignantly described as "dreadful." Six weeks ago, he broke the dominion (national) and provincial record in the discus by 10 feet. Yaryan was captain of the dominion champion rugby team from his school, and plans to attend either Williams College in Massachusetts or the University of California in the fall.

Sohner Softballers Win Fourth Straight

Sohner Tree Service softballers notched their fourth straight win by crushing Lane Lodge, 10-1, Thursday night in San Francisco.

Jay Leatherwood's four-hit pitching and a two-run third inning homer by Earl Ramponi highlighted the Sohner victory.

The Treemen scored all the runs they needed in the first inning when hits by Earl Beyer and Jesse Munyan paced a two-run outburst.

Holdout Connolly, 49ers Still Feud

MORAGA (AP)—No settlement was in prospect today in the legalistic dispute between guard Ted Connolly, who wants to read his contract's fine print, and the San Francisco 49ers, who say he's violating the pact by refusing to appear for pre-season training.

Connolly, an eight-year veteran, announced yesterday through his attorney, Raymond Bolton, that he won't report until he has received and examined a copy of the National Football League by-laws by which players are bound.

Team General Manager Lou Spadia refused comment on the by-laws issue but said the 49ers are fining Connolly an unspecified sum each day that he fails to report.

NO DEAL

Connolly asked during the winter to be traded but no deal was made. He has not signed a contract this year but under NFL regulations is still bound to the 49ers and can run out the option only by playing for 10 per cent less salary than he received in 1962.

Said Bolton: "Although we have been informed that these by-laws have been changed, we have not been given a copy as amended nor do we know the exact extent or nature of these changes.

"Until such time as we have this information and until such time as the club will confer with Ted's representative, it is impossible to determine Ted's contractual obligations, if any, and whether he is willing to play under them."

Countered Spadia: "On June 13 Ted Connolly together with all other 49er veterans was directed to report to training camp by 10 a.m. Friday July 19. In failing to report on time, Connolly is in violation of his contract . . ."

Boltin said federal or state court action might be taken, and added, "This is not a threat."

Cain Quint Retains Lead In Drake Basketball Loop

Joe McGrath and Ronnie Ronsville each scored 23 points to pace Pinky's Pizza past Eberhart's Service 82-33 Thursday, but Cain's Tires whipped Don's Market 60-31 and held their half-game lead in the adult division of the Drake High summer basketball league.

Bob Stout had 16 points for Cain's, which remained undefeated at 4-0. Pinky's record is 4-1.

The closest game of the evening was won by the Old Soldiers over College of Marin, 60-56. Don Pinot strategically scored 11 point sin the final quarter, including the last eight for his team, to lead the Soldiers. Pinot totaled 24 for the game. Pete Bardea topped the Tars with 12.

An even closer, but much less exciting game pitted Shafer's Ice Cream against Locke Plumbing. Locke had to forfeit 1-0 when it could muster only three players at game time.

John Livie's 20 points led Santa Rosa Junior College to a 76-36 rout of Billings-Hutchinson Builders in the other game played this week. Ed O'Connell tallied 15 for the losers.

Shafer's, Santa Rosa J.C. and the Old Soldiers are in a three-way tie for third place with 3-1 marks. Don's Market is the only other club in contention with 3-2.

Results this week in the high school division of the league set up a showdown next Tuesday at 9 p.m. between the two unbeaten leaders, the Giants and the Wildcats. The Giants trounced the Trojans 86-33 with Larry Wolfe scoring 16 and Jim Trumbo 15. The Wildcats meanwhile were slipping past the Indians 31-29. Ellis Williams had 10 for the losers, and the Wildcats, showing balanced scoring, were topped by Mike Ferrua with seven.

The Bulldogs and the Crusaders were victorious to remain one game behind the leaders. Rod Monti popped in 14 for the Bulldogs in their 37-30 win over the Trojans, and Bob Kent's 16 points paced the Crusaders to a 57-36 triumph over the Pirates. Loren Galassi had 13 for the Pirates.

SONNY REMAINS SOLID FAVORITE OVER FLOYD

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—One of the more unusual betting lines posted in this gaudy gambling capital today was an even-money chance that Monday's Sonny Liston-Floyd Patterson heavyweight title fight won't last four rounds.

The champion, Liston, in man-to-man betting is about 4-1 to retain the title and there is a suspicion the odds would be wider except that the betting people are trying to lure more Patterson money into the action.

You can get $5 for $2 if the fight ends in the first or second rounds. It's 4-1 if it goes five, 12-1 if it goes 10 and 30-1 if it lasts the full 15 rounds.

The principals wind up all serious exercises today and head into seclusion until the weigh-in at 11 a.m. Monday at the Convention Center, 8,000-seat site of the national closed-circuit television attraction.

The Nevada Athletic Commission voted to waive the three-knockdown rule, but the mandatory eight-count on a knockdown will remain in effect.

Thus Patterson, who was floored seven times by Ingemar Johanson won't be blown out of the picture if his falls are limited to three in a single round. The mandatory eight-count won't hurt his chances, either.

A rhubarb over the eight-ounce gloves apparently was settled when the Patterson camp agreed to use the foam rubber-packed style selected by Liston instead of the horsehair-packed type they had originally picked.

Net Champs Crowned In Belvedere

San Franciscan Cecilia Martinez won her second title and Gail Hansen of Palo Alto won two to highlight the final round play in the Belvedere Tennis Tournament yesterday.

Charles Deardorff of Burlingame upset his Mills High School teammate, top seeded Bob Delantoni, 8-6, 6-4 to win the boys 18 championship. Deardorff came back to team with Terry Bryant of Burlingame and win the boys 18 doubles with a 6-0, 6-2 rout of Ron Klyce of San Rafael and Dave Bleeker, Los Altos.

Miss Martinez whipped Cathy Douglas of Santa Rosa 7-5, 6-2 in the girls 16 final, after having won the girls 18 title Thursday. Miss Hansen thrashed Michelle Abbes in the girls 12 final 6-3, 6-0, and then upset top seeded Vicky Beale of Sacramento 7-5, 4-6, 6-3 to take the girls 14 championship.

Miss Abbes paired with her Orinda neighbor, Casey Havre, to take the girls 12 doubles crown. They defeated Ellen Chandler of Redwood City and Diane Miller of San Carlos 6-4, 6-0. Michelle's older sister Lynn yesterday won the girls 16 singles title and was half of the winning 14 doubles team at the St. Louis Junior Invitational tournament.

The Sportsmanship Award was given yesterday to Bobby Reynolds of Sacramento, who lost earlier in the boys 12 division to Bruce Kellock, Richmond, in one of the best matches of the tournament.

Other final round results:

SINGLES

Boys 10: Randy Hawkinson, Sacramento, d. Bill Ray, Sacramento, 6-2, 6-1; Girls 10: Carol Burke, Sacramento, d. Susan Slade, Redwood City, 6-4, 6-2; Boys 12: Ron Martson, Monterey, d. John Clancy, Carmel, 6-1, 6-0; Boys 14: Steve Cornell, Oakland, d. Bud Guion, Sacramento, 6-0, 6-1.

DOUBLES

Boys 12: Bruce Kellock-John Clancy d. Ron Marston - Berry Lang, Folsom, 6-3, 6-8, 6-4; Girls 16: Cathy Owens, San Francisco-Shielah Casey, San Francisco d. Sherry Fickert, San Leandro-Valerie Morris, San Leandro, 7-5, 6-1; Boys 16: Ron Noon, Richmond-Ron Reis, Atherton d. Ron and Steve Cornell, Oakland, 6-1, 6-4. Mixed Doubles: Jeff Borowiac, Lafayette-Christy Pigeon, Danville d. Bruce Kellock-Gail Hansen, 8-3.

U.S. TRAILING

Russ Jolts Yanks In Track Opener

MOSCOW (AP) — Fifty-six Soviet and American athletes marched onto the field at Lenin Stadium today for the opening ceremonies at the track and field meet between the two countries.

There were about 50,000 in the stands on an overcast day with the temperature at 78 degrees.

Jim Beatty of Los Angeles, favored to win the 5,000 Sunday, who is hampered by a leg injury and may not run, led the American contingent onto the field.

Behind him, carrying the big American flag was Bill Sharpe, a triple jumper from Philadelphia.

The confident Americans got two quick jolts in the opening events when Edvin Ozolin grabbed second place in the 100-meter and Galina Popova triumphed in the women's sprint.

Ozolin's second place was the highest any Russian had finished in a dash since these annual duels were inaugurated five years ago while the American girls had never lost a dash before.

The men's 100 was won by Robert Hayes of Florida A&M in 10.2 seconds, equalling the meet mark set by Ira Murchison of the USA in 1958 and tied last year by Hayes.

Ozolin was caught in 10.4 with John Gilbert of the Southern California Striders third in 10.5.

Miss Popova was timed in 11.7 with Edith McGuire of Tennessee State second in 11.8.

The men's 110-meter hurdles produced the day's first hassle. After a false start, the four athletes got set again but Hayes Jones of Detroit, the favorite, was left at the post. Blaine Lindgren of Glendale, Calif., and the two Russians sailed over the barriers, ignoring a re-call shot as they skimmed over the fourth hurdle.

Anatoly Mikhailov, the Russian champion, crossed the finish line first.

After considerable arguing, it was decided to run the event again and this time Mikhailov triumphed once more. Jones is the only member of the U.S. team to have competed against the Russians in all four previous meets and recently won the hurdles at the Pan-American games. He took the bronze medal in the 1960 Olympic games. Lindgren was second in the official race.

What was shaping up as one of the blackest days in American track was salvaged in the 800 meters when Jim Dupree lost the lead twice in the stretch but battled back to win by half a yard from Valery Bulyshev, who ran last winter in a Madison Square Garden meet.

At that stage in the meet, with three men's events on the scoreboard, the Soviets led 23-21. The U.S. at that stage, had expected to have a 24-9 lead.

All games will begin at 6 p.m. except those of next Saturday, when the consolation contest will start at 1 p.m. and the title game at 3 p.m.

Marin Gals In South For Adams Cup Sailing Event

By ALFRED MATSON

After many weeks of intensive practice, the day of reckoning has finally arrived for the official representatives of San Francisco Bay in the semi-finals of the Adams Cup eliminations. For the uninitiated, the Adams Cup races is for the sailors on the distaff side and, purportedly, determines the national champion. In the local trials, Sally Mathews of the San Francisco Y.C. and her all Belvedere crew of Nancy Rogers, Rickey Treacy and Bobbie Healey, were the victors and, in consequence, are now battling the other coast eligibles, down in San Diego, for the right to appear in the finals in August, in Massachusetts. The gals are racing in boats of the PC class in a series of races. A large delegation of local sailing buffs have flown south to witness the event and give out with plenty of moral support.

In the final hours of the Honolulu Race, it appears as though Marin County is well represented aboard some of the top winners. Tim Moseley's cutter Orient, the sensational winner in the glamor fleet of class "A," had such able crewmen aboard as Bruce Easom, watch captain, Eugene Vigno, Pete Sutter, Grant Willson, and Len Delmas.

Another great win was that of Aldo Alessio's Mistress in class "C." Alessio is a resident of Belevedere and listed among his hardworking crew are Harland Peterson, George Johnson, Charles Weaver and the other famous brother of the Easom family, "Hank." Tiare, a Bermuda 40 from New York, not only a possible winner of Class "D" but winner over all, as well, is skippered by Warwick Tompkins of Mill Valley. Other entries of local interest are Annie Too, Spirit, Awahnee and Koe Matu.

Sausalito Y.C. is hosting divisions 3 and 4 of the Small Boat Racing Assn. tomorrow. There will be two races starting at 10:45 a.m. and run consecutively.

Marin Semi-Pro Showdown Tomorrow: S.A. Vs. Novato

The San Anselmo Merchants and Novato Knickerbockers, riding along undefeated at the top of the Marin Semipro League, collide Sunday in Novato at 1 p.m.

Merchants manager Pete Maggi will send former Detroit Tiger farmhand Vince Pallavicini to the mound in this crucial game while Novato skipper Bill Klein will counter with Ron Grayson.

The Billings-Hutchison Builders trail the leaders by only a half game, and can move into second place with a win Saturday over the Ongaro Plumbers. The Plumbers edged out Billings-Hutchison for the title last year, but are not in contention at present. The game will begin at 8:15 p.m. at Albert Field with Southpaw Mike Telegin pitching for the Builders against Bob Derosa or Jerry Walters.

With San Anselmo and Novato playing each other, the league will have only one unbeaten team after this weekend, and since the Mill Valley Merchants and Bermuda Palms will meet at Mill Valley Sunday, only one of these two winless clubs will remain in that unhappy condition. Fred Thurman will pitch for the Merchants in the 1:30 p.m. contest against Mike Cooney.

The Dons of Marin and the Presidio will battle to stay in contention when they meet at 3:30 p.m. Sunday in Memorial Park, San Anselmo. The soldiers are counting on another strong pitching effort from John Jones, while the Dons go with Steve Miller.

Dick Wagner Top Greenbrae Bowler

Dick Wagner, Ray Brusati and Red Whitaker paced the men at Greenbrae Bowl during the past week, while Elinor Davis, Evelyn Cusimano and Donna Huckins topped the gals.

Twelve-year-old Mike Hinneberg, who has a 95 average, was the big story in the Junior League with his 211 game. He also had the best series, a 454.

Wagner rolled the best game and best four game series when he carded 247-787 in the Tuesday Men's Handicap Trio League. Brusati bowled 245-616 in the Swiss Doubles for the second finest game and second best three game series. Whitaker had a series of 213-206—618 in the same league.

Elinor Davis of the 476 Scratch Trio League had the best women's four game series of 713, and her 216 game was enough to edge Donna Huckins for the highest game. Donna had 215-549 in the Hits and Mrs. League and was nipped for high three game series, too, by Evelyn Cusimano, who also bowls in Hits and Mrs.

Hamilton Gets A Thanks From U.S. Olympic Group

The Hamilton Air Force Base athletic department last week received a letter of thanks from the United States Olympic Assn. for a $500 contribution made earlier this year.

This contribution will be used to help pay the cost of organizing, training, equipping, transporting and housing future United States Olympic teams. The money came from the Pacific Coast Inter-Service Invitational Boxing Tournament held in January at the base.

Sporting Promoters Should Make Bigger Play For Women's Dollars

RANDOL

One of the great untapped reservoirs for the sporting buck has to be the women of our country, bless 'em. And it beats me that the promoters haven't made a bigger play for their money; it's just as good as the buck her husband tosses on the counter.

The only real jesture toward the ladies has been the creation of "Ladies Day" by the baseball moguls, and when you come right down to it, this gambit is an out-and-out shot at the pocketbook of the reluctant husband. Wifey gets in free.

Ladies Day is traditionally dropped into some spot in the week that is weak on attendance; better to have two seats filled with one paid for than two empty seats. Our Giants give Thursdays unless it conflicts with a possible sell-out. Down in Dodgerland Owner O'Malley is a bit more sporting with the girls invited for free on Saturday nights; that is direct competition with night life of the Angelenos.

PRO FOOTBALL is another story. Surprisingly (or maybe not) this is a game relished by more women than you would believe. After all, there's an awful lot of manhood flexing muscles down on the field. Primeval struggle and all that. Trouble is, milady shies away from the men up in the stands.

The contrast is great. While great deeds of derring-do are being performed on the grass (or dirt) of Kezar by beautiful, if inept, hunks of manhood, his brother in the stands is distinguishing himself by drinking himself into trouble or oblivion. And coloring the air with purple invective.

It is no wonder that more women are not attending 49er games. One of these days owner Morabito may wish the vacant seats were occupied by others than non-paying seagulls.

OTHER SPORTS have similar problems. I feel that our sponsors of pro basketball in the Bay Area really missed the boat in their maiden year. Instead of allowing a handful of people to rattle around in the Cow Palace most nights of the year, a handout to the ladies and the children during the first half of the season would have packed the joint later on.

Basketball is a natural for the gals. The other underwear sport that is really catching on is track and field. Here is a form of entertainment that doesn't need a rule book and years of experience to be appreciated. And the beauty of the human body in motion isn't hidden by a suit of armor.

And it might surprise you to find out how many gals steal a peak at the fights and rasslers on TV. Many a potbellied executive feels free to ogle any 36-24-36 that walks his way and is shocked to find out that his wife's left eye never got married.

SPEAKING OF boxing or prize-fighting, it has taken me 12 years but I have finally discovered the glaring and annoying fault in the television version. Screen an exciting fight and the crowd noises can be exciting, too. Then the cameras pan over the ringside crowd who show about as much animation as spectators recruited from Mme. Tussaud's Wax Museum.

Betcha the fights would gain new popularity if they would move the gallery into the first five rows front and center and move the twenty dollar, pasty-faced ringsiders right out into the street. Sponsors shell out thousands for a show and then kill themselves week after week by showcasing dignity in a brawling, blood-thirsty sport. Betcha.

Curtis Swim Team Edged By Tam Club

The Tamalpais Swim Club nipped the Ann Curtis Swim Club at the Curtis pool Tuesday 304-291 in a meet that neither team led by more than 26 points at any time.

The outcome was in doubt until the final relay, the girls 15-17 200 yard freestyle. The winning Tam foursome was anchored by Vickie Hoteger, who won three individual events and also swam on the victorious 200 yard medley relay team from the Tam Club.

Miss Hoetger won the 100 yard breaststroke, the 100 yard butterfly, and the 200 yard individual medley. In the breaststroke she made the best time of the year in Marin County, 1:19.4.

San Rafael High School star Jim Allen won the 15-17 200 yard freestyle for Curtis in 1:59.4. This, strangely, was the same time made by the winning Tam girls 200 free relay team, and both were new Redwood Empire Swim League marks. Allen also won the 100 yard freestyle in his division.

Bob Crowell of the Curtis team and David Boese of the Tam Club had a personal duel in the 13-14 competition, as each won two events and beat the other once. Crowell had a time of 1:08.6 in the 100 yard backstroke, while Boese swam the 100 yard freestyle in 0:59.1.

The Redwood Empire League is composed of these two clubs and two others, the San Rafael Swim Club and the San Ramon Swim Club of Danville. League President Bob Casci has announced that the league meet will be held September 7-8 at the San Rafael High School pool.

Thomas-Benton In TV Bout Tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — Unbeaten in his last 19 fights, light heavyweight contender Allen Thomas makes his bid for national honors in a television (ABC) 10-rounder with crafty George Benton, middleweight contender from Philadelphia, at Madison Square Garden tonight, 7 o'clock, PDT.

How Grid Star Fought Back From Complete Alcoholism

REDWOOD CITY — In the 1930s, James H. "Monk" Moscrip was one of the most acclaimed college football players in the United States. He was an All-American and star end on Stanford's famed "Vow Boys" teams of 1933, 1934 and 1935.

When Moscrip and his teammates, who included Bobby Grayson, Bob Reynolds, "Bones" Hamilton, Frank Alustiza and Wes Muller, became sophomores, they vowed that they would never lose a game to USC. At the time the Trojans were the scourge of American collegiate football, known far and wide as the "Thundering Herd."

During their varsity careers, the "Vow Boys" not only whipped USC three straight times, but they dominated football on the Pacific Coast. They won 25 games and lost only four during that period, and crowned their success with a 7-0 victory over Southern Methodist before 100,000 spectators in the Rose Bowl.

Moscrip, a handsome, 6-foot, 190-pounder, not only won All-American honors as a great all-around end, but additionally was in the spotlight as Stanford's best place kicker. By the end of his senior year Moscrip was on top of the world. The Indians were Pacific Coast and Rose Bowl champions, "Monk" was a near unanimous All-American, and Moscrip, a matinee-idol with his rugged good looks, even was given a Hollywood screen test. After Stanford came two more years of stardom with the professional Detroit Lions.

Soon afterward America was at war, and Moscrip served in the battle for Iwo Jima and Okinawa aboard the escort carrier Shamrock Bay. It was during his service career that Moscrip began drinking heavily. By the time he was nearing discharge from the Navy, he and his buddies, stationed in Honolulu, would open a bottle at 10 a.m. and be drunk by noon.

"I used to spill more than most people drink," Moscrip admits.

Shortly after returning to civilian life, Moscrip was a complete, confirmed alcoholic. He almost lost everything, including his beautiful wife and two lovely daughters.

In 1954, by then only a shell of his All-American days at Stanford, Moscrip decided to fight the disease of alcoholism. He happened to pick a name out of a telephone book. It was Woodside Acres Hospital, located among evergreens and spreading lawns above Redwood City, a hospital exclusively for the treatment of acute and chronic alcoholism.

Moscrip was completely cured of alcoholism one year later. Having known the degradation and dangers of alcoholism, and the immeasurable happiness that the cure brought, Moscrip became determined to devote all his time and energy to helping other alcoholics. Since 1960 he has been executive director at Woodside Acres Hospital.

The fact that Moscrip became an alcoholic on the outside and responded so successfully to treatment on the inside makes it easier on the patients. And they can't fool him, no matter how cagey they are.

Now an alert, healthy 49-year-old with complete peace of mind, Moscrip talks swiftly, sincerely and sensibly about alcoholism.

"We can't do anything for the cheat," Moscrip explains. "Everything has to be on a voluntary basis. Alcoholism is an illness, and the patient must undergo treatment for it, just as if he had appendicitis.

"There is no 100 per cent cure for alcoholism. But our records over a seven-year span show we cure one out of three who take the treatments. We think that's most unusual, if not a record. Of these, incidentally, a third are women.

"I don't want to be classed as a fanatic, but I'm here because I feel I'm needed. My big lift comes when we give a man back his self-respect, when his wife, in tears, thanks us. I know exactly how those who recover feel. It saved my marriage and everything else."

Woodside Acres Hospital has the refined atmosphere of a quiet rest home. There are no bars or guards to suggest the drunk tank — rather open doors, a recreation room for reading, television and radio.

'HINDU PROTESTANTISM'

Buddhist Protest Rooted In Nationalist Feeling

By LOUIS CASSELS
U.P. International

By burning himself to death, a Buddhist monk in Viet Nam has drawn worldwide attention to a revival of fervor in one of the ancient religions of Asia.

Buddhism, which comes in almost as many varieties as Christianity, now has about 150 million followers in Japan, Korea, China, Mongolia, Tibet, Ceylon, Burma, Thailand, Laos, Cambodia and Viet Nam.

One of its varieties, called Zen, has attracted a small but articulate following among Western intellectuals.

Twenty years ago, students of world religions were calling Buddhism a moribund faith. But as a traditional religion of the East, it has received a powerful stimulus from the wave of nationalist feeling that has swept over Asian countries since World War II.

Its come-back as a popular religion is dramatized by the current controversy in Viet Nam, where Buddhists are bitterly protesting against alleged persecution by the government of President Ngo Dinh Diem, a Roman Catholic.

Buddhism is sometimes called "Hindu Protestantism." It originated in India 2,500 years ago as a protest or reform movement within Hinduism.

Its founder was an enormously wealthy Indian prince, Siddhartha Guatama, who was born about 560 B.C. in a northern province about 100 miles from Benares. Legend says that Gautama had three palaces and 40,000 dancing girls to keep him amused.

But he learned early in life that luxury did not lead to happiness. When he was about 29 years old, he abandoned his sumptuous life as a prince and went into the forest, dressed in rags, to seek enlightenment in the solitary life of a Hindu ascetic.

No one ever practiced mortification of the flesh with greater dedication than Guatama. He fasted (eating one bean a day) until his spine could be seen through his shrunken stomach. But he found no answer to his questions about life, and concluded that extreme asceticism was no better than luxury as a pathway to happiness.

After six years of futile searching, Guatama seated himself one evening beneath the shade of a fig tree near the village of Gaya in northeast India. He vowed that he would sit right there until he saw the light.

According to Buddhist scriptures, he remained for 49 days. He emerged from this experience as the Buddha, or "The Enlightened One." For the next 45 years, he walked from one Indian village to another, sharing his new insights with all who would listen, and founding an order of monks to practice his precepts and pass on his message. He died at the age of 80 after eating some poisoned mushrooms that had gotten into a dish by accident.

Buddha's original teachings constitute a philosophy of life rather than a religion. He taught that human life is characterized by suffering, and the basic cause of suffering is "tanha," a word which is often translated as "desire" but which actually connotes selfish craving, the tendency in every person to seek his own private happiness.

To break free from slavery to "tanha," Buddha said men must follow "the eightfold path" of right knowledge, right aspiration, right speech, right behavior, right occupation, right effort, right thinking and right absorption.

Under each of these eight headings, he laid down rules for rigorous self-discipline. Buddhists were forbidden to lie, steal or kill any living creature, including animals and insects. They were allowed to eat only what they could beg, and then just enough to keep the body alive and functioning. Alcoholic beverages and sex relations were strictly forbidden.

Buddha said this monastic way of life, if earnestly practiced, would eventually lead to "Nirvana." Exactly what he meant by this much-abused term is hard to determine from his authenticated sayings. At times, he seems to think of Nirvana as a state of nothingness, a final blotting out of human individuality (and hence of the selfish cravings which cause suffering). At other points, he speaks of Nirvana in terms comparable to those which a Christian mystic might use to describe ecstatic union with God.

It is sometimes said that Buddha was an atheist, because there are no direct references in his teaching to a personal God. But his silence on this subject seems to have derived mainly from a decision that he would avoid all theological "speculations" (with which Hinduism was already rife) and concentrate on teaching a way of life.

Zen is a special case. It developed in China in the 6th century A.D., and by the 12th century had reached Japan, where it took root and still flowers.

The heart of Zen is the conviction that real truth can never be expressed or understood in verbal formulae, but can only be directly experienced through a flash of intuition or enlightenment called "satori."

Revival In Mill Valley

"Accent on Youth" will be held starting Sunday at the Southern Marin Assembly of God at East Blithedale Avenue and Sycamore Avenue, Mill Valley.

RENTERS

Why get "slugged" with taxes? Own your own condominium-apartment and take advantage of substantial tax savings denied renters.

Check off this list of advantages . . .

1. Very low cash investment (12% down).
2. No additional investment in such "extra" furnishings as drapes, carpeting, refrigerator.
3. No yard work . . . not even a pool to clean. It's all done for you at a monthly charge (including your utilities and insurance) of $29.71.
4. Tax advantages. Through condominium ownership you get substantial write-off for interest and taxes paid out. How much better than a pile of cancelled rent checks.
5. Through ownership your monthly payments build up equity. At resale you stand an excellent chance for substantial capital gain.
6. Brand new; compact; convenient to transportation and shopping. The new EMPORIUM nearby.
7. Community living at its finest. Swimming pool, recreation room, congenial friends.

HOW TO PLAY
WINNING BRIDGE
By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

National Jokes Affect Play In International Contests

One of the odd things about the teams that have represented Great Britain in international bridge contests is that no Scotsman has ever made the team.

Now don't get me wrong; I don't believe all these stories about the Scotch. Still, it makes you wonder when you think of the British team and all the hands that call for an extravagant play.

Opening lead — ♣ 4

This is the sort of thing I have in mind. You get nowhere if you're worried about waste

DIAMONDS

You need five diamond tricks to make the contract, and you have no problem if the diamonds break normally. You are in trouble only if an opponent has four or more diamonds headed by the jack.

Sooner or later you are forced to take the ace of clubs, and then you must go after the diamonds. How do you play the suit?

Even if you're from dear old Glasgow you must lead the ace of diamonds from your hand and wastefully drop dummy's ten of diamonds on the trick.

DUMMY

Next, you lead a diamond to dummy's queen. When West discards a low heart (hoping you'll notice only the color and think it is a diamond), you know that you need a finesse through East's jack.

You are in a position to lead the eight of diamonds from dummy and overtake with the nine of diamonds in your own hand. Now you can continue the suit and run your nine tricks.

If you had been . . . shall we say conservative? . . . on the first diamond, you would be leading the ten of diamonds on the third trick in the suit.

NO COVER

East would not cover with his jack, and the lead would stay in dummy.

This would limit you to three diamond tricks instead of five.

Now if anybody wires in that Ian McLeod, now a member of the British Cabinet, once played on the British bridge team, I plan to ignore it.

McLeod is an old English name, and I wouldn't want to spoil my story by thinking otherwise.

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

HIGHWAY PATTERN CHANGING IN NORTH MARIN

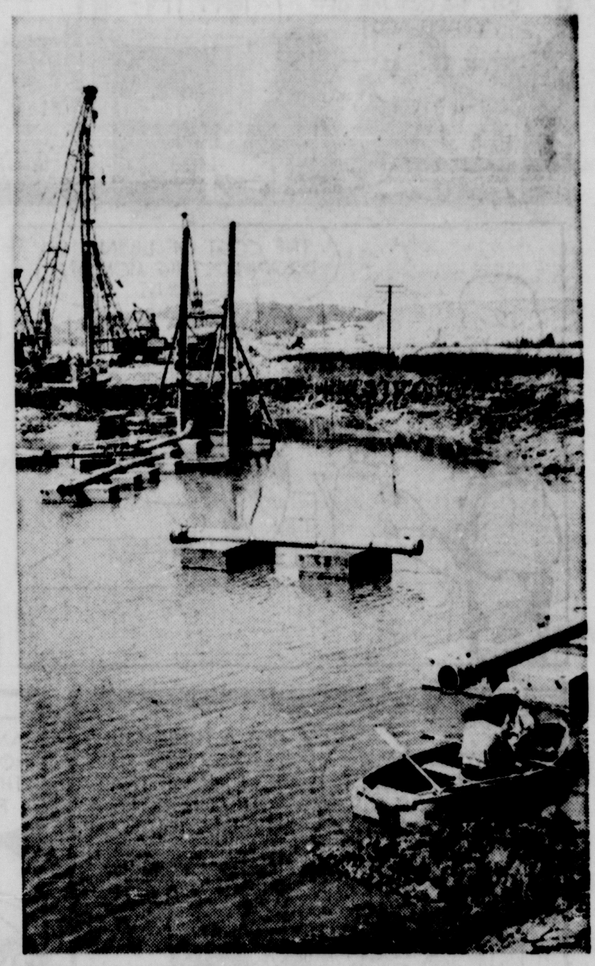
Two major highway construction jobs are under way in North Marin, at Black Point Cutoff-Redwood Highway intersection and at Hamilton Air Force Base connection with Redwood Highway. This aerial photo shows Black Point Cutoff interchange project as it appears from above. Hills are being lowered and Highway 37 alignment changed to reduce congestion and hazards.

FUTURE OVERPASS — Southbound traffic from Novato will use overcrossing atop these pillars to reach Highway 37 when new interchange is completed. Present bottleneck where the two highways meet—and many accidents occurring at stop lights there—will be eliminated.

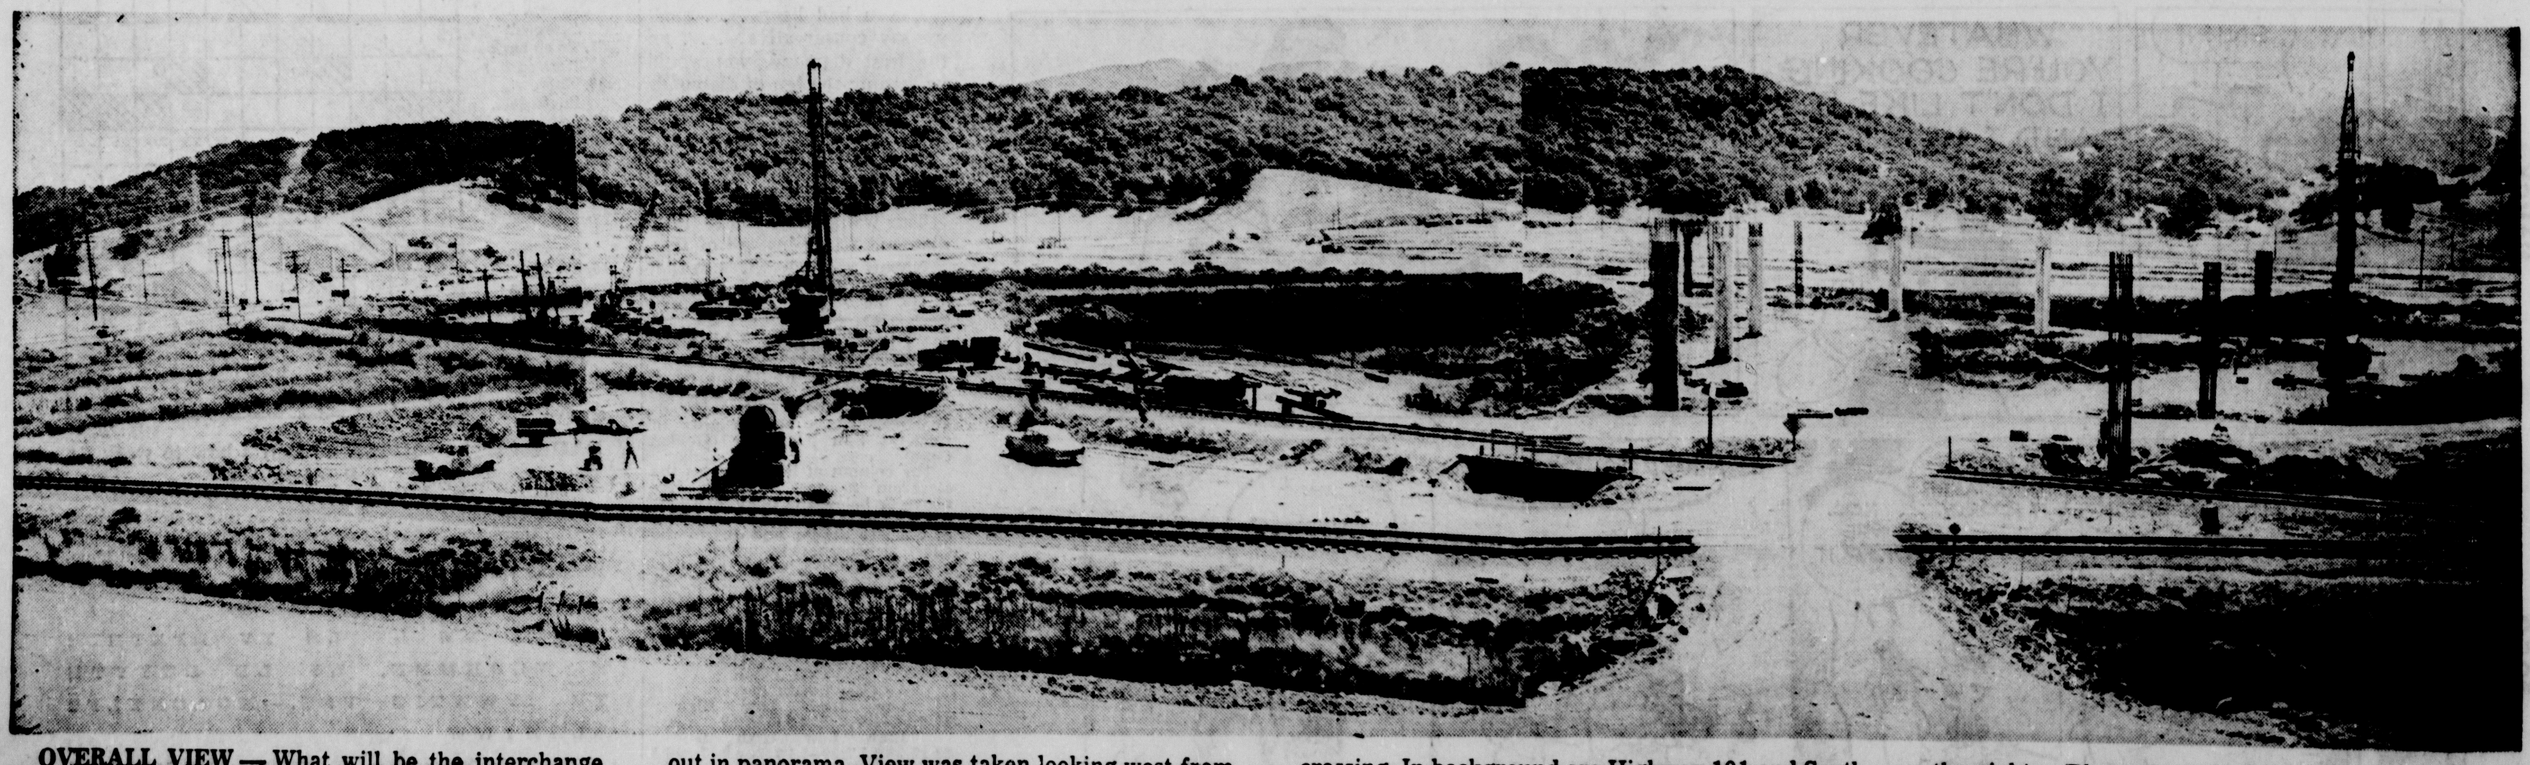
DAILY Independent Journal Est. 1861
SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

HILL BEING LOWERED — This is view looking north from Marinwood overpass as hill is cut down down for new portion of divided highway leading toward Hamilton Air Force Base and Novato. Full freeway will result, eliminating bottleneck where road now runs between hills.

ROUGH GOING NOW—Earth moving vehicles bounce up and down St. Vincent's Hill where it is being cut away and graded for what will be a smooth, easy rise for Highway 101 motorists of the future.



THIS WILL BE A ROAD—Pipes will carry water and this backflow will be eliminated and filled for part of Black Point Cutoff-Redwood Highway interchange now under construction near Novato.



OVERALL VIEW — What will be the interchange for traffic on Highways 37 and 101 here is spread out in panorama. View was taken looking west from new Highway 37 route (now dirt road) to overcrossing. In background are Highway 101 and South Novato Boulevard (present Highway 37 connection). Novato is off picture to the left; San Rafael far to the right. De Luxe Treatment For Marin's Water

See Page M10

VISITORS TO RANCHO NICASIO get a friendly welcome from big Nick Kobseff, co-owner of the establishment where he performs duties that range from host to cook to bottle washer to waiter to bartender. The former professional athlete is also Nicasio's postmaster, a volunteer fireman, a grocer and many other things including a tireless volunteer worker on behalf of innumerable community and charitable programs. (Independent-Journal photo)

Big Nick Laughs His Way Through Life

Nicasio's Jack Of All Trades Is Never Too Busy For Fun

By JIM GILMARTIN

Nick Kobseff is a robust American-Russian who looks Italian and sounds like Andy Devine when his high-pitched, gravelly voice breaks into laughter — which is frequently.

As co-owner of Rancho Nicasio, he's a jack of all trades whose duties range from cook to bottle washer, bartender to waiter, janitor to postmaster, volunteer fireman to grocer and gas pump jockey to proud owner of two honest-to-goodness buffalos, among other things.

Those are some of his daily duties at the Rancho.

IN HIS "SPARE" time Kobseff has dabbled in a multitude of interests, such as chairman for March of Dimes; organizer, sponsor and umpire in the San Geronimo Little League; co-owner and manager of a professional fighter; would-be candidate for U.S. Congress; sub-scout for a major league ball club and—well, you name it and Kobseff has probably done it.

If you think this man sounds like a complex character—with emphasis on the noun — you're absolutely right.

Just sit down with him a few hours and you'll find yourself laughing most of the time as he talks of his 47 hectic years in this world—about his buffalos, his prize fighter, his "talking" dog, his "race" horse, his service in World War II, his abortive candidacy for U.S. Congress, etc., etc.

"CONGRESS!!??" you ask incredulously?

Correct; that was Nick's most recent headline-maker last December when he filed his candidacy for Congress as a Democrat—without the backing of the Democratic endorsing convention.

To say he created a furor among Democratic big-wigs would be putting it mildly. Anyway, it ended almost as fast as it started, for someone dug up a thing called the Hatch Act which prohibits government employees from running for office while holding a federal job. As postmaster of Nicasio (for the past eight years), Kobseff had to withdraw.

"I honestly feel I would have been successful," he observes.

THAT POLITICAL fling was typical of Kobseff: You never know what to expect of him.

"He acts and thinks left-handed," his partner, Glenn Kerch, says.

Eight years ago Kobseff bought a buffalo and corralled it at the Rancho, "just as an attraction," he explains.

Now how many buffalos do you see roaming around Marin County?

Just recently Big Nick "adopted" another buffalo. How often do you see TWO buffalos around here??

KOBSEFF IS liable to buy anything that meets his fancy. Although he knew little about the pro boxing game, in 1960 he and Southern Marin restaurateur Lou Sabella purchased the contract of lightweight fighter Bobby Scanlon. Under their management Irish Bobby won three fights — including the New York State lightweight title — and lost one. But Scanlon developed "double vision" and was suspended by the California Athletic Commission.

Scanlon also was known as a problem child, difficult to manage, so as soon as he was medically cleared and regained his license, the Marin restaurateurs sold his contract.

Of Scanlon, Kobseff shakes his head, "Boy, that kid's a domino, a human domino. If they had a lot of Scanlons around they wouldn't have to build any dams."

ONE GOT THE impression Scanlon is a dynamic character.

As a former pro ballplayer with the old Mission Reds of the Pacific Coast League, Kobseff is a dyed-in-the-wool baseball nut. In past years he has played and managed semi-pro teams, umpired and still keeps active as a scout for the Detroit Tigers. Last year he signed two San Anselmo boys to Tiger farm contracts — Vince Pallavicini and Nino Geminiani. Vince was released recently, but Nino is still in there pitching.

Now, about that "talking" dog we mentioned earlier:

IT WAS A Labrador named "Zip" and Nick taught it to go "Haaam-burr-grr" when he asked it: "What do you want to eat?"

Not much of a vocabulary, Nick admits, "but what do you expect from a dog?"

Someone stole poor old Zip.

Kobseff's "animal kingdom" also included a thoroughbred horse named Ranimako. Nick got him as a colt,

"CAN WASH AND WEAR GARMENTS BE DRYCLEANED?"

This question is being asked more and more. It is growing in importance. While wash and wear fabrics can be washed and worn, too often they appear just that way. Now the trend to wash and wear has extended into high styled cottons and cotton combinations with synthetics. If you are at all proud of your appearance, you hesitate to dunk these garments in a washer. I don't blame you.

Getting back to the question, yes of course, your wash and wear garments can be drycleaned and finished handsomely by a professional who is familiar with current fashion trends. It may be convenient in an occasional emergency to own a garment from which you can remove soil yourself. However, your time is too important to spend washing clothes, especially in hot weather. A professional drycleaner can cleanse and finish your wash and wear frocks beautifully. Many, many thrifty and style-conscious homemakers are doing this.

The smart original crispness your cottons possessed can be restored, too, by resizing. Bows, frills, large collars and cuffs need professional care that wash and wear treatment cannot give. Your drycleaner can and will resize your wash and wear-ables in a manner that will delight you.

NICK KOBSEFF DONS the white attire of the chef in the kitchen of his Rancho Nicasio restaurant as he cooks up something tasty for his guests. Kobseff has been a part-owner of the popular rancho since 1952. (Independent-Journal photo) saw potential racing greatness in him and planned a turf career. After two years of "babying" Ranimako, Nick called in a veteran trainer to appraise the thoroughbred's chances in racing.

THE TRAINER took one look at Ranimako, shook his head and told Nick he had a fine pet but no race horse. Too spoiled for the spartan life of thoroughbred training.

So the disappointed Kobseff wisely shipped Ranimako off to pasture in Marysville, where it soon was acclaimed as the best cutting horse in the valley.

"A helluva note for a thoroughbred, eh?" Nick roars. "Believe me, I spent many nights sleeping with that horse. Come to think of it, I guess I did spoil him."

The Rancho menagerie has also included, among other things, four beautiful peacocks, which are still there, and two dwarfed white-faced steers, which are gone. It seems the latter had some sort of intestinal ailment and had to be slaughtered.

"WE HAD A big barbecue," Nick relates, "but it took me about a year to get over the ordeal. Kids loved the dwarfed steer, so mothers wouldn't talk to me for a long time when they heard I slaughtered them."

Those are just a few chapters in the Kobseff life. At the Rancho he and his wife, Mary, and partners Glenn Kerch and Dorothy Dolcini keep busy operating the bar and restaurant, general store, semi-private swimming pool, picnic grounds and gas pump.

Nick is liable to be found doing any one of a number of chores. Mary finds time to help out, chiefly as cook, and raise their two adopted sons, Michael, 6, and Gregory, 4. The Kobseff home adjoins the Rancho property in the beautiful, redwood-studded San Geronimo Valley.

DURING HIS YEARS at the Rancho, Kobseff has become prominent in charitable organizations. He has served as area chairman for the March of Dimes for the past eight years and in 1960 was general chairman of the Marin County Dimes campaign.

He's proud to claim, "That year was the highest amount ever raised in the county."

Nick also has served as area chairman for the United Crusade and has commendations for his work for the California Paralyzed Veterans. He also has helped Little League, the Nicasio 4-H Club, Nicasio Mothers Club, is a member of the Godfather's Club of St. Vincent's School for Boys, San Rafael, and once each month donates a pint of his Type O blood to the Blood Bank.

FOR EACH OF the past eight years the Rancho Nicasio has sponsored a March of Dimes Night and one year hit a high of $1,500 for a single night. The average has been about $700 a year, Kobseff figures.

Big Nick's civic memberships include charter member of the Corte Madera Lions Club, Druids of Nicasio, Nicasio Parlor of the Native Sons and the Marin County Sheriff's Posse.

He's also retired chief of the Nicasio Volunteer Fire Department.

If this profile has wandered aimlessly, it's because that's the way Nick tells it, jumping from one subject to another.

LET'S GO back to the beginning.

Born Nov. 20, 1916, in San Francisco, Nick Kobseff is one of five children of Michael and Mary Kobseff, who came to the United States from Russia in 1906. His father, a tinsmith, died in 1945; his mother, now 82, still resides at the 839 Wisconsin Street home on Russian Hill where Nick was born.

When asked his full name, the big guy replies, "Just plain Nick Kobseff. If anyone called me Nicholas, I'd be insulted."

Nick has two brothers — George of San Mateo and Bill of San Francisco — and two sisters — Sadie Mana of San Mateo and Nellie Shubin of Kerman, near Fresno.

NICASIO POSTMASTER is just one of the several jobs and titles which busy Nick Kobseff holds down. Here he serves one of his patrons who has come in for his mail. Kobseff and his wife Mary added the post office along with a general store and gas pump to the Rancho Nicasio facilities shortly after they acquired the property in 1952. A swimming pool was added later. (Independent-Journal photo)

Life's A Ball For Nicasio's Nick Kobseff

Webster Elementary School and later Mission High, where his pitching talents caught the interest of pro scouts. He quit school in his junior year to sign with the old Mission Reds of the Pacific Coast League and stayed in the Reds' farm system from 1934 through 1936.

An auto accident late in 1934 injured Kobseff's pitching arm, so the Reds converted him to a first baseman.

During his pro ball career Nick played with such stars as Eddie Joost, Joe Orengo, Dominic DiMaggio and Clarence Feiber, to name a few. He is still quite friendly with many established baseball stars and officials.

DURING HIS brief pro career the Russian kid who was born with a big smile on his face managed to complete his high school education, graduating in 1935.

When it became obvious Nick was going nowhere fast in pro ball, he hung up his glove and spikes in 1936 and took a job as a laborer with the Owens Illinois Glass Co. in Oakland. There, in two years, at the age of 22, he rose to rank of crew foreman —youngest foreman in the history of the plant.

In his 1936-1941 employment at the glass firm, Nick also found time to manage the company's semi-pro baseball team and flirt with, court and marry a co-worker, the former Mary Pilant, a native of Omaha, Neb.

WHEN ASKED why Mary came to the West Coast, Nick grins, "I dunno. I guess she was looking for ME."

Nick couldn't remember the exact date of their wedding, but Mary reminded him it was May 7, 1933.

They'd just celebrated their silver wedding anniversary. What a memory!

When World War II broke out Nick volunteered for service and was with the Navy Amphibious Force from early 1942 through 1946. He became a chief radioman and served in both the Atlantic and Pacific theaters, earning five Battle Stars for taking part in the initial landings at North Africa, Gela (Sicily), Salerno (Italy), Normandy (France) and Leyte in the Philippine Islands.

OF HIS action-filled service stint, Kobseff laughs, "I guess that's why I'm such a nut."

It was after Nick's discharge in 1946 that he and Mary embarked on a business career in San Francisco, forming a partnership with Kerch, a former schoolmate of Nick's at Mission High. Their early ventures were a gas station, home appliance and auto supplies, and a tavern.

Nick meanwhile, developed a case of wanderlust, decided there's gold in them thar hills, and bought interest in a gold mine in Mariposa County while Glenn stayed behind at the gas station. It was a short-lived venture, however, as the big guy suffered a rupture, became seriously ill and had to hang up his miner's tools, returning to San Francisco.

THE KOBSEFFS sold their San Francisco interests in 1949 and came to Marin, settling in Corte Madera where for three years Nick handled the Southern Marin agency for the San Francisco Chronicle, ran a gas station and a sweet shop.

He also served as Corte Madera's first recreation director during that period.

In 1952 the Kobseffs dropped everything and purchased the Rancho Nicasio from the Walter Lake family, forming a partnership with Jack and June Barnes, then of Nicasio.

During their first year at the Rancho the Kobseffs and Barneses added a general store, post office and gas pump. After a year, the Barneses sold their interest and Nick and Mary carried on alone for about a year until Kerch rejoined them as a business partner. Kerch, his wife, Hazel, and two sons also reside in a home adjoining the Rancho.

IN 1959 KOBSEFF and Kerch added the swimming pool—a popular summertime retreat for the good folks of the valley and guests.

In 1960 Miss Dolcini, a native of Nicasio, purchased interest in the Rancho.

When asked about the future, Nick Kobseff showed concern about preserving the rusticity of San Geronimo Valley.

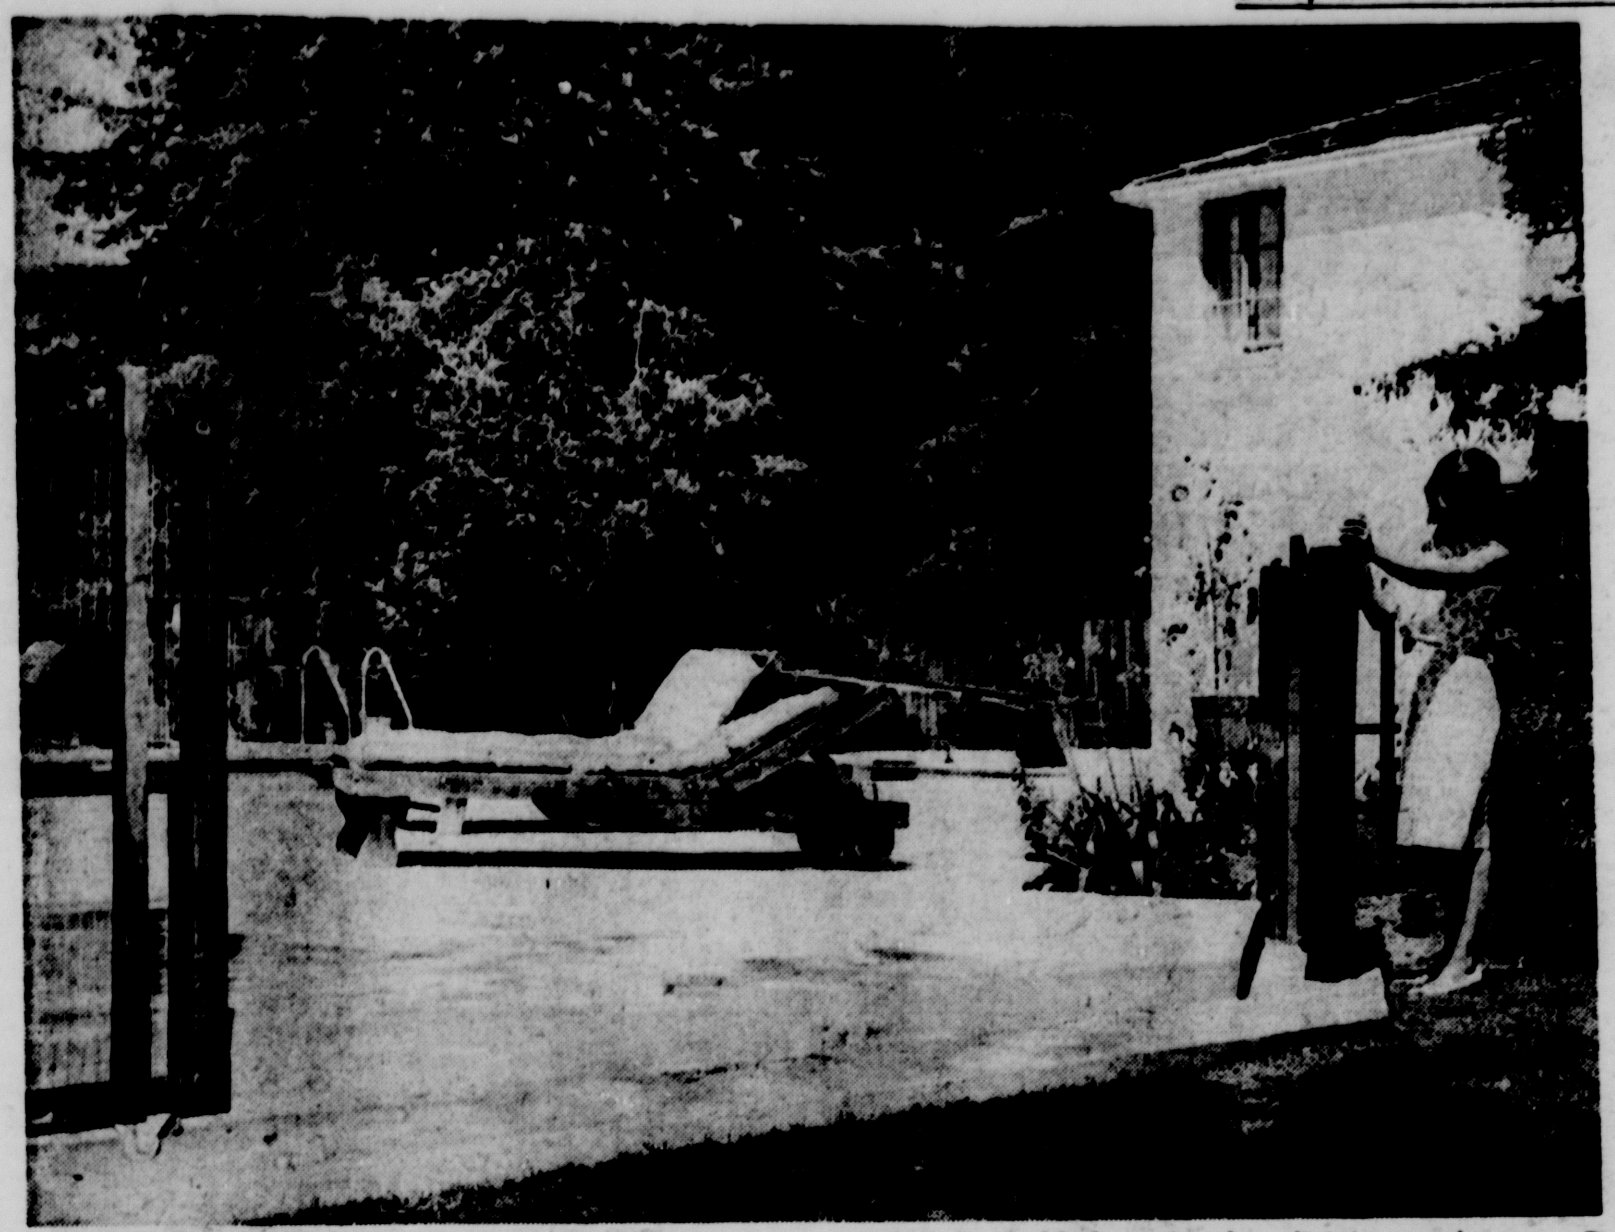
"This (Nicasio) is a historic site. We're western out here and we want to keep it that way. With dairies, lumber and agriculture this valley was once the blood and guts of Marin County. I hope land developers won't ever ruin it. It's easy to destroy something, but you can never bring it back."

MEANWHILE, Kobseff continues his multitudinous jobs at the Rancho, laughing his way through life, having a ball, helping charity and dreaming of new ventures.

If some day he announces his candidacy for President of the United States, don't be surprised.

To use his own expression, Nick Kobseff ". . . is a domino. A human domino."

THE VOLUNTEER fire department of Nicasio is still another major interest in the life of Nick Kobseff. He's a former chief of the department, and still extremely active in the program.



WHILE RELAXING on the paved patio which surrounds the swimming pool behind her Kent Woodlands home, Mrs. Walter Kieckhefer has had the roll-away fence pulled back so that she could also enjoy the adjoining garden area. But now, about to go into the house, she is closing the fence, panel by panel, so that small children will not wander into the pool area. (Independen-Journal photos)

This Safety Fence Will Roll Away

With three small children of their own and still others in the neighborhood, it was important to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kieckhefer's peace-of-mind that some kind of fencing be provided for the swimming pool at their home in Kent Woodlands.

And yet the Kieckhefers were reluctant to cut off the pool and its paved decking entirely from the remainder of their garden.

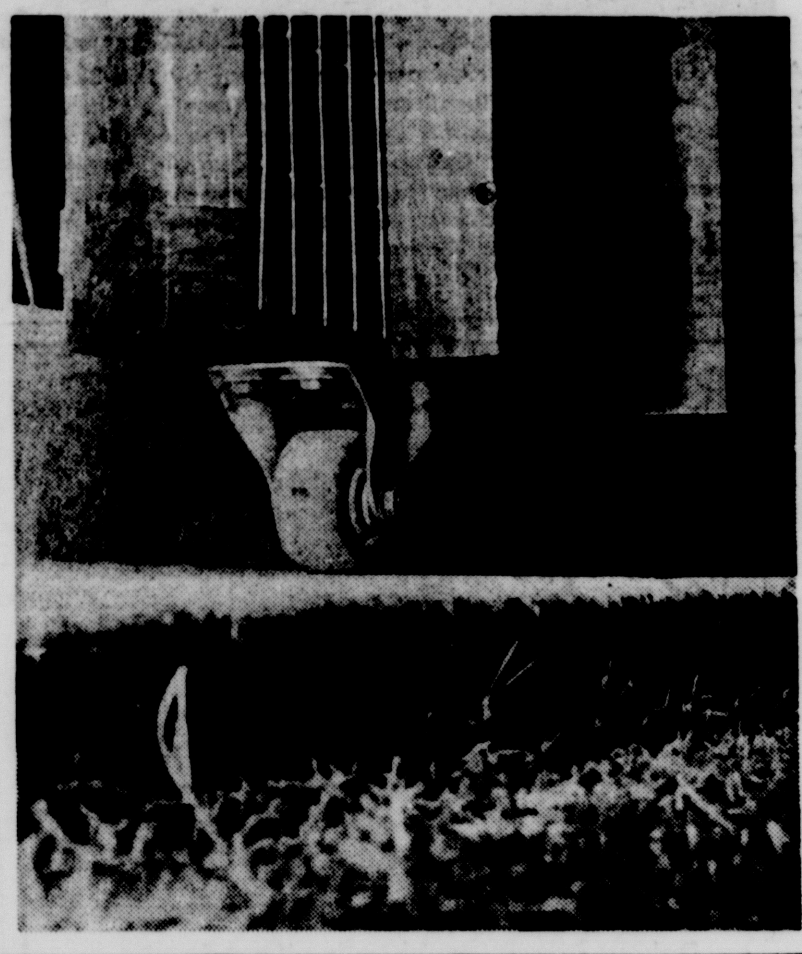
Landscape architect William L. Kapranos solved their problem for them.

He designed a safety fence that rolls away.

When the adult Kieckhefers are using their garden or pool, and are thus on hand to watch the little ones, the fence telescopes back in panels and the entire area becomes one garden or outdoor living space.

But when Mr. or Mrs. Kieckhefer cannot personally be on watch, the fence is rolled shut, providing a safeguard against the tragedy that can result when a toddler strays too close to a pool's edge.

The Kieckhefer fence was featured in a recent issue of Sunset Magazine.



THE ROLL-AWAY FENCE is closed and little Fritz Kieckhefer, 4, and the other Kieckhefer children have a safety shield between them and the hazards of the swimming pool. Of course, no swimming pool is completely childproof. But the youngster who scrambles over this fence is likely to be old enough to be a competent swimmer. At right can be seen the simple but efficient roll-away system which landscape architect William L. Kapranos designed for the safety fence.

A FLYING BOXCAR C-119, based and flown by the 349th Troop Carrier Wing at Hamilton Air Force Base, is washed clean by a decontamination specialist of the 8651st Air Force Reserve Recovery Group—just as it would be if it had been on an atomic warfare mission and subjected to fallout. Summer Camp Is No Vacation For Marin Air Force Reservists

Strenuous Training Keeps The Men Of The 8651st Ready For Action

While many of their neighbors are lolling in vacation resorts, or enjoying camping and fishing trips, some 60 Marinites are now putting in what are annually the most strenuous two weeks of their year.

They are the Marin men who belong to the Air Force Reserve and its 8651st Air Force Reserve Recovery Group, headquartered at San Francisco's Fort Miley.

Right now they are in the midst of their annual summer encampment training exercises at Hamilton Air Force Base and Fort Miley.

IT IS THE Air Force's way of keeping its reservists sharp and ready for their wartime mission, should the need arise.

That mission for the 8651st: To contribute to the Continental Air Command program designed to bolster this nation's ability to survive surprise nuclear attack.

The specific idea is to provide a pool of trained reservists who can in time of crisis, assist in the recovery, repairing and refueling of Air Force combat craft for defensive and retaliatory action against a surprise aggressor.

IN TIME OF such extreme emergency, the reservists would operate from civilian or inactive military airports, should the home bases of tactical aircraft be rendered useless by enemy action.

The San Francisco recovery group is responsible for the administration and support of two recovery squadrons and five individual training units that meet at Fort Miley, San Bruno, Hamilton Base, the Santa Rosa Airport and the Arcata Airport.

While the total strength of the group is 357 men and comes from throughout Northern California, the outfit has a strong Marin flavor from the top down.

Air Reservists Are Vital Link In Uncle Sam's Defense Effort

O. R. (Dick) Street of 15 Hillcrest Court, San Anselmo, who entered the old Army Air Force at Hamilton Field as a private in August of 1941.

He earned his commission through the aviation cadet program and served with the 93rd Bomb Group in England and North Africa, flying 31 missions on B-24s. His wartime decorations include the Distinguished Flying Cross with cluster, Air Medal with four clusters, Silver Star and the French Croix de Guerre with Silver Star.

Since his return from active duty, Colonel Street has been an example of the kind of devotion which has made the reservist a potent factor in the nation's defense plans.

IN ADDITION to uninterrupted service as an active reservist, he chartered and was the first president of the Marin Chapter of the Reserve Officers Assn. Today he is California state vice president for that organization.

He is also a member of the Air Force Assn.

As a civilian, he is an agent for the State Farm Insurance Co. in San Rafael, serves on the College of Marin Advisory Board and has been treasurer for the past four years of the San Anselmo Little League.

The Marinites who serve in various capacities in the squadrons making up the 8651st Recovery Group represent a number of professions and occupations—and include one mayor, Fairfax's W. E. Radtke, who is a lieutenant colonel in the Air Force Reserves.

SIX MARINITES are key men on the headquarters staff, directly responsible to Colonel Street for the performance and readiness of all personnel assigned to the units.

For instance, Robert L. Krohn of 3 Grand Court, San Rafael, an industrial arts instructor at San Rafael High School on week days during the school year, becomes Lieutenant Colonel Krohn, responsible for all operations and training of the recovery group, on weekends and during the summer encampment.

Assisting Krohn as education and training officers is Maj. Lloyd M. Bruce of 10 Meriam Drive, San Rafael, chairman of the industrial arts department at San Francisco's Marina Junior High School.

STILL ANOTHER educator, Col. Paul J. Wata of 805 Batancia Way, San Rafael, is the director of administrative services for the group. In that capacity he is responsible for the administrative control for the group and for the establishment of policies and procedures. At Tamalpais High School, he is chairman of the business education department.

Younger officers frequently refer to the old-timers as "World War II vintage."

This tag is especially appropriate for the information staff officer, Maj. Philip Hiaring of 95 Suffield Avenue, San Anselmo, because, during the week, he is assistant director of public relations for the Wine Institute in San Francisco.

AT GROUP headquarters he coordinates public relations, community affairs activities, press, radio and television work and internal communications.

From Monday through Friday, George L. Cadwalader, 25 Windward Road, Belevedere, is an assistant trust officer and attorney for the Crocker-Anglo Bank in San Francisco. In his colonel's uni-

Prosper Rufer of 9 Marina Boulevard, San Rafael, and he's off for one of the weekend meetings of the 8651st Air Force Reserve Recovery Group. Right now Major Rufer and the other men of the 8651st are attending their annual summer training encampment at Fort Miley and Hamilton Air Force Base.

THE RECRUITING OF RESERVISTS is always a prime interest of the 8651st Air Force Reserve Recovery Group. Here, examining a new recruiting poster, are, left to right, Lt. Colonel Marvin D. Laskey of the regular Air Force, unit advisor to the 8651st; Col. O. R. (Dick) Street, the group's commanding officer, and Maj. Philip Hiaring, information staff officer. Another banker playing a vital role at Fort Miley is Staff Sgt. Christopher Morrow of 123 Vendola Drive, San Rafael. Working for the Bank of America in San Rafael, Morrow relies extensively upon his 35 years of experience with that organization in the performance of his Air Force Reserve assignment as accounting and finance supervisor for the 8651st Recovery Group.

Hurt, wife Jeanne and 7-year-old daughter Caitlin reside at 65 Mirabel Avenue, Mill Valley, where he operates the Gerhardt-Hurt Studio. In the reserve unit he is a lieutenant colonel.

YOUTH BASEBALL is a prime interest of O. R. (Dick) Street, in addition to his work as an insurance agent and his duties as colonel and commander of the 8651st Air Force Reserve Recovery Group. He serves as treasurer of the San Anselmo Little League. With him are his two sons, Ron, 12, left, who plays for the American Legion team in the Little League, and Richard, 16, second baseman for Jack's Drugs in the Senior League.

COLONELS AND MAJORS are no great rarity in the military reserves, but mayors are. The 8651st Air Force Reserve Recovery Group can claim one in W. E. (Ed) Radtke, seen here in the performance of his duties as mayor of the city of Fairfax. He's a lieutenant colonel in the reserves.

CHRIS MORROW'S civilian job with the Bank of America in San Rafael qualifies him for his Air Force Reserve assignment as accounting and finance supervisor for the 8651st Recovery Group. He is a staff sergeant. (Photos by S/Sgt. Price Hall) second hat as non-commissioned officer in charge of recruiting.

In addition, he makes up one-half of the only father-and-son team in the group. His son, William, is a member of the squadron that trains at Santa Rosa.

Still another Marin contribution to the success of the group is not a reservist. While the reservists are responsible for their own affairs, a regular Air Force officer is assigned to each recovery group as a unit advisor. Advising the 8651st is Lt. Col. Marvin D. Laskey of 304 Holly Drive, San Rafael, an Air Force career man since 1942.

He serves as liaison between the reserve recovery group and the Continental Air Command.

COLONEL STREET says that, because of the devotion of these men and others like them, he can report that the 8651st, less than two years after it was started from scratch, has achieved a state of operational readiness.

But he adds: "We will continue to work constantly to achieve perfection in our assigned mission, even though we hope we may never be called upon to put that training to actual use.

"By being prepared, we feel that the 8651st, along with all the other reserve units of our armed forces, is making a valuable contribution to our nation's over-all deterrent force that must be considered by any potential aggressor."

THIS, COLONEL Streeter, his officers and his men feel, makes the sacrifice of their weekends and two weeks from each summer well worthwhile.

It's a long ways from a summer vacation. But it's a job that has to be done.

And Colonel Streeter is well aware that the men in the group aren't the only ones who are making sacrifices.

He recalls this statement from Air Force Secretary Eugene M. Zuchert, made last year while speaking of the contribution reservists are making to the defense effort:

"PEOPLE WHO accept reserve status today must commit themselves to leading two lives—one for themselves, the other for their country. Reserve duty will require long hours of study and work, hours that once belonged to the family."

This sacrifice on the part of the wives and children of the reservists is too often overlooked, Colonel Streeter points out.

How do the wives of these men feel about their husbands' participation in the reserve program?

Pretty Anne Kirkbride, wife of Capt. Thomas B. Kirkbride of 239 Via Lerida, San Rafael, sums up the feelings of most of these "weekend widows" in this manner:

"TOM ENJOYS his reserve activities, and we both derive a feeling of satisfaction from our belief that his service is valuable to our country. Also, I know our family will appreciate the retirement pay that he is accruing."

Then smiling, she adds: "And although the Air Force cuts into Tom's weekend time, it hasn't yet reached the point where he has made me start cutting the grass."

SCHOOL teachers hold down a number of key posts in the 8651st Air Force Reserve Recovery Group. At right, the two officers - educators seen reviewing plans for a training exercise are Maj. Lloyd H. Bruce, left, chairman of the industrial arts department at San Francisco's Marina Junior High School and a San Rafael resident, and Lt. Col. Robert L. Krohn, also a San Rafael resident and an industrial arts teacher at San Rafael High School. Colonel Krohn is the group's education and training officer, Major Bruce is his assistant.

There's A Difference In Your Water

New San Geronimo Treatment Plant Applies Latest Purification Methods

By DON KEOWN

If you live in the Marin Municipal Water District, you have been drinking "de luxe" water since last October.

You may not have noticed the difference, but your health probably has.

October, 1962, is the date when the district's new $1,725,000 water treatment plant in the San Geronimo Valley went into operation, applying the most modern and exacting rapid-sand-filtering and chemical-treatment techniques in purifying the water supply for most of the 100,000 consumers in the district.

SOUTH MARIN areas served by the MMWD had already been getting that kind of water since 1959 when the district's first treatment plant at Bon Tempe Lake, above Phoenix Lake, went into operation.

But the rest of the district had been drinking and using water "fresh" from the district's lakes, chlorinated, to be sure, to make it bacteriologically safe, but submitted to not such elaborate purification program as it now undergoes.

Explains William R. Seegar, general manager and chief engineer for the district:

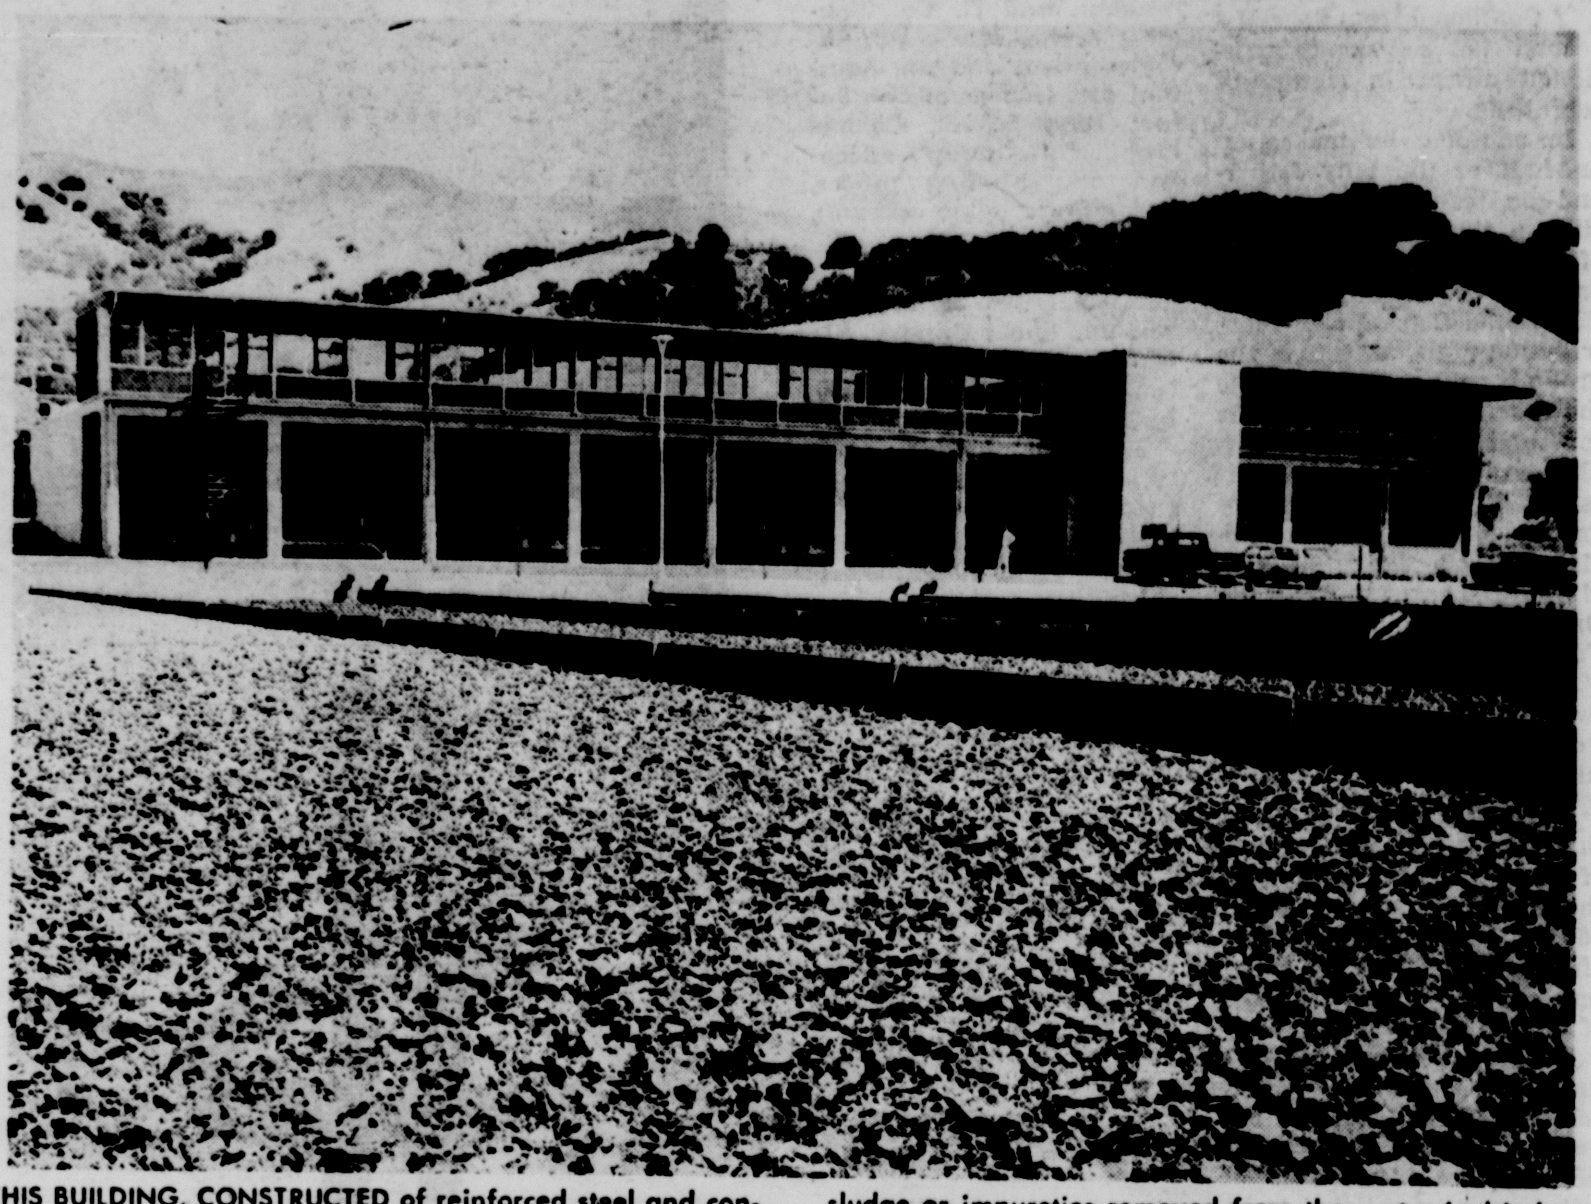
"WHAT WE HAVE been selling in the past was the 'standard' product. What we are selling now is the 'de luxe'."

The difference, he admits, is seldom noticeable to the consumer, except for a lessening of the tendency for discoloration of the water. "But," he adds, "there is a considerable improvement from the public health standpoint."

The necessity for extending the treatment of the water to virtually the entire service area of the district (only a few small localities are not now so served, and they soon will be included too) was the result, Seeger explains, in the shifting of the emphasis to Nicasio Lake as the principal source of water.

"PREVIOUSLY," he says, "when Alpine and Bon Tempe were the major sources of our water supply, we could control the watershed area and prevent contamination. We cannot exercise any such control over the Nicasio watershed because of the agricultural nature of the surrounding area. Consequently, there was a very definite turgidity of the water, especially that coming from Nicasio. So a treatment plant became a necessity."

Seeger stresses, however, that at no time was water delivered that was below accepted public health standards.



THIS BUILDING, CONSTRUCTED of reinforced steel and concrete, shelters the control house and filter gallery of the new San Geronimo Water Treatment Plant of the Marin Municipal Water District. The office is located at right upstairs in the 200-foot-long building. The beds where the sludge or impurities removed from the water is dried can be seen in the foreground. The MMWD has scheduled an open house and public inspection for the new facilities for tomorrow, starting at 3 p.m. and continuing until 5 o'clock. (Independent-Journal photo)

The new San Geronimo Water Treatment Plant, when ultimately expanded to its full design capacity, will have a 20-million-gallons-of-water-per-day-performance rating. It will be capable, however, of operating on an overload basis for short periods, such as a summer heat wave, at a 32-million - gallons - per - day rate.

THE PLANT'S initial stage, completed last fall and now in operation, has a 10-million-gallons-per-day capacity.

The Bon Tempe plant, completed in 1959 (before that, we all drank and used untreated water), can process 10 million gallons of water per day for its Southern Marin consumers. But, unlike the facilities near Woodacre, it is not planned for future expansion.

In the event of an extreme heat wave, the district could also meet the sudden surge in demand by by-passing its treatment plants temporarily with water direct from Alpine and Bon Tempe lakes. Water from those two lakes is described by Seeger as "quite good during the summer."

THE NEW San Geronimo plant and its adpacent pumping station handle water taken from Kent as well as Nicasio Lake and transported there by pipeline. After being subjected to the carefully-controlled sand-filtering and chemical treatment, the water is stored temporarily in a huge two-million-gallon-capacity clear well until it is boosted over White's Hill by the pumping station.

The pumping station has a 10-million - gallons - per - day maximum output to meet the present capacity of the treatment plant, but it can and will be ultimately increased to 31 million gallons per day.

What makes the project at San Geronimo most unusual is that electronic devices with telemeter controls have replaced manpower almost completely. So thorough is the automation that the system requires only one man per shift, although a manually-operated plant on the same scale would require at least two and more likely three employees.

THAT ONE MAN on duty operates from controls in the San Geronimo Water Treatment Plant's main building—the control house and filter building—not only the equipment within that building, but also the facilities of the Nicasio and Kent dams, the Tocoloma, Lagunitas and new San Geronimo pumping stations, and the many smaller pumps and transmission lines. By remote control at San Geronimo, the operator can turn on and shut off pumps and otherwise operate equipment and control the flow of water throughout that system.

The Bon Tempe Water Treatment Plant is also highly automated. In fact, it runs 14 hours of each day without the presence of any operator. The difference, however, is that no pumping plant operations are involved there.

The contract for the new San Geronimo facilities was awarded to the Fred J. Early Jr. Co. of San Francisco on May 24, 1961. Kitchen & Hunt of San Francisco was the architect, Kennedy Engineers, also of San Francisco, the engineer.

THE NEW PLANT and pumping station are, Seeger says, just part of $9,329,000 which the Marin Municipal Water District has spent in the past five years for dams, treatment plants, transmission lines, pumping facilities, etc., in the western part of the district.

MMWD treatment plants operate under the direction of George Wehrheim, the district's water quality control supervisor.

The district plans to "show off' its new San Geronimo facilities tomorrow with an open house and plant inspection, starting at 3 p.m. and continuing until 5 o'clock. The treatment plant can be reached by taking Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and traveling on it to the turn-off (left) at the foot of White's Hill. The district will post signs to direct visitors to the plant.

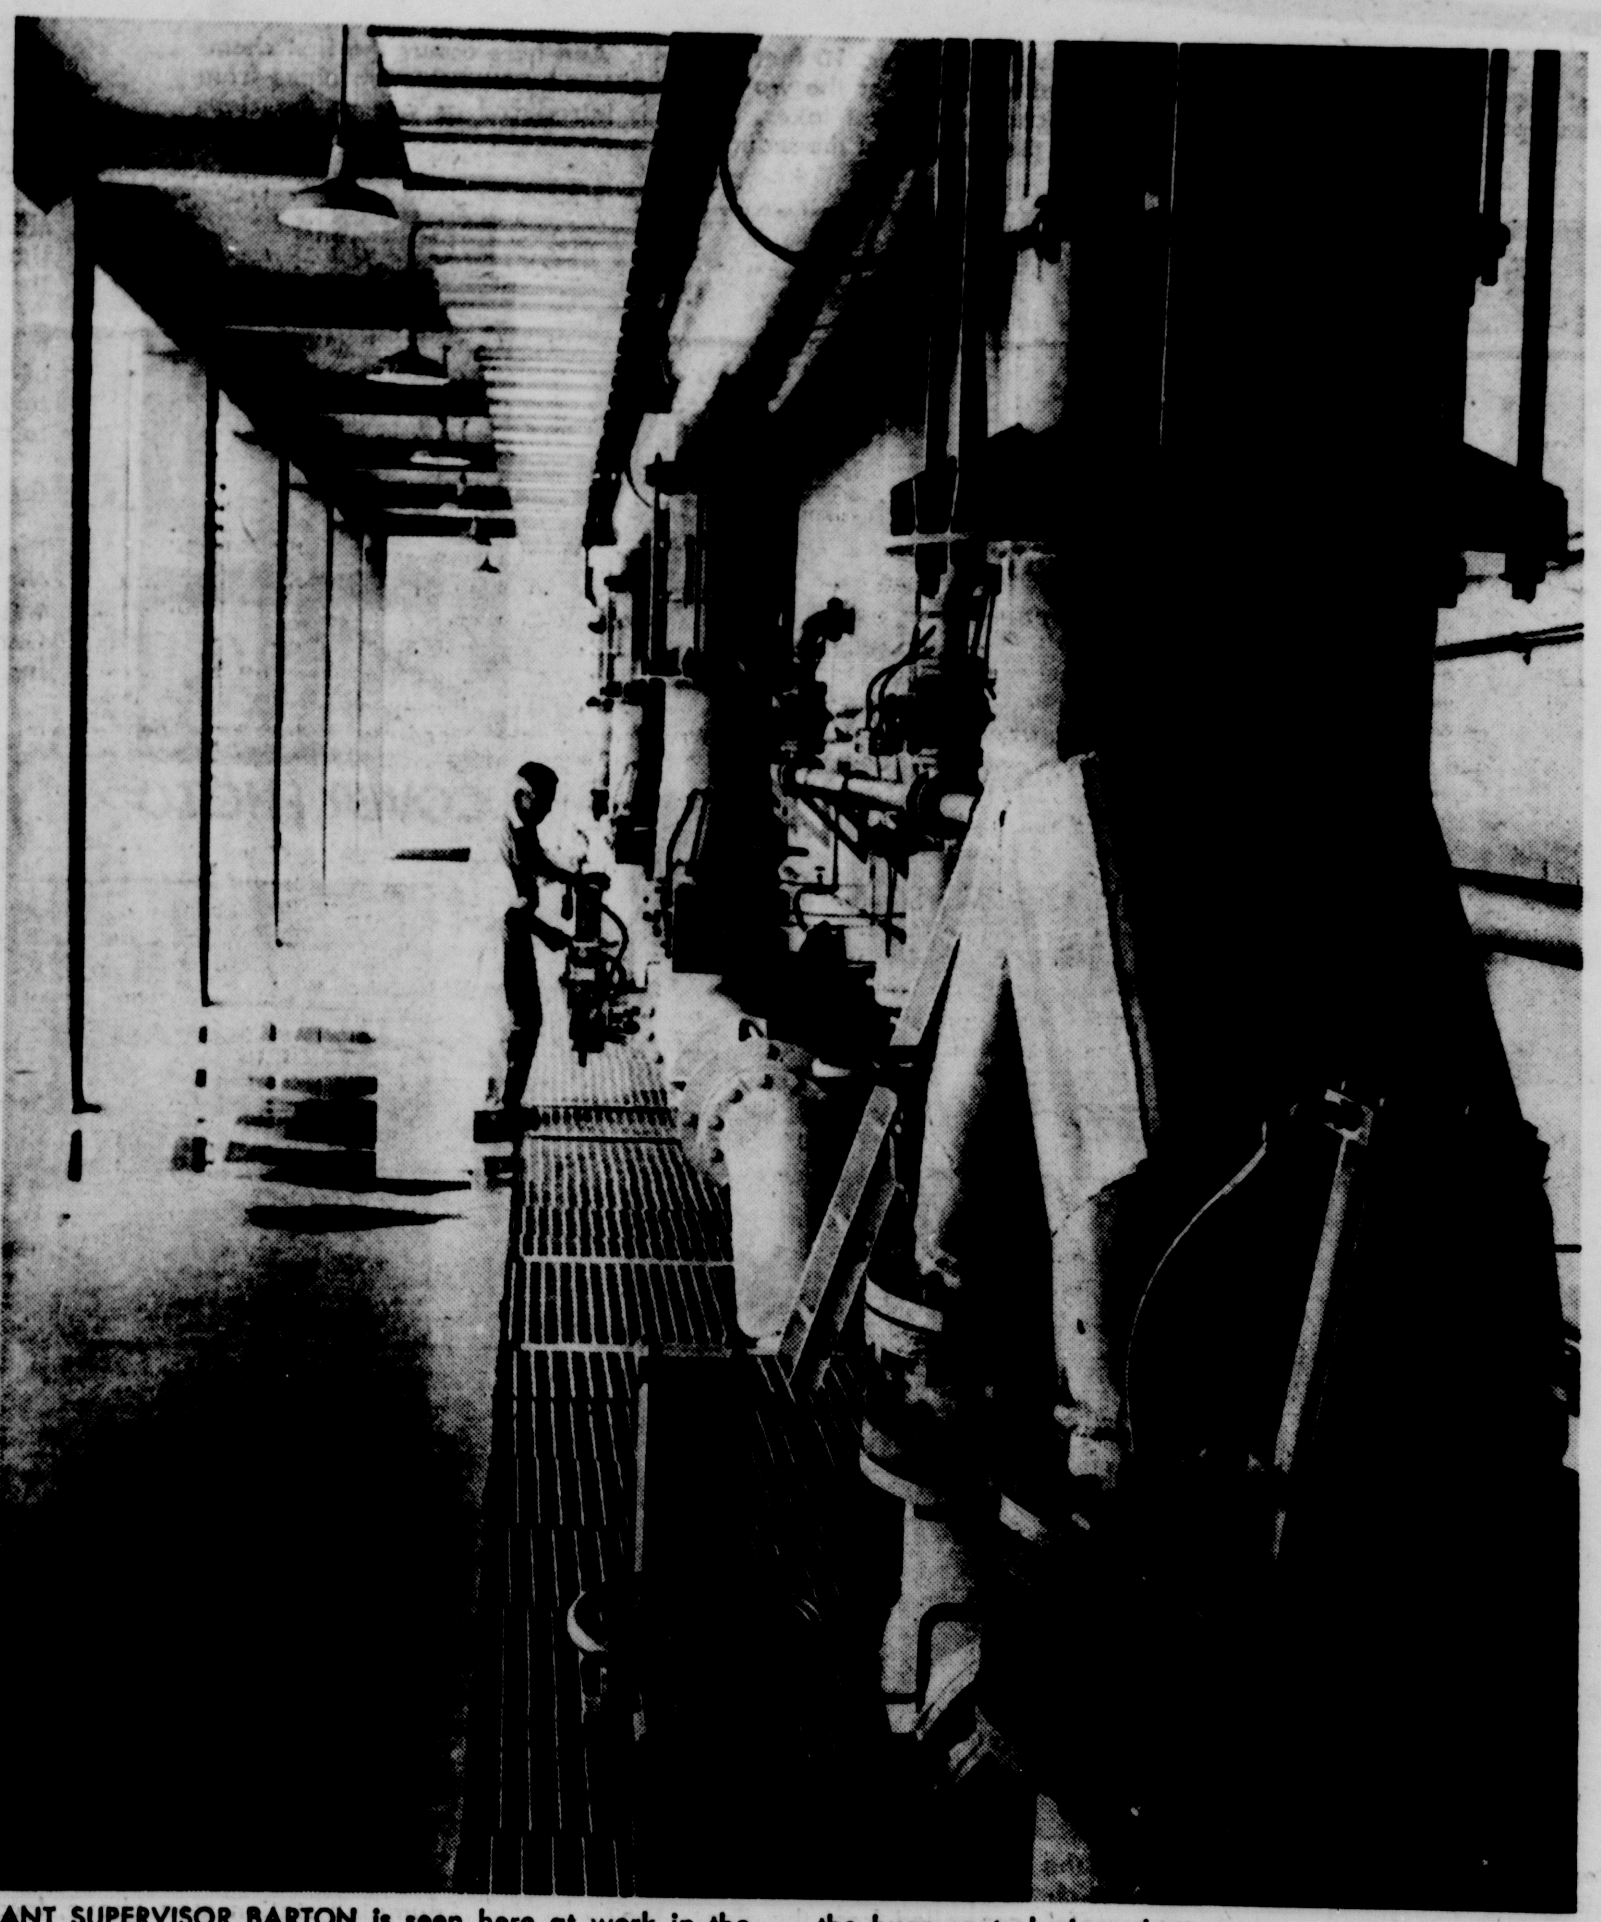
The public is being invited to take advantage of the opportunity to learn something of the elaborate precautions which the MMWD is taking to make certain that its water supply is not just pure—but "de luxe pure."

AS SEEGER puts it: "We may not notice the difference. But we all benefit from it."

If you aren't convinced, just pay special attention tomorrow to that sludge in the drying beds.

These are the impurities which the filtering and the chemical action are removing from the lake water. It once flowed unimpeded through the transmission lines, out your faucets and into your drinking glasses.

THE MAN DIRECTLY responsible for the operation of the new Marin Municipal Water District treatment plant at San Geronimo is Rollie Barton, plant supervisor. So well automated is the plant that it requires but one man psr shift for its operation.



PLANT SUPERVISOR BARTON is seen here at work in the filter gallery on the ground floor of the main building of the San Geronimo Water Treatment Plant. Note the size of the huge control pipes that are part of the system which purifies Marin's domestic water supply. See pages M-12 and M-13 for more pictures. (Independent-Journal photos)

New Products: We have just received the new EMI addition to their line; namely, the Model 319 Speaker System. For almost two years we have been featuring the EMI Model DLS 529 bookshelf loudspeaker system in our sound room. It is, and has been, one of the finest bookshelf loudspeakers, regardless of price, that we have heard. The manufacturer advertises the speaker as the "Dangerous Loudspeaker." Dangerous in that it unmercifully huminliates much costlier speakers.

The new EMI Model 319 is also a bookshelf loudspeaker, measuring 23x11½ x10¾". It is completely enclosed and comes with an exclusive woven metal grille. The speaker system uses an elliptical unit as a woofer with a patented aluminum center cone. The tweeter is a cone-type unit with a ceramic magnet. The crossover is achieved by means of specially designed dividing network and critical matching of the two cones. The response is substantially flat from 50 to 15,000 cps.

The patented elliptical center cone of the diaphragm used in the EMI woofers is made from a special grade of pure aluminum and is extremely critical in design and dimensions. Because of the remarkable stiffness of this unique aluminum center cone, there is a spectacular reduction of the cone breakup that characterizes woofers having a conventional paper cone The extremely compliant surround of all EMI woofer diaphragms is a thermoplastic resin that they call PVC. This thermoplastic resin suspension permits maximum freedom of movement with optimum damping and minimum surround-resonance peaks.

Listening and comparison tests in our sound room have been extremely gratifying. The new EMI is almost as good as its bigger brother. It has a crisp, clean sound. It has the natural sound that has been so characteristic of Model 529. The new Model 319 sells for $106.00 as compared to $169.00 for the larger model. If you are looking for a small speaker with big speaker sound, visit our sound room and listen to this new EMI. I'm sure that you will share our enthusiasm. It is truly a loudspeaker system that makes music sound like music. Full orchestral passages are reproduced without that muddy cloudiness often heard in small speaker systems. Come in and hear the difference.

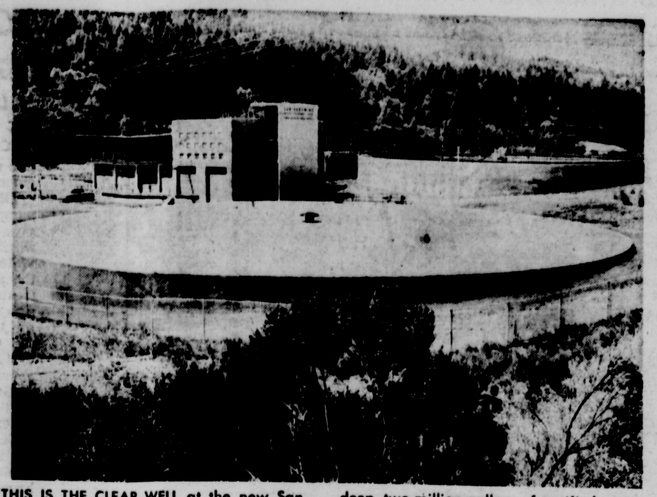
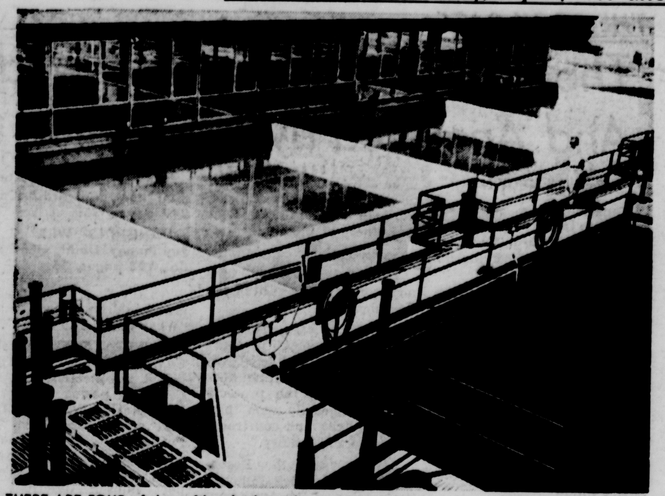
NOT A SWIMMING POOL within a swimming pool, this is the flocculation sedimentation tank at the new San Geronimo Water Treatment Plant of the Marin Municipal Water District. It is 130 feet in diameter, 15 feet in depth. And here occurs the first chemical treatment of the water brought in by transmission pipes from Nicasio and Kent lakes. Alum is introduced as one of the steps in the removal of the sediment.



THIS IS THE CLEAR WELL at the new San Geronimo Water Treatment Plant. In this huge tank, 150 feet in diameter by 18 feet deep, two million gallons of purified water can be stored until pumps send it over White's Hill and on its way to some of the 100,000 consumers in the district.



THERE ARE FOUR of these filter beds at the San Geronimo Water Treatment Plant. Located in back of the control-filter building, each is about 35-feet-square. Here takes place the basic rapid-sand filter process which is the basic operation at the plant.

Pure Water For Marin

MMWD Shows Off New Treatment Plant At Open House To Be Held Tomorrow

The Marin Municipal Water District was organized more than a half-century ago—in 1912.

Today it serves some 100,000 people residing in an area bounded by Sausalito on the south and Hamilton Air Force Base on the north.

On a warm summer day, these people may consume as many as 36 million gallons of water in an effort to quench their thirst, to keep their lawns and gardens green and to meet their other domestic needs.

And as Marin's "developed" area spreads, the demand for water grows.

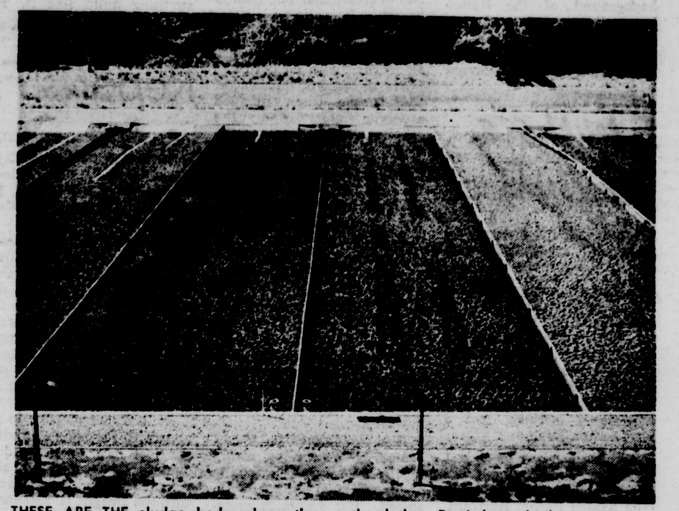
It was to help meet this growing demand that man-made Nicasio Lake was added to the MMWD system. And it was to purify that water that the new treatment plant at San Geronimo, to be open tomorrow for public inspection, was built.

The men responsible for seeing that the water district keeps pace with Marin's growing water needs are the directors and officers of the MMWD.

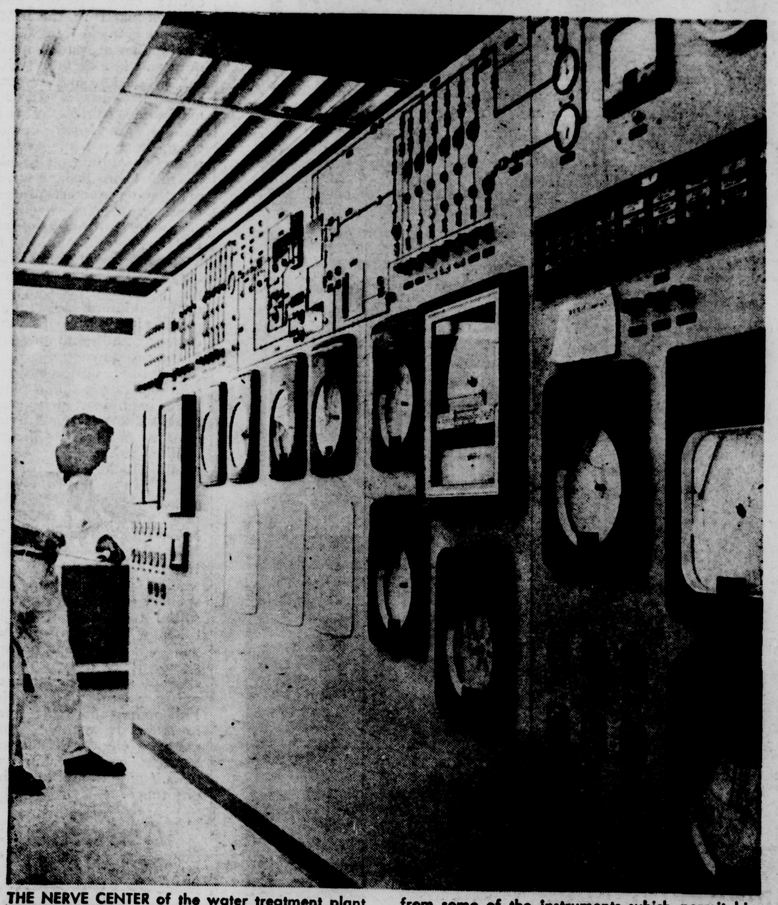
Serving on the board are Dr. L. L. Stanley, division one; W. C. Herup, division two; G. W. Thierbach, division three; William A. Marcus, division four, and R. G. Anderson, division five. Anderson is the board president.

William R. Seeger is general manager and chief engineer for the district, B. J. Brusatori secretary and assistant manager, L. J. Stefani general superintendent and assistant manager. S. W. Gardiner is attorney and G. W. Franzman auditor for the district.

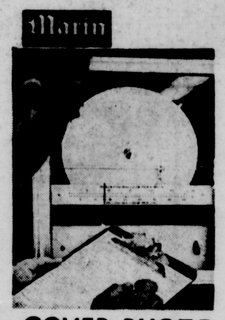
These men and other personnel of the water district will be your "hosts" at tomorrow's open house which begins at 3 p. m.



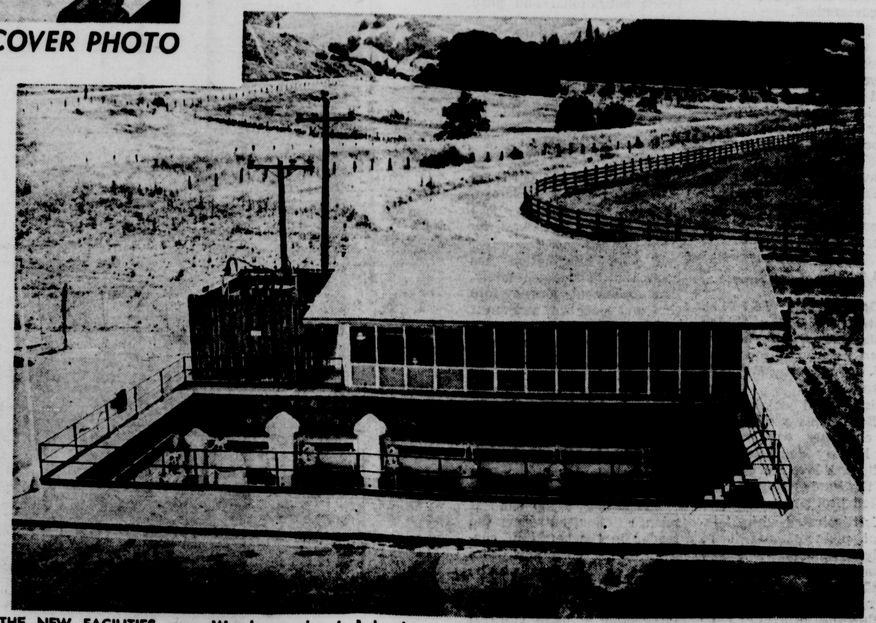
THESE ARE THE sludge beds where the impurities which have been removed from the water by the treatment plant processes are dried. At present, there is no use for the sludge. But is has a high nitrogen content. And there is the possibility of a future arrangement to sell the sludge for fertilizer purposes.



THE NERVE CENTER of the water treatment plant and its related facilities is this elaborate system of control instruments in the new building. Here Rollie Barton, plant supervisor, jots down figures from some of the instruments which permit him to keep a close check upon the various operations which are remotely-controlled from the plant. The inset of the cover photo by Bob Hax shows Barton close-up with one of the instrument charts.



COVER PHOTO



THE NEW FACILITIES near Woodacre also include the pumping station seen above, located adjacent to the control house and filter gallery building. These pumps boost the water, after purification has been completed, over White's Hill and into the Marin Municipal Water District system. It has a capacity now of 10 million gallons per day, but will be expanded later to 31 million gallons a day.

HERE YOU ARE INSIDE the main building of the San Geronimo Water Treatment Plant with supervisor Rollie Barton looking out at the filter beds. He is standing in front of one of the control panels. All is in readiness at the plant, which began operations last October, for tomorrow's big open house, during which the public is invited to visit and inspect the facilities. The Rosenberg Case Reviewed And Analyzed By S.F. Writer

By DON KEOWN

Apparently there are no reporters in the city room of the San Francisco Chronicle. They are all editors or columnists and/or authors.

Jonathan Root is a member of the author group. His "One Night in July," dealing with New York's Becker-Rosenthal murder case, was well received. Now he has written in "The Betrayers" an account and analysis of the case of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, who were executed in 1953 for conspiracy to commit espionage on behalf of the Soviet Union.

The book divides into three sections.

The first is devoted to the background of the Rosenbergs, the second to the account of their trial and the legal maneuverings which followed their conviction (based upon the trial transcript and newspaper stories), and the third to appraisals by Root and others of the case.

Some of those conclusions:

1. There is in his mind now no doubt as to the guilt of the Rosenbergs.

2. But the case presented by the government in court offered little solid legal evidence demonstrating that guilt. Instead, the prosecution relied heavily upon "pretrial publicity and courtroom innuendo and oratory."

3. The "save the Rosenbergs" furor which followed the passing of the death sentences was actually more designed to smear the government and American justice, and to create martyrs, than to spare the Rosenbergs.

4. The Rosenbergs themselves were "alienated from all reality" with no desire to prove themselves innocent of the charges. They "pursued a perverse glory" even at the expense of their lives and the welfare of their children.

5. The importance of the information which passed into Soviet hands through the efforts of the Rosenbergs was greatly exaggerated at the time—Judge Irving Kaufman, in passing sentence, even blamed them for the Korean war. But this, Root feels, made their crime no less grave.

6. The death sentences gave gave the Rosenberg case an international importance it would otherwise never have achieved.

Root explores in detail some of the more interesting legal aspects of the case. His writing is lucid but hardly inspired. The drama is somewhat less than what one might anticipate, but it soon becomes apparent that this was true of the trial as well. It boils down to what is largely a professionally-competent rewriting of the newspaper accounts of the case, throwing some new light, but not much, upon these unhappy events.

THE BETRAYERS by Jonathan Root, Coward-McCann, 299 pages, $5.

VANISHING WILDLIFE by Roy Pinney, Dodd, Mead and Co., 193 pages, $5.

MARIN'S MANY conservationists should thoroughly appreciate Roy Pinney's "Vanishing Wildlife." And readers who are not now conservationists may well become such by the time they finish the book.

Famed wildlife photographer and museum curator Pinney tells the stories of what has happened to such species as the dodo, trumpeter swans, koala bear, American bison, the great auk, California condor, the salmon, lemur, mountain gorilla and many others which have either disappeared or are in dire danger of disappearing.

He tells those stories in an interesting and straight-forward manner, unhesitatingly placing the blame for depredation where it belongs.

Prince Bernhard of The Netherlands, president of the World Wildlife Fund, has contributed an eloquent and moving foreword, asking us:

Do we want our children's grandchildren to have to ask: "What was a wild animal?"

LAWRENCE Ferlinghetti's City Lights Books has published a collection of Allen Ginsberg poems under the title "Reality Sandwiches" as part of its paperback "The Pocket Poets Series." As always the Ginsberg verse is grim and gutty, or as the poet himself describes his work: "Scribbled secret notebooks, and wild typewritten pages, for yr own joy." Certainly no one else is writing anything quite like it. The price is $1.50.

THE OLD-TIME back peddler who, while trudging America's countryside created some of its history, is the subject of the newest Harry Golden book, "Forgotten Pioneer," published by World Publishing Co. Illustrations, including the line drawing above, are by Leonard Vosburgh.

Sleuths & Suspense

THE DRUM OF UNGARA by Bill Knox, Crime Club, 205 pages, $3.95.

While Doubleday and Co. has published Bill Knox's "The Drum of Ungara" under its Crime Club imprint, the novel is actually neither a detective nor a suspense story. It is an old-fashioned adventure yarn, with a touch of international intrigue, and a most entertaining one.

Set in a newly-independent nation in East Africa, it focuses on a soldier-of-fortune type named Robert Hartford, who becomes involved in the local politics. In an effort to prevent a take-over by a terrorist party and a blood-bath, he undertakes a secret mission into the bush in search of an ancient tribal relic.

Knox's descriptions of East African terrain, of native life and of the uncertainties of political life in one of the fledgling nations are excellent. His individual characters are less expertly drawn and, like his climax, may sound a bit too familiar. But, we are sure, you will forgive him these faults in exchange for the several hours of exciting escapist reading which his yarn will afford you.

(It is the kind of book which could have been made into a good Humphrey Bogart movie when Bogie was with us. The fact that no one else comes readily to mind for the he-man Hartford role is somewhat indicative of the gap which was left in Hollywood's ranks by Bogart's death—a gap which has not been filled.)

Reports From Our Reviewers

By A Congressman

UNDERSTANDING CONGRESS by Joe L. Evins, Clarkson N. Potter, 297 pages, $5. Reviewed by Robert M. Coppock.

This book starts out as a kind of breezy textbook of the rules and complexities of Congress and winds up as a diatribe.

The author is a Democratic representative from Tennessee, and he makes his biases known early in the book, perhaps so that they might be discounted.

But a reader picking up the opus with the hope of finding out just how Congress does operate soon runs into side comments on what was wrong with the Dwight D. Eisenhower administration, or why John F. Kennedy is doing a great job.

John Adams, who once made some cogent comments on the structure of Congress, especially the Senate, is mentioned once. Sherman Adams, who never held a national elective post, is mentioned five times.

Evins does attempt to cover the major points about the history and rules of Congress, giving more detail to the House of Representatives which he knows better. He also discusses the relationship between Congress and other parts of the federal government, and with those outside government, from individual constituents to lobbyists and pressure groups.

But his main plea, which actually comes near the end of the book, is for the legislative branch to recapture much power he says has been lost to the executive branch of the U.S. government.

He gives an eloquent argument that the Bureau of the Budget, together with the executive control over the so-called independent regulatory agencies, has wrested away power from Congress.

A book on this subject alone might have been a worthwhile endeavor by Evins, but enmeshing the discussion in what is supposed to be a text on government just confuses matters.

History Written For The Young

NELSON AND THE AGE OF FIGHTING SAIL by Oliver Warner, American Heritage, 153 pages, $3.95.

British historian Oliver Warner is the author and America's Fleet Adm. Chester Nimitz the consultant for this fifth book in American Heritage's quality "Horizon Caravel Book" series for young readers.

With its readable narrative supplemented by 134 illustrations, many in color, from the great collections and maritime museums, the book represents a dramatic but authentic telling of a naval career which began at 13 and ended in a hero's death at 44 at Trafalgar.

The story of Horatio Nelson has its greatest appeal for boys. But the next Caravel book, to be published Aug. 19, will balance the scales for the girls. It's "Joan of Arc" by Jay Williams.

Maestro's Story

LEONARD BERNSTEIN: MAKING MUSIC, by Shirley Bernstein, Encyclopedia Britannica Press, 192 pages, $2.95. Reviewed by Maybelle Speckmann.

This is a first book by Leonard Bernstein's younger sister, evidently written, not with literary ambitions, but to tell, with love and admiration, the human story of her talented brother.

It is illustrated with 21 informal pictures, and is so simply written that it is easy reading for anyone but younger children.

Her brother's first "pupil" and thus first to benefit from his skill in dealing with children while he himself was still in his teens, Shirley was a stage-struck young girl. She graduated to casting agent and associate producer of a Broadway show, and is at present associate producer of an English movie starring Robert Preston.

She has traveled with Bernstein all over Europe and their close relationship has put her in an excellent position to report on his life and work—if one makes allowances for her "rose-colored glasses."

Among the subjects discussed are the maestro's happy childhood despite his father's opposition to his choice of music as a career, his significance as America's first native-born and home-trained conductor and his bridging of the gap in TV between educational and pure entertainment programs.

Interesting chapters deal with his work as composer, conductor and educator, his marriage and children, and the great musicians who have influenced his life.

Journey Into Space

IS THERE LIFE ON OTHER WORLDS? by Poul Anderson, Crowell-Collier Press, 224 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Frank Farrara.

If your imagination has been a little sluggish lately, Poul Anderson's journey into time and space will awaken it with a start.

Starting from a foundation of fact, he soars into the realm of interstellar travel with an unfettered mind that envisions intelligent life on other planets. Interstellar ships racing across space with a cargo of earthlings on their way to colonize a star are among his visions.

The author, a top hand at science fiction, entrances the reader in the world of conjecture, but bogs him down with technical data at the start.

Apparently he lowered his intellectual sights in an effort to give the layman a basic background in astrobiology, but he still goes over their heads.

THESE "HUMAN PUPPETS" will have a familiar look for Marinites. They are the husband-and-wife team of Nan and Andrew Susac, formerly of San Rafael. The Bay Area actors and mimes will present two different "Punch and Judy" plays on the lawn outside the Hall of Flowers in San Francisco's Golden Gate Park tomorrow just prior to the 2 p. m. and 5 p. m. performances of the Arena Theater's Second Annual San Francisco Shakespeare Festival. The Susacs will again perform in the original scripts by Andrew on July 28 and Aug. 4 as the festival continues through three weekends. The Shakespeare productions will be "A Midsummer Night's Dream," "Romeo and Juliet" and "The Tempest," with a third performance at 8 p. m. on each of the three festival days.

COMIN' HOME BABY! Mel Torme—Atlantic Stereo 8069:

Mel's latest lp is named after his big, big hit in the near-rhythm 'n' blues field.

Quite a new groove for the former "Velvet Fog."

The versatility which Torme has recently acquired is shown in such jazz instrumental adaptations as "Dat Dere," "Moanin'" and "Whisper Not" side-by-side with more standard Torme numbers such as "The Lady's in Love With You."

"Shorty" Rogers was in on the arranging and conducting, and the swinging jazz backgrounds show his skilled touch.

This is just about the best Mel Torme on wax.

THE GROUP—RCA Victor Stereo LSP-2663:

A new vocal trio whose "new sound" may be imagined fairly closely by eliminating two of the Four Freshmen and replacing with a girl singer. They are slightly more jazz-oriented than the Freshmen and sound more honest somehow.

While no Lambert-Hendricks-Bavan competition, The Group does have a pleasing way with an up-tempo tune and should please both pop and jazz listeners.

SOMETHING ELSE, The Meg Welles Quintet, arranged and conducted by Fred Karlin — Columbia Stereo CS 8577:

This vivacious gal and her "chamber jazz" accompanists do have a "new sound." Actually it's a very old sound—most of the group's material goes back to the 17th and 18th centuries or earlier.

Hence the album sub-title: "Songs of Maids, Knaves and Other Swingers."

The harpsichord and classic guitar help to achieve a highly striking sound when they syncopate away behind Miss Welles' lightweight voice.

Among the jewels in this collection are a Salvation Army collecting song from 1870, some medieval ditties such as "Robyn Loves Me," and a Prohibition-period nonsense song, "No More Booze."

Besides being musical leader of her group, Miss Welles does a fairly successful job of adorning her own record cover. I like it.

"REALTY VIEWS"

"I've got a property to sell," said Carl Treazley, an alert young man. "It has great development possibilities. Why don't you come look at it, then tell me what it's worth?"

His property proved difficult to size up. "I know you expect me to come up with a figure now, but in all honesty I can't. I want to be fair to you. Let me study it for a day or two. Then I'll tell you what I think it can be sold for."

William A. Lewis

"That sounds reasonable," Carl said. "Take whatever time you need."

On unusual properties, it often takes time and considerable checking before a Realtor really understands what he has been asked to sell. It's like a doctor who may want to make several tests before diagnosing an ailment; or like a lawyer who may want to "brief" the law before he advises a client. After two days of research, I acquired a "feel" for the property and reported back to Carl.

I reviewed the facts with him and he said "Go ahead, I'm satisfied."

When a strong buyer appeared we furnished the same facts to him. "I'm convinced," he said. "Let's deal."

We like to sell challenging properties. Why not challenge us to sell yours?

Marin Living

Paradise For The Yachtsman

Paradise Cay, the subdivision for yachtsmen with lots that front directly onto the Bay and are provided with individual floating docks, now has seven model homes open for public inspection.

One of the homes, four bedrooms and two and a half baths, has been furnished by Casa Marin of San Rafael.

Interior decorator Jacqueline Franz mixed modern with French and Spanish provincial in the furnished model to achieve an atmosphere of comfortable relaxation.

As with all the models, landscaping has been kept to a minimum on the theory that the occupants will want to spend their time sailing—not gardening. The model has a graceful Japanese garden, pebbled walks and dwarf trees in an enclosed patio that fronts the main entrance.

The residences, offering a wide choice of design and location, sell for from $48,350 to $54,000.

Some contain three bedrooms, others four bedrooms.

All are open seven days a week for public inspection.

In addition to the seven custom-built models, homesites with bay frontage are also available on the man-made island for luxury living.

These lots are located in newly-opened sections on the cay, and offer the same waterfront living advantages for potential owners as do the already-constructed homes.

Paradise Cay is attracting increasing attention as a prime example of Marin living at its finest.

Paradise Cay can be reached by turning from Highway 101 at the Corte Madera overpass and taking Paradise Drive for one mile to the cay.

ONE OF THE MODELS now open for public inspection at Paradise Cay has been furnished by Casa Marin of San Rafael in a pleasing mixture of contemporary and French and Spanish provincial. The result is a picture of comfort that fits in well with the overall air of luxury and good living that prevails at Paradise Cay. Here boats slip past one of the model homes.

A CIRCULAR BENCH built around a tree well will provide a most charming patio accessory. The bench can be made of laminated Douglas fir one-by-threes with angle iron for supports. Brightly colored cushions will add both accent and comfort.

Bricklaying Is A Man's Work— But It Can Also Be Relaxing Fun

A younger Winston Churchill found relaxation and peace of mind laying bricks, building garden walls and walks.

The build-it-yourself fireplace provides an excellent way to productive relaxation for you, too, if your skills lie in that direction.

The pattern offered here was designed for the person who has never laid bricks, let alone built a fireplace. Every step is explained in language the handyman can easily follow.

Building this fireplace can, its designers assert, open doors to better living for you. The physical effort required to bend up and down, mixing concrete and laying each brick, and the concentration required to place each brick accurately in position provides complete release from everyday problems, they promise. Everyone who works with his hands soon discovers areas in and around the home where, through physical effort, they create "zones of contentment." Try painting a room, a house, build a garage, fireplace or tool house and you'll capture some of this magic.

FOR LOT THAT SLOPES, TRY FENCE IN SECTIONS

Do you have a sloping lot with a stair-step fence problem?

A good way to solve your fence building problems on such a property is to use sectional fences, built in desired lengths or sections with each section one, two, or even three feet below the one immediately above.

Some landscape architects develop some interesting fence patterns for these section step-down fences. Among popular styles is a screen-type section made by nailing one-by-two-inch cedar boards to a top and bottom two-by-four rail set firmly between four-by-four cedar posts.

Each section is a complete unit. The general and most attractive style is to design a frame for the screen section of one-by-two boards. This can be done by using a two-by-four cap nailed to the top of the posts. The cap can be one foot or so above the screen and there can be decorative boards set at wide spacing to tie cap board with the screen.

A good effect is obtained by placing the one-by-two boards vertically in one section and horizontally in adjoining sections. This gives a pleasant contrasting texture. The cedar can be allowed to weather to a soft, silvery gray, or the fence can be stained or painted to suit the home owner's taste.

AN OVERHEAD SHADE, a redwood screen and a bench create a restful retreat in the garden-patio of the Judge Harry Nuebarth home at 45 Idlewood Road, Kentfield. The sunshade was constructed with plywood and metal I-beams. Beams were cantilevered over the top of the screen and anchored in the hillside, eliminating the need for posts in the outdoor living area. Paving patterns of marble and exposed aggregate add interest. Frederic Coolidge was the landscape architect. His plans were executed by Cagwin & Dorward, landscape contractors. (Photo by Ken Molino)

Hanging Plants Offer Many Advantages

Plants have shot off into space this summer.

They've hit the ceiling of porches, hang from the overhang of roofs, and have turned sunporches into greenhouses.

As one man said recently of his jungle-like surroundings, "I expect to see a monkey come swinging by at any minute."

Some plants have been moved from their indoor settings. And new ones are added. There are many advantages to the arrangement: The satisfaction of being surrounded by flowers and foliage, no matter the weather, and it's a lot easier than weeding an outdoor garden.

EVERY SORT OF container is used, from those that are improvised like wire salad baskets or Easter-style baskets to wire, redwood, cedar or flower pot containers available at nurseries, florists and other shops.

If you hang plants high in the air, remember they must be watered. The joy can go out of a project that requires removing 17 plants from brackets or ceiling suspensions for water.

The best bet is to hang the majority of plants on walls within reach, with one or two strategically placed from the overhang of a roof or a ceiling of a porch. Newspapers could then be placed under plants to catch the excess water.

ORDINARY flower pots equipped with the rigid hangers that may be attached to brackets are very good for this purpose. Wire baskets are pretty but filled with soil and moss, they are not quite so easy to maintain. The pot need not be the main attraction. A trailing begonia or weeping lantana hanging from the beams is the only eye arrester you will need.

Plants should be selected for their tolerance to light, sun, shade.

One of the commonest and easiest plants to grow in hanging baskets is the trailing Ivy Geranium—a good one for the beginning to experiment with. Its foliage is glossy and green throughout the year, and for many months it produces a succession of blooms, mostly pink but also available in other colors.

THEY REQUIRE little attention, other than watering and an occasional meal of well-balanced fertilizer to replace the nutrients which have been washed from the soil by constant washing. All plants in hanging baskets need more food than they would normally because of this washing-out process.

Trailing fuchsias are a strong favorite for hanging baskets here in Northern California. Feeding once every two or three weeks with fish emulsion benefits fuchsias. And when starting with young plants, put two or three into a container for best effects. Pinch terminal shoots as they grow to make the plants fill and carry more bloom.

The weeping lantana with its masses of lavender, orange or rose flowers requires plenty of sun, and lots of room for its sprays.

Begonias do well in partial shade and in an area where the temperature is above 50 degrees. These can offer profuse trailing blooms.

FERNS AND even philodendron may be interspersed with other plants. Variegated ivy may hang from a pot of ordinary geraniums. And this same effect may be achieved with dwarf petunias, if it is too late to latch on to the trailing petunias.

Coleus is another lovely plant for a basket. And trailing Nasturtium thrives on poor soil.

Parrot's Beak Lotus, Shrimp Plant and Italian Bellflower are some other excellent choices.

In general it is a good idea to choose plants that are known to do well in our climate, rather than to experiment.

It's A Wick-ed Trick

If you have no plant-sitter when you go on vacation, there are ways to keep the plants moist until you return.

One is the wick-watering method.

Water plants thoroughly, submerge the pots up to their rims in tepid water for half an hour and spray all leaves except fuzzy ones.

Set all pots around a large container of water on a level with or higher than the pots, or use individual containers, such as milk bottles. Then take lengths of cotton wicking or clothesline with dressing removed and cover part of the wick with tinfoil to prevent evaporation.

Insert one end of the strip into the water and the other into the soil of each pot. For a two-weeks' vacation, we recommend one quart of water for every two six-inch pots.

SOMETIMES A BLACK AND WHITE photo just can't do justice to a plant. This is especially true of a landscape featuring the lantana. So visualize an uphill slope combined with a blank wall in shining sunlight with poor soil and little water. Give up? Not at all. Try lantana and soon you will have a blooming asset in the most vibrant shades of pink, orange and yellow — or pure, creamy white if you prefer. Newer varieties of lantana tend to spread rather than trail, and are, therefore, ideal for a hillside or a bank, or for toppling gracefully over a wall. (Photo by California Assn. of Nurserymen)

The New Lantanas: More Bloom While Remaining Hardy As Ever

Lantanas, those once lowly shrubs of California gardens, have undergone some remarkable changes in recent years.

And if you haven't looked at them lately, it's time you did.

Hybridists have done wonders with this shrub, upgrading the quality of bloom without reducing the inherent ability to withstand heat, drought and unfriendly soil conditions. They have given us plants that are perfectly adapted to California's climate—in bloom most of the year, tolerant of our long, dry summers and easy to live with.

MOST TALKED about of the new lantanas are those which evolved through crossing the trailing lavender variety, Lantana sellowiana, with the shrubbier Lantana camara. First of the new breed which nurserymen offered some time back was the variety Goldrush. It proved the most popular new lantana to come along in years.

Today, however, the Goldrush is not alone in the sought-after newer types, for countless new brothers and sisters have arrived to steal the show. They carry such fetching names as Confetti, Pink Frolic, Sunburst and Tangerine, and their colors run the gamut.

Confetti combines yellow, pink and purple. Pink Frolic is pink and yellow. Sunburst is a bright yellow, and Tangerine is colored as the name suggests. The plants are literally smothered with blooms during the warm months and scattered liberally with them during much of the remaining months. The foliage is a deep green background to the gaily colored blooms.

IN GROWTH habit, these newer lantanas are spreading, but not trailing; bushy enough for the foundation planting, but pliable enough to hang over the edge of a retaining wall. We've seen them in containers, too, filling a large redwood tub and overflowing in an umbrella of color.

You won't find enough nice things to say about them after you've grown them for a while.

Let's not dwell entirely on the new spreading lantana, however, for that would do injustice to the camara varieties, which give us bushier, taller frameworks on which to hang the multi-colored lantana blooms.

CAMARA OR bush lantanas are basically tall shrubs of five or six-feet—even more. Here again the hybridist has taken over, creating camara varieties which are quite compact in their growth. They are clean-looking shrubs, with deep green foliage and free-flowing habits.

Radiation is one of the most popular of these camara varieties, being a rich orange-red in color. Christine, another names variety is a cerise pink, while others will be found in nurseries merely as Dwarf Pink, Dwarf White and Dwarf Yellow. There is also a trailing yellow of this type, propagated from a recumbent maverick of the bush-type yellow above. It is not so wide ranging as the lavender Trailing Lantana, but few plants are.

Lantanas are most prominent in southern California, but they adapt to our part of the state. They may occasionally succumb to frost, but they will grow a new head the following year and resume blooming with a minimum of sulking.

THE FAMILY has a natural aversion for riches, doing better when the soil is stingy and where water is scarce. They seem to resent fertilizer, too, which makes them about the easiest plant you could hope to grow. They grow with more favorable conditions, but their bloom is less spectacular than it is where conditions are poor.

Give them full sun, too. You can't overdo it in this respect.

The plants will bloom most of the year, but if you take time to prune them back each fall, they will repay you for the temporary loss of bloom by coming back with renewed vigor. Do this in early fall, and by winter they should be giving you some bloom once again.

What more could you ask?

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Feed roses, water them deeply and spray regularly to enjoy the maximum of summer bloom.
- Prune out canes on blackberry vines that bore fruit this year. Loosely wind the new canes around the trellis.
- Set out bedding plants for late summer bloom — and for bloom this fall.
- For a shrub ideally suited to our climate, take a look at that attractive Australian import, the bottle brush.
- Plant blooming tuberous begonias for quick color in shaded spots.
- Feed dahlias frequently — twice a month at least. Use a complete fertilizer, or fish emulsion.
- If your lawn won't stay green, the most probable cause is lack of water. More than likely you don't water deeply enough, or your soil is compacted and needs the attention of a coring tool.

TERR-O-VITE
The All-Purpose Fertilizer that Makes Water Wetter

"Doc" Cha-Kem-Co says:

You don't need to Pick and Sweat 'n swear to break up Adobe or compacted soils

or

Break your Back boring holes to aerate and get water penetration into root choked lawns

or

Dynamite your Soil to get plant Nutrients deep into the Root Zone

or

Be a Plant Pathologist to cure and prevent Yellow Foliage due to Iron Deficiency

When All You Need Do Is Spray on

TERR-O-VITE

TERR-O-VITE is the ONLY COMPLETE fertilizer that does ALL the above . . .

And that is one whale of a job to do with ONLY one product by JUST SPRAYING on the ground.

TERR-O-VITE'S exclusive "wetter-water" principle gives fast water penetration through root-matted lawns and hardpan soil—providing drainage, aeration and reducing runoff.

TERR-O-VITE cures and prevents CHLOROSIS by supplying the Iron, Zinc and Manganese plants need to maintain their green healthy color.

TERR-O-VITE corrects alkalinity in soil and water with fast acting acidifiers.

Remember that TERR-O-VITE is a COMPLETE FERTILIZER for ALL plants, a Soil Conditioner for ALL Western soils and a Plant Tonic for sick lawns, trees and shrubs.

ADMITTEDLY it's foolish, but it's also fun. And the beauty pageant is also very much a part of the American summer scene. Scheduled for a TV airing tonight at 10 p.m. over KPIX - 5 is the 1963 "Miss Universe Beauty Pageant" from Miami Beach, Fla., where Norma Beatriz Nolan of Buenos Aires, Argentina, above, will turn over the Miss Universe title and crown which she won in 1962 to a new winner. Thirteen of the beautiful 1963 contenders can be seen at right. In all, 38 countries will be represented in the finals.

THE ALTERNATING excitement and tedium of the life of a big-city firefighter is reflected in "Fire Rescue," first shown on "Du Pont Show of the Week" last September and scheduled for a repeat broadcast Sunday at 10 p. m. on KRON-TV. Walter Matthau narrates the one-hour dramatic film record of the actual operations of Rescue Company One, a trouble-shooting unit of specially-trained members of the New York City Fire Department.

GLAMOUR GIRL Sophia Loren will be spotlighted when the NBC-TV Special Projects program, "The World of Sophia Loren," is repeated Thursday at 10 p. m. on KRON-TV as a "Purex Special." The hour-long documentary traces the career of the Academy Award-winning Italian beauty from childhood in war-torn Naples to her success in the movies. Above, with the assistance of a dancing teacher and a glass of water, she learns to do the Twist in her dressing room on a movie set in Paris.

"THE LIVELY ONES," that rarity, a summer replacement show with more to recommend it than a low budget, will be back for another season of warm weather entertainment starting Thursday at 9:30 p. m. over KRON-TV. Singer Vic Damone, right, will be on hand again to host the musical series and to do some of the singing himself. Among his guests on the 1963 premiere program will be Benny Goodman and his Sextet, seen below performing on the steps of the nation's capitol in Washington, D. C. Red Nichols and his Five Pennies, Count Basie and his band and singer Joanie Sommers are also on the opening bill.

WHAT MUST HAVE been one of the most bizarre and unnerving television appearances of the 1962-63 season will be re-broadcast next Friday at 10 p. m. over KRON-TV when "The Jack Paar Program" of last Feb. 8, featuring unpredictable Oscar Levant as Paar's guest, will be repeated. Non-conformist Levant left even his usually imperturbable host somewhat stunned with his verbal thrusts, issued in the midst of what appeared to be a series of naps in front of the TV cameras.

A TOOL OF HIS TRADE for special effects chief Virgil Beck of the ABC-TV series "Combat!" seen Tuesdays at 7:30 p.m. on KGO-TV, is this rifle which isn't as destructive as it looks. It shoots only dust pellets to simulate bullets striking pavement and masonry.
